IS HURRIED TO CHICAGO

Wires to Wife That There is No Danger—Physicians to Probe for Bullet

(By Special Wire.)

MILWAUKEE, Wis.,

Oct. 15.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, former president of the United States and

third party candidate for re-election, was shot through the right breast by John

Schrank of New York, while entering an automobile

which was to take him from the Hotel Gilpatrick to the auditorium, where he was to make an address last night.

The shooting occurred at 7:45 p. m. At first it was thought the wound was not serious and Colonel Roosevelt insisted on delivering

his address but later last night it was discovered that the bullet had lodged deeply

in the body of the ex-president and physicians were rushed from Chicago.

Assailant Captured

Schrank was thrown to the walk by E. E. Martin, the colonel's private secretary,

and Henry F. Cochems,

who were in the auto with him, and turned over to the police. He was taken to central police station where he

made an awful confession,

admitting that he had been

following the ex-president

for several weeks, waiting for a chance to kill him.

Throughout his address the

colonel spoke with difficulty, although showing no signs of pain, yet weakening perceptibly toward the end, because of loss of blood, declaring that he meant to see the thing

through.

Immediately after his address the

colonel was taken to Emergency hospital, where his wound was examined but physicians decided not to remove the bullet until he reached

Chicago. After he had been removed to his train, however, the wound

began to bleed afresh and the Chicago physicians were summoned. It is feared that he may be compelled to discontinue all campaign work.

Shows Wound to Crowd

Fully 15,000 people, who packed

the auditorium, cheered Colonel

Roosevelt as he bared his breast on the stage, showed them the bloodstains and shouted, "It takes more than that to kill a bull moose."

The ex-president read his entire

address from a manuscript punctured

with holes through which the bullet had passed and but for which he might have been killed.

Time and again friends of the colonel tried to pull him back into his seat and told him that he had spoken

long enough.

"I'm all right," he would answer.

"I am feeling better every minute. I am going to make you listen to this speech whether you want to or not."

Because of his wound Colonel

Roosevelt did not deliver the entire address he had intended and he preferred his remarks with an extemporaneous address. His excerpt from

La Follette's Magazine was read by

Thomas J. Mahon, Governor McGov-

ern's candidate for secretary of the republican state central committee.

Papers Saved Life

"I shall have to ask you to be as quiet as possible," said Colonel

Roosevelt at the beginning of his address. "I've just been shot, but it takes more than that to kill a bull

moose. Fortunately I had my manuscript in my pocket. The bullet passed through it and then went into my body and it's there yet. My manuscript probably prevented it's going through my heart.

"But I am not thinking about being shot. I have altogether too many things to talk about. My concern is for many other things, not for my own life. I am ahead of the game

anyway. No man has had a happier life. I have been able to do many things I have wished to do, and I am tensely interested in doing other things, but I am very much disinterested in whether I am shot or

not. I have always thought a private had some right to feel some pangs about his personal safety, but never a colonel when he is occupied

as he ought to be with an absorbing

desire to do his duty. I am in this cause with my whole heart because

I believe in the progressive movement. I will feel keenly any blow to that movement. I am not thinking of my own success or my own life.

I did not know who the man was

who shot me tonight. He was seized

at once by one of my stenographers,

Mr. Martin. He shot to kill me; I am going to show you." (Here Colonel Roosevelt pulled open his coat

and vest to show the blood spots.)

Then for a moment Colonel Roosevelt

seemed to grow confused and he repeated part of his address.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT

Ex-President Who Was Shot by a Maniac Just Before His Milwaukee Address Last Night

Hurried to Hospital

Immediately following his speech,

Roosevelt gave in to the entreaties

of his friends and the physicians,

who were summoned, and was hurried through the crowd that thronged the exit to an automobile. He was at once taken to the Emergency hospital, where he was examined with an X-ray, but the surgeons did not attempt to probe for the bullet which was found lodged in the tissues of his chest just above the diaphragm.

Just before going on the operating

table Roosevelt dictated the following message to his wife: "I have been shot in the breast. The bullet is still in me but there is no danger."

He gave orders that if the telegraph office at Oyster Bay was closed,

the message should be taken to Sagamore Hill by a taxicab.

Shortly after the wound had been dressed and while he was lying on a cot in the Emergency hospital,

Roosevelt dictated another telegram

to his wife at Oyster Bay. The message was as follows:

Sends Message to Wife

"Am in excellent shape. Made an hour and half speech. The wound

is a trivial one. I think they will find that it merely glanced on a rib

and went somewhere into a cavity of the body. It certainly did not touch

a lung and isn't a particle more serious than one of the injuries any of the boys are continually having. Am

at the Emergency hospital at the moment but anticipate going right

on with my engagements. My voice seems to be in good shape. Best love

to Ethel.

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

The boys he referred to in his message to his wife are his sons.

"The colonel is in good shape,"

said Chief of Police J. A. Janssen,

who was present during the X-ray examination. "I do not think the colonel's wound is itself serious although if infections set in it may prove so. The fact that the doctors

did not probe for the bullet makes it not likely that infections will set

in. His pulse is normal and he is resting easily.

"The bullet lodged in the tissues

of his chest about two inches above

the diaphragm. The wound is three inches deep, lodging the bullet near the lungs. From the nature of the wound it appears that the bullet took a slight upward course. Colonel

Roosevelt suffered little loss of blood."

Schrank was put on the grill at the police headquarters, but made no oc-herent statement. At first he declined to divulge his identity, but after that was secured he talked

more freely, and admitted he had followed Roosevelt for the purpose of killing him since September 21.

His trail after the ex-president had taken him to many cities on the colonel's itinerary. He answered all questions in a matter of fact way, although many of his answers betrayed a diseased mind.

"Do you believe men are justified in taking life?" he was asked, and answered, "No."

"What were you doing at 8 o'clock

tonight?"

"That was all right; he was seeking a third term."

"Don't you belong to the anarchists?"

"I want you to understand I don't belong to any political party. I am not affiliated with no socialists or anarchists. Neither am I a republican

or a democrat. I am a free and independent American citizen."

"You seem to be the only one who objects to a third term."

"Yes, it looks that way, and I'm sorry you're right."

"Have you any police record?"

"Never, but I guess I have one

now."

"What is your religion?"

"I'm a Roman Catholic."

"What church do you belong to

in New York?"

"I haven't attended regular for ten years. The last one I was to was Fifty-fifth street and Fifth avenue."

"Do you ever go to confession?"

"No, sir, you can be a good Catholic without going to church."

"Do you believe in God?"

"Yes."

Shows Bloodstains

Nine thousand people who gathered at the auditorium last night to hear Roosevelt's address saw him

read that address from a manuscript

punctured with holes through which the bullet meant to take his life had passed. They saw him pull aside his coat and vest to show the blood that had flowed from his wound. The audiences was vastly sympathetic. Cheer after cheer swept the hall when

Henry Cochems, who introduced Colonel Roosevelt, announced he would speak despite the fact he had been

STATE INSURANCE APPLICATIONS OUT

First Steps Taken to Put New Law Into Operation by Wisconsin Department

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 14.—(Special.)—Letters are being sent out by the state department of insurance containing application blanks for state insurance and setting forth the plan and desirability of such insurance. This is the first step taken by the state to put into operation the new law providing for life insurance by the state, the plan of which has for some time engaged the attention of Commissioner Herman L. Ekern. Besides the application blank the letter contains a copy of the law passed at the last session of the legislature providing for this new departure by the state.

The letter accompanying the application blanks and the law reads:

"Dear Sir:—The state of Wisconsin is soon ready to issue policies of life insurance and must have a considerable number of approved applications before the plan can be put into operation.

"Will you kindly return this sheet with the names of ten young men in your vicinity, 20 years of age or over, sound and in good health, who need and are in position to pay for a $1,000 policy of life insurance in the life fund of the state.

"Full information and blanks for application will soon be sent to anyone on request."

The application blank reads: "I consider making application for $1,000 or $500 insurance in the life fund of the state of Wisconsin on ordinary life, 20 payment life, 20 year endowment, endowment at age 65, term to age 65. Indicate amount and plan desired by underscoring. Thus: $1,000 ordinary life."

Commissioner Ekern will shortly issue a statement setting forth in more detail the proposed operation of the law.

OREGON NOMINEE FOR G. O. P. ELECTOR REFUSES HONOR AND DECLARES FOR THE GOVERNOR

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 14.—William Harney of Burns, "the duke of Harney," is out for Woodrow Wilson. He was nominated as a republican candidate for elector in the primaries, but declined the honor, and his declaration for the democratic candidate gives explanation for his refusal to take a place on the Taft ticket.

In a letter to Colonel C. E. S. Wood, Mr. Harney says he does not weigh party labels against principle. He is not going to support Taft because he believes the fight is between Wilson and Roosevelt, and he considers Roosevelt dangerous to the country.

TESREAU'S FAMILY WATCHES PITCHER

IRONTON, Mo., Oct. 14.—The Jeff Tesreau's younger brother will be glad when the world's series is over, for he has to walk eleven miles every night to get the score for his father.

Jeff's father, known as "Old Man" Tesreau in the community, lives in a cabin far back in the Ozark mountains with his son. Papers are slow in reaching him, so the younger brother hikes out every night for the score, especially if Jeff is billed to pitch.

Sitting in front of his cabin today "Old Man" Tesreau heard of Jeff's defeat yesterday. He whittled a stick and pulled away on a corn-cob pipe as the story of the game was told to him, then said:

"Jeff'll get 'em yet. I know what a pitcher he is, and nobody can beat my boy when he's right."

VOTE FOR KAREL IS FOR REACTION

Last Issue of La Follette's Magazine Tells Voters of State of Conditions

M'GOVERN IS FOR PROGRESS

Vote for Governor Is in Favor of Continued Advancement, Says Senator

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 14.—That a vote for McGovern is in favor of continued advancement and is cast for the progressive movement, is a statement made by Senator La Follette in an editorial in his magazine last week. The editorial is entitled "To the Progressive Voters of Wisconsin," and reviews Karel's record in deadly parallel with that of McGovern. Says the editorial:

"The situation in Wisconsin remains unchanged. It is McGovern or Karel for governor. Between these two candidates, the progressive voters who, through the republican party, have made Wisconsin the beacon light of constructive self government, should have no difficulty in choosing. It is plainly a choice between progress and reaction, between general interest and special interest.

"McGovern, the republican candidate, stands on a platform in keeping with the principles upon which true representative government has been built, and pledging their further extension toward a complete political, educational and industrial democracy. Karel, the democratic candidate, stands on a platform which is a repudiation of the leadership of William Jennings Bryan and Woodrow Wilson; in fact the supporters of Karel are the enemies of Wilson and Bryan. McGovern has a record of real service, of faithful performance of his pledges, and of earnest co-operation with the legislature in carrying out the expressed will of the people. Karel's legislative record is a record of unbroken hostility to those vital measures which laid the foundation of Wisconsin's high governmental eminence. McGovern, on his record as governor, and his acceptance of the republican platform, is supported by the progressive republican leaders throughout the state who for years have helped bear the brunt of the struggle. Karel's backers are the undemocratic democrats and the Stalwart republican bosses.

"Wisconsin progressives resent and repudiate McGovern's course in waiting until he was safely nominated and then exhibiting the bull moose pin under his coat collar. They are expressing their resentment in no uncertain terms. They are expressing their resentment in no uncertain terms. But the bull moosing of McGovern should not subject him to punishment by Wisconsin voters in the coming election when the weight of such punishment would not fall upon him but upon the whole state.

His declarations for Roosevelt and the steel trust 'legalized monopoly' program, have no immediate bearing upon the work of our state government during the next two years. The republican platform pledges which he, if elected, is in duty bound to fulfill, have naught of the bull moose taint, and his record of the past two years is sufficient warrant that he will not fail in his future fulfillment of present promises to the voters of Wisconsin.

"A vote for Karel is a vote for reaction and special interests. A vote for McGovern is a vote for continued advancement; it is a vote cast for the progressive movement."

MOOSER FOR WILSON

OREGON CONGRESSIONAL CANDIDATE VOICES APPRECIATION OF DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE FOR PRESIDENT

ALBANY, Oregon, Oct. 14.—"Governor Wilson is a high-minded gentleman and a man of great ability. He is a thorough progressive and if elected will, in my judgment, give the people a progressive administration."

This statement was made here today by John W. Campbell who is the Bull Moose candidate for congress in the first district of Oregon. Mr. Campbell's attitude towards Governor Wilson is typical of the position taken by large numbers of progressives in this state. It is conceded that the third-term candidate injured rather than helped his cause in Oregon, and as a result many who were disposed to vote for him are turning to Governor Wilson.

PROGRESSIVES WILL HAVE OUR SUPPORT

In the present campaign The Tribune will support the republican county ticket.

The campaign for state offices is one of immense importance to the progressive cause. To the disgust of many democratic leaders the control of the state democratic ticket has fallen into the hands of men who make no secret of their purpose to wipe out the progressive laws that have been enacted in this state, and which have caused all legislators, state and national, to turn to Wisconsin for example and precedent.

There exists between the state and the county tickets but one bond of interest. It lies in the fact that the men who are running for county office on the republican ticket are men who have given and are giving aid to the progressive state program, while their opponents are men who in one way and another—some of them in every way—have opposed the progressive legislation put forth by past administrations. That is the relative position of the respective members of the two county tickets today, for the democratic politicians of the county are making a noble effort to swallow Karel and his reactionary program for the sake of "harmony."

The Tribune believes in the progressive program, and therefore it feels obligated to support for the county administrative offices those men who are part and parcel of the progressive movement, provided they offer to the public promise of a suitable degree of efficiency in the offices to which they aspire. In the present instance we believe the progressive republican ticket, as a ticket and as individuals, offers even more in the way of businesslike administration of county affairs than does its opponent, and therefore we shall urge its election.

PLAN TO REGULATE THE PRICE OF GOLD

A plan for international regulation of the price of gold has been proposed by Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale university, before the International Congress of Chambers of Commerce, in session at Boston. It was the contention of this speaker that fluctuations in money value—so to speak—is directly connected with and largely due to fluctuations in the world's production of gold, the basic element of the currency of practically all modern nations. The more gold produced, in other words, the cheaper the basic gold dollar becomes in comparison with other commodities, including the price of labor. Which, of course, upholds the argument of those who contend that present prevailing high prices all over the world are directly due to a steady increase in the world's output of gold for several years past.

Professor Fisher, however, believes this is a thing that could be and should be regulated by nations through international agreement, and the plan he proposes is simplicity itself. He would restore the old law of seigniorage, under which a government imposes a charge on the producer or owner of gold bullion for converting it into coin, and he would have this seigniorage regulated by an "official index number of the average price level of all other stable commodities." In other words, when the relative price of gold is low, as measured by the average price of other commodities, the bullion owner would receive less for his bullion, thereby tending to restrict the production of gold until a stable level was restored. And at all times, so Professor Fisher claims, the tendency would be to keep the gold dollar, or other unit of currency, on a stable basis, at the same time leaving separate commodities subject to the usual influences of supply and demand.

The theory is an ingenious one, to say the least, and is likely to attract the attention of financial experts all over the world. The present system is concededly imperfect, for it not only offers a premium to the gold bullion producer, when the relative price of gold is low, but imposes a double burden on the public generally by unduly encouraging gold production at the very time when commodity prices are being forced upward through an already too plentiful supply of gold. The proposed plan of relief is therefore worth considering, and it is not unlikely the time will come when something of this kind will be actually undertaken by the leading nations of the world.

 Chairman of board, Pere Marquette Railroad company.

Nearly all of these companies control or own a large number of other companies.
 Mr. Perkins is a shrewd man. He has millions of dollars invested in the various corporations and trusts above enumerated. Several of them are now being prosecuted by the Taft administration. Is he financing Mr. Roosevelt's campaign in order to have in the White house a friend or an enemy? William Allen White of Kansas in an appeal for contributions to the third campaign fund, said:

"The men who finance the campaign control the administration."
 Does the country want an administration which is controlled by a director in fifteen different trusts and corporations?

GREAT CUSTODIANS OF "LAW AND ORDER"

Now and then a fight within the camp gives us a flash at the alarming conditions that obtain on the "inside" of police service in the big cities.

The case of Lieutenant Becker, of New York, is in point. No one who has read the evidence doubts that this "guardian" of the people's homes was in league with the worst of New York's grafters and cutthroats, and that it was he who inspired one of the most brutal murders in the history of the Gotham tenderloin.

The daring of the crime—of his order to do murder "in the presence of the patrolmen"—indicates the strength with which felony is entrenched within the supposed fortress of law and order.

It remains to be seen whether the resources of the "gang" are sufficient to buy or intimidate a jury. Also, one wonders to what extent perjury may prove effective in the defense of men of Becker's stripe and influence.

Insist that every man who runs for office on the plea that he will help repeal some law shall offer some sound substitute for that law.

It cannot be denied that ex-Senator Thurston made a decided impression upon the community.

It becomes daily more apparent that not many voters are going to be hood-winked.

AWARDED $5,000 FOR EYE

Quips and Cranks and Wanton Wiles

Home, Sweet Home
 My dad is on the warpath.
 He says that he is bound To vote for Woodrow Wilson
 For Wilson's safe and sound.
 He's mighty touchy on it,
 He's ready for a fight;
 A chip is on his shoulder.
 Yes, morning, noon and night.

My grandpaw, he is eighty,
 But full of fire and vim;
 He says no darn perfessor.
 Will get a vote from him.
 He is an old line fighter,
 On precedent he's daft;
 No new ideas for grandpaw—
 He's going to vote for Taft.

My brother Bill's a bull moose,
 No use to argify;
 He is so darn progressive,
 For T. R. he would die,
 He's fighting every minute,
 He yells, he shrieks,
 And he breathes fire and brimstone
 And sulphur when he speaks.

They start to scrap at breakfast
 And yell the whole day through.
 And they cuss one another
 As no kinsfolk should do.
 It ain't no place for children,
 It's time for me to roam.
 I don't hear no fit language,
 Just now around our home.

A Parable
 Frederick W. Taylor, the advocate of scientific management, said the other day in Philadelphia:

"Two men stood watching a steam shovel at work. With a clatter and a roar the shovel bit into a steep bank, closed on a carload of earth and dumped it onto a waiting freight train."

"It drives me wild," said the first onlooker, "to see that monster taking the bread out of good men's mouths. Look at it. Why, it's filling up those flat cars faster than a hundred men with picks and shovels could do it."

"But the other onlooker shook his head and answered:
 "See here, mister, if it would be better to employ a hundred men with picks and shovels on this job, wouldn't be better still, by your way of thinking, to employ a thousand men with forks and tablespoons?"

Optimists
 For noncommittal brevity of speech, commend us to the Yankee lord of the soil. One such, who was obliged to make a physician daily visits had an unvarying answer to the question, "How do you feel today?"

"Well," he would reply, showing as little interest in the subject as possible, "I ain't no wuss."

Further than that he wished to say nothing, and it took the cunning of a serpent to discover his real feelings.

A man who was knocked down in the street by a snowslide, was assailed by a sympathizing crowd with condolence and question.
 "Did it hurt you?" inquired one of his rescuers, as he brushed the snow from the clothes of the well powdered victim.

"Well," was the cautious answer, "it ain't done me no good."—Argonaut.

Why He Wanted to Know

The man in the upper berth leaned over its edge, and jamming his frown firmly down on his brow, cried in a harsh coarse voice that was audible above the rattle and rumble of the engine:

"Hi, you, down there. Are you rich?"

"Hey?" ejaculated the man in the lower berth, almost swallowing his Adam's apple. "Whazzer mazzur?"

"I say are you rich?"

"What's that, sir? Rich? What do you mean by waking me up in the middle of the night to ask me such a question as that?"

"I want to know—that's why."

"Well, then, confound you, I am rich. Now I hope your curiosity is satisfied and you will let me go to sleep."

"Very rich?"

"Millionaire, confound you. Now shut up, and—"

"Well, then, why in torment don't you charter a whole train to do your snoring in?"—Searchlight.

One on Worthington

A story that caused much amusement was told around the tinner in Wall street offices concerning B. A. Worthington, president of the Chicago & Alton railroad.

In the summer of 1911 Mr. Worthington took his family to a farm house in Indiana where quiet and rest seemed to be assured. Close by, however, was a pig sty, the presence of which was indicated under certain wind conditions. Mr. Worthington planned to go there again this year, but wrote the farmer that the pigsty would have to be attended to before he engaged accommodations.

The farmer's reply was brief:
 "Can accommodate you all right. There have been no hogs on the place since you left."—New York Telegram.

GRANDMOTHERS USED SAGE TEA

To Darken the Hair and Restore Gray and Faded Hair to Its Natural Color.

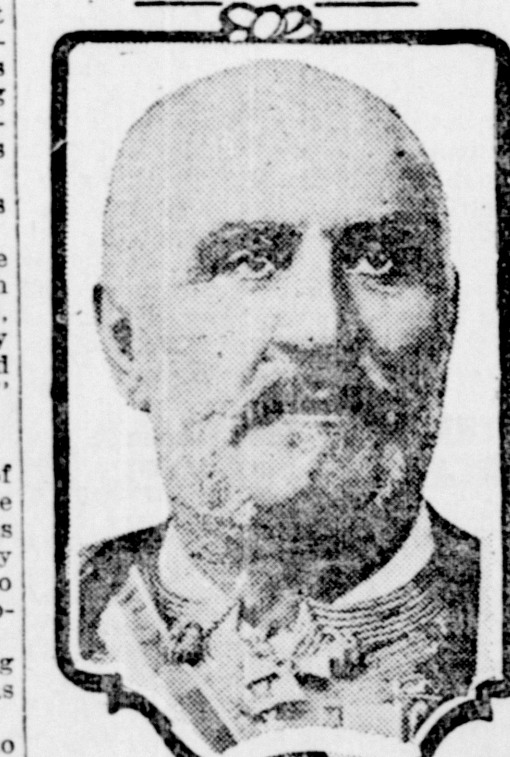

It is easier to preserve the color of the hair than to restore it, although it is possible to do both. Our grandmothers understood the secret. They made a "sage tea," and their dark, glossy hair long after middle life was due to this fact. Our mothers have gray hairs before they are fifty, but they are beginning to appreciate the wisdom of our grandmothers in using "sage tea" for their hair and are fast following suit.

The present generation has the advantage of the past in that it can get a ready-to-use preparation called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy. As a scalp tonic and color restorer this preparation is vastly superior to the ordinary "sage tea" made by our grandmothers.

The growth and beauty of the hair depends on a healthy condition of the scalp. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy quickly kills the dandruff germs which rob the hair of its life, color and lustre, makes the scalp clean and healthy, gives the hair strength, color and beauty, and makes it grow.

FIRST TO DECLARE WAR ON THE TURKS

King and Queen of Montenegro.

In view of the fact that Montenegro is no larger than a handful of counties in an American state, it may be imagined that it took some nerve for King Nicholas of that little kingdom to declare war on the Turks. However, before he did this bold thing Nicholas had assurances from the other Balkan states and from Greece that they would join him soon. Montenegro's excuse for declaring war against Turkey was a long standing quarrel over the boundary question.

 Lord Grey de Ruthyn, who is a simple rancher at Roundup, Musselshell county, Montana, is so enamored of western life that it is doubtful if he will ever return to claim his proud and ancient title.

"Traveling in Montana," said a New York editor, "I met Lord Grey de Ruthyn when he was Cecil Clifton. He expressed then a great scorn for your aristocrat or snob."

"Talking about aristocratic snobs over a pipe and glass in Musselshell, the future Lord Grey de Ruthyn gave a loud laugh and said:

"Why, the English aristocrat is so ridiculously exclusive that, in shaving, he will often cut himself."—San Francisco Chronicle.

HE COMES UP SMILING

Copyright Bobbs-Merrill Co.

"Father," she asked, "what's the matter? Have your sins found you out?"

The general waited for the slatternly maid-servant to give them their breakfast and leave the room before he spoke.

"We have been robbed," he said calmly, casually, as one would mention the weather. His tones implied that he was perfectly willing to listen to reason, but that he knew who the thief was and anything stated to the contrary was not reason.

"I spend my whole life, father," said Henrietta, "finding the articles you have been robbed of. Your system is all right. You have a place for everything, but you never remember the place."

The Watermelon pulled out the linings of his empty pockets and held out his wrists that they might see the cuffs tied together by a bit of string.

Henrietta and Billy stared.

"I have never had a thief in my room," cried Billy. "I would like to see how it feels."

"I'm not robbed," said Henrietta, making a hurried examination of the small-sized trunk she carried as a hand-bag.

"It's the stable-boy," said the general. "I noticed him carefully last night. He would not look any one in the face."

"He goes home every night," objected Henrietta. "Mrs. Parker told me so."

"That's no reason he couldn't come back," said the general.

"No," said Henrietta. "But because a boy won't look at you is no reason to say that he is a thief."

"He does look at you, anyway," said Billy innocently. "He looked at me."

"It was clever in him to take our check-books," said Bartlett.

"He will forge our names," declared the general. "I made out a check to pay for the board here, signed it, too, I remember, and then I found some cash and thought I would use that and went to bed and forgot to destroy the check. I know it was the stable-boy, for my room has a balcony in front, over the porch, and last night it was so warm I left the door open."

"Maybe it was," agreed Henrietta. "I hate to suspect him, though."

CHAPTER XVII.

Alphonse Rides Away

"The stable-boy would have access to the back of the house, too," said the general, who felt that if he had not become a general and had escaped being a master mechanic, he would have been a famous detective.

"Yes," agreed the Watermelon. "But I don't think it is the boy. I was out until after eleven, and just before I came in I saw him drive up with the girl. They had been out to some dance and he left her and drove on."

The girl appeared in the doorway wiping a plate, slipshod and awkward. Henrietta blushed, the general was painfully confused and the other three turned their attention hastily to their food.

"Want anything?" asked the girl.

"No, thank you," replied Henrietta gently, feeling that in judging the stable-boy she had somehow injured the girl.

The girl lingered a moment, glanced significantly at the clock, and went out.

"Who could it be?" asked Billy, pleasantly excited.

"Why, this is terrible," said Henrietta. "If the boy didn't do it, there is no one else who could have, but the family."

"It looks that way," admitted the Watermelon.

"What shall we do?" gasped Billy. "What shall we pay them with?"

The slatternly girl again appeared in the doorway much to the general's nervousness.

"Want anything?" she asked, and glanced again at the clock.

"No," said Henrietta. "No, thank you."

"I will speak to Parker," declared the general as the girl left.

"I wish you didn't have to," sighed Henrietta. "It's horrid to lose your money, but it must be so much worse to need money so that you would steal it."

"But that's the test of honesty," declared the general. "To need money and not steal."

"I know," admitted Henrietta, pushing aside her coffee cup. "I do admire strong people who can resist, but I'm so much sorer for the weak who can't. It's pitiful, that's what it is."

"Yes," cried Billy, as usual carried away by her feelings. "Let's not say a thing."

The door opened for the third time, but instead of the ineffective maid-servant, the farmer's wife, fat, red-cheeked, good-natured, entered.

She approached the table and smiled jovially from one to the other.

"I hope you liked everything," she said with a gentle hint in her tones that they had lingered around the breakfast table long enough.

"Have you had plenty, General? Can't I get you some more coffee, Miss Crossman?"

"No, thank you," said the general, confused and unhappy.

Mrs. Parker smiled still. "I am glad you liked everything. Your man should be back soon. He hasn't had any breakfast yet."

"Where'd he go?" asked the general, feeling that that was safe enough ground.

"My husband thinks that he went out in one of the automobiles very early, for he found one of them gone."

"Did your husband see him go?" asked Bartlett.

"Oh, no, but he thinks he must have gone because there is only one automobile."

"Oh, yes," said Henrietta, and stared at the others, fearful of reading her own crushing suspicion in their eyes.

Alphonse, the quiet, blase, peerless Alphonse? Could it be he? That Alphonse had gone for an early morning spin lured by the dew on the clover fields, by the sweet chorus of awakening birds, borne by the unsuppressible desire to see the shy, sweet advent of a new day creeping up the flushed and rosy sky, was wholly out of the question. Alphonse's soul, in the early morning hours, was filled only with the beauty and glory of bed. The general had always been forced to arouse his serving-man, and the process had often been painful, calling for sternness and suppressed wrath on the general's part. Alphonse a thief was more believable than Alphonse getting out of bed uncalled.

Billy was the first to speak.

The Oldest Blood Disease

The most ancient history furnishes evidence that mankind suffered with Contagious Blood Poison. The disease has come down through all the ages and is to-day, as it has ever been, a scourge and blight upon humanity. The symptoms of Contagious Blood Poison are the same as in its earliest history, but its cure has now become an accomplished fact, whereas, it was once considered an incurable infection. S. S. S. is an antidote for the virus of Contagious Blood Poison, and cures it in all its forms and stages. S. S. S. possessing both purifying and tonic properties routs out all the poison, and at the same time builds up the general health. A person who has been cured of Contagious Blood Poison by the use of S. S. S. need not fear a return of its symptoms at any future time. This great medicine checks the progress of the poison and gradually but surely all sores and eruptions heal, ulcerated mouth and throat pass away, the hair stops falling out, copper-colored spots fade away, and when the blood is thoroughly purified no sign of the disease is left. BJORN NELSON DIES SUDDENLY

Old Resident of Bostwick Valley Is Stricken with Paralysis Yesterday

Bjorn Nelson, for many years a resident of this vicinity, died of a stroke of paralysis at his home in Bostwick valley yesterday. He had been ill for several years.

Mr. Nelson was born in Hougou Sund, Norway, on March 16, 1828, and he was eighty-four years old. He was one of the oldest residents of this vicinity, as he came to La Crosse in 1854 and remained in the city for two years. He then went to Bostwick Valley, where he settled on a farm and he has lived there for the last fifty-six years.

Mr. Nelson is survived by eight children, Andrew, Bert, Mont and Kernel Nelson of La Crosse; Samuel, Bernard and Miss Mary Nelson of Bostwick valley and Miss Lina Nelson of Balsam Lake, Wis.

The funeral will probably be held Wednesday at the home in Bostwick Valley, but the arrangements have not been completed as yet.

EDBERG FUNERAL HELD TOMORROW

The funeral of Mrs. Agnes M. Edberg, who died Saturday morning, will be held from St. John's church at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning.

Surviving Mrs. Edberg are her husband, George Edberg; four daughters, Mrs. Mary Ripley of Seattle, Wash., Mrs. Zoa Truax of North Dakota, Miss Charlotte Edberg of North Dakota, and Miss Frances Edberg of La Crosse, and two sons, E. A. Edberg of Kansas City, Mo., and Edgar Edberg of La Crosse.

Clapp Committee Takes Up Cost of Campaign Before Baltimore Convention

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—The Clapp committee today had every appearance of a democratic national powwow. Democratic chieftains met today to tell how much it cost respectively, to battle at Baltimore for Governor Wilson, Representative Underwood and Governor Harmon, leading presidential candidates. Much interest was manifested by the committee, as it has already learned that the candidacy of Speaker Clark, the other one of the "big four" candidates, cost $50,000.

Chairman McCombs of the democratic national committee, who was Wilson's pre-convention manager, was here to divulge his experience. Vice Chairman McAdoo of the democratic national committee, was also here. Senator Bankhead of Alabama, Oscar Underwood's chief supporter, was called to tell how much money he received, and if any came from the Southern railway, as has been charged. Governor Harmon's expenses were to be furnished by Lieut. Gov. Nichols of Ohio.

Judge Parker, of New York, and Rover Sullivan of Chicago, were the prominent democrats summoned to testify today.

After a holiday, Wednesday, the committee will return its attention to bull moose expenses securing information from George W. Perkins and Frank Munsey.

DENIES EXTRAVAGANCE

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR STATE TREASURER ISSUES FIGURES TO REFUTE BOLENS' STATEMENT

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 14.—In a statement issued by Henry Johnson, republican candidate for state treasurer, denial is made of the charge of Henry W. Bolens, democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, that it costs taxpayers of the state five millions a year for salaries of state employees. Johnson shows that the total annual cost for salaries, including all state schools, is $3,164,159. The only part of this paid directly by the people is $1,158,915, for the support of the university. The remainder was paid by railroad, inheritance and other taxes. Johnson says the treasury will remit a million dollars in taxes this year and still have enough for current expenses.

MILWAUKEE JUDGE FORCES MASHERS TO JOIN GIDEONS TO ESCAPE THE "WORKS"

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 14.—Abraham Wilson and William George, Chicago travelingmen, today made application for membership in the Order of Gideons in compliance with an order of Judge N. B. Neelen. The men were arrested charged with flouting. "I am going to send you to the house of correction," said the judge when the men faced the bar.

"My God, Judge," they chorused, "that will ruin us."

An almost tearful plea moved the judge to ask the men if they had heard of the Gideon order of Christian traveling men. They agreed they had.

"Then," thundered the court, "sentence is that you join the Gideons."

The prisoners agreed and were discharged.

OFF WITH CORSET SAY DENVERITES

DENVER, Colo., Oct. 14.—A declaration of independence against the corset has been issued by the Colorado chapter of the Mothers' congress.

"Off with the corset. Freedom forever from tight lacing," was the slogan voiced at a meeting of the chapter, which also figuratively speaking, decided to kick off high heels, and tube skirts.

The sentiment of the chapter was expressed by its president, Mrs. Fred Dick, who said: "The large waist line has come to stay. The next thing for us mothers to take up is the movement for women's emancipation from the corset. The time has come for sensible dress reform. High heels must go. I think the coming of tight skirts a good thing. I do not speak of the tube skirt—that must go—but of the moderately tight skirts. Think of the yards and yards of goods needed in the old time skirt, and how foolish a woman felt to wear it. The moderately tight skirt gives perfect freedom to the limbs and has come to stay with the large waist line."

IRON WORKERS' EXECUTIVE BOARD ALL GUILTY, INSISTS DISTRICT ATTORNEY

Moulton H. Davis and Philip A. Cooley (at the top), and H. W. Lilligleiner.

That the executive board of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers deliberately planned the destruction of scores of bridges and buildings in all parts of the country, not erected by union labor, is the contention of U. S. District Attorney Charles Miller, who has charge of the government's prosecution of the alleged dynamiters at Indianapolis. Three of the more prominent members of this board are Philip A. Cooley, of New Orleans; H. W. Lilligleiner, of Denver, and M. H. Davis, of West Chester, Pa.

After Measles Whooping Cough or Scarlet Fever is a critical period—weakened throats, delicate bronchial tubes and unsound lungs often follow; sometimes impaired sight or hearing.

But if SCOTT'S EMULSION is taken promptly and regularly after the fever subsides it quickly and effectually restores appetite, strength and flesh.

Scott's Emulsion contains the elements nature requires to restore sound health.

Fourteen years ago I was on good terms with Mr. Lorimer as with every other member of congress against whom I knew nothing and nobody did. I know anything against him then, but when Mr. Lorimer was elected senator his character had become a matter not only of statewide but of nation wide notoriety and if Mr. Deneen, who was then governor, and who advised Lorimer as he has himself testified, to take the senatorship and who congratulated him upon his election—if Governor Deneen at that time was such an innocent lamb as not to know about Lorimer, and about what was going on under his own eyes, in the jackpot legislature than Governor Deneen is altogether too innocent a creature to be allowed at large in American political life.

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—Colonel Roosevelt's reply today to the statement of Governor Deneen accusing the former president of having been friendly with Senator Lorimer, contained a sarcastic sting directed at the Illinois executive. The colonel said:

UPSET STOMACH AND INDIGESTION

"Pape's Diapepsin" cures sour, gassy stomachs in five minutes

Time it! In five minutes all stomach distress will go. No indigestion, heartburn, sourness or belching of gas, acid or eructations of undigested food, no dizziness, bloating, foul breath or headache.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in regulating upset stomachs. It is the surest, quickest and most certain remedy in the whole world and besides it is harmless.

Millions of men and women now eat their favorite foods without fear—they know now it is needless to have a bad stomach.

Please, for your sake, get a large fifty cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store and put your stomach right. Don't keep on being miserable—life is too short—you are not here long, so make your stay agreeable. Eat what you like and digest it; enjoy it, without dread of rebellion in the stomach.

Diapepsin belongs in your home anyway. It should be kept handy, should one of the family eat something which doesn't agree with them or in case of an attack of indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis or stomach derangement at day time or during the night it is there to give the quickest, surest relief known.—Advertisement.

SOCIETY

NEWMAN-SEAMAN WEDDING.

Miss Mary J. Newman, daughter of Mrs. John Newman of 2004 Green Bay street, and Mr. Adna W. Seaman were united in marriage Saturday at 6 p. m. by Dr. Robert B. Condon. The bride couple were attended by Miss Addie Newman, sister of the bride, and Mr. George Barber. Little Miss Pearl Newman, niece of the bride, acted as flower bearer.

The bride was attired in white voile trimmed with Irish point lace. Her attendant was dressed in white lineweave. The bride carried bride's roses and her attendant white carnations. After the ceremony the bridal party repaired to the home of the bride's mother, where a reception was held from 7 to 11 o'clock. The house was tastefully decorated in autumn colors. Noticeable among the flowers was an immense bouquet of pansies from the bride's brother of Colorado Springs.

Mr. and Mrs. Seaman begin house-keeping immediately at 1930 Green Bay street.

Among the out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hussa and son Joseph, Mr. and Mrs. A. Darling, Miss Nellie Riley of Bangor, Wis., Margaret Newman, Cashton, and Mrs. J. F. Seaman of Colorado Springs.

STAG DINNERS.

Mr. F. P. Hixon will entertain about twenty of his friends at a dinner this evening in honor of his fiftieth birthday.

Robert Hurlgen, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Hurlgen, entertained at a dinner today in honor of his eleventh birthday. His guests were Henry Rooney, Jr., Carl Van Auken, Edward Evans, Everett Johnson, Julius Miller, Jack and Newell Holley and Percy Morley.

CARD PARTY.

Mrs. Levi Withee entertained at cards Saturday afternoon. There were two tables of bridge and one of five hundred. Mrs. F. H. Hankerson took the bridge prize and Mrs. Collieran the one at five hundred. The guests were Mesdames Alex Hyslop, Elizabeth Holmes, C. S. Sherman, C. W. Lewis, F. H. Hankerson, Edward Evans, Wm. Collieran, Jessie Holway, F. A. Copeland, Alex Paul, Miss Jennie Smith and Miss Alice Wheeler.

in time. Hooper out, Marquard to Merkle to Fletcher to Merkle, when he was caught napping by the Rube's quick throw to first. Yerkes fled to Snodgrass. Speaker walked, after having drawn two strikes and fouling off two good ones. Speaker stole second. Marquard's throw being out of Meyers' reach, Lewis fled to Devore. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Marquard showed a lot of smoke in his opening tryout and Chief Meyers had the greatest difficulty in holding on to sizzling shots. The Sox evidently came up with instructions to make him work and it required twenty-two pitched balls to dispose of the half session.

NEW YORK—Devore out, Gardner to Stahl, hitting a bad one after the count as three and two. Doyle beat out a slow grounder to Yerkes. Doyle made a bluff steal, dashing toward second, forcing a throw out of Cady and then beat the throw back to first. Cady's throw to second as right in the bull's eye. Doyle stole second, getting a big lead on O'Brien's slow delivery and going into the bag with time to spare.

Snodgrass fanned with three and two, Murray safe on a slow grounder to Wagner, on which the Sox shortstop came in lightning fast and made a desperate but vain try. Doyle took third on the play. Doyle scored when O'Brien made a balk toward first and Murray took second. O'Brien's balk was a bluff throw to first in the making of which he failed to take his foot off the rubber. McGraw instantly howled and Klem sustained him. Merkle doubled to right, scoring Murray. The first baseman's slam paralleled the right foul line about a foot inside the safe territory. Herzog doubled down the left foul line, scoring Merkle. Herzog's connection was with the first ball pitched. Meyers singled to Wagner in deep short, Herzog getting no farther than third. Meyers stole second, Herzog scoring. Cady threw to Yerkes to catch Meyers and Yerkes' throw to the plate was low and rolled to the stand, Fletcher and Meyers worked the squeeze play, the Indian scoring on Fletcher's drive down third base line. Fletcher was out, O'Brien to Stahl. Five runs, six hits, one error.

The Giants held a swatfest at the expense of Buck O'Brien in the opening stanza, touching the Boston spitball for six safe slams, two of which were good for extra bases. It was the first real batting of the series.

Second Inning
BOSTON—Gardner got a life when Marquard pulling down a bouncer bounced it over the lot for a couple of minutes, finally throwing wide when he did make the toss. Stahl singled, dropping a Texas leaguer back of second base. Wagner fanned, the third strike being called. Cady fouled out to Meyers with the count three and two. Engel batting for O'Brien. Engel doubled to left, scoring Gardner and Stahl. The smash hit the fence just inside the left foul line. Hooper fouled out to Meyers. Two runs, two hits, one error.

The Sox continued their policy of waiting them out on the Rube nearly every batter either getting a quick slash or taking three and two.

NEW YORK—Collins replaced O'Brien. The count against O'Brien was five runs, six hits in one inning. Marquard popped out to Stahl. Devore fanned on three pitched balls. Doyle fled out to Speaker. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Collins was there in his opening round, disposing of the first three Giants up on five pitched balls, every one of which cut the plate.

Third Inning
BOSTON—Yerkes singled over second. Speaker fled to Snodgrass. Lewis fouled out to Devore. Gardner fled to Murray, who made the catch backed up against the right field fence. No runs, one hit, no errors.

The first two men in the second half of the third drew one and three, and the Rube continued to work out on each batter up. The game was the slowest of the series, but two and a half innings being played in the first hour.

NEW YORK—Snodgrass fled to Yerkes. Murray singled to right and was out trying to stretch it into a double. Hooper to Yerkes. Hooper's long shot to second was a splendid assist. Yerkes making the catch without moving out of his tracks. Merkle beat out an infield hit to Gardner. Merkle died stealing. Cady to Wagner. No runs, two hits, no errors.

The Giants' effort to rush the Boston defense fizzled miserably in their half of the third. Both Murray, who tried to stretch a single into a double, and Merkle who attempted to steal, were killed off at the second bag with an ease that made their attempts look amateurish.

Fourth Inning
BOSTON—Stahl beat out a slow grounder to Herzog, getting the benefit of a hair line decision for which Evans was hissed, the first adverse demonstration against an umpire made during the series. Wagner's long fly to Snodgrass was pulled down by the center fielder, who made a wonderful running catch against the fence—a fitting companion piece for Devore's stellar stunt that snatched the Giants' victory at Boston. It was the first piece of brilliant work contributed by the Giant infielder during the series. Cady's single to right, a fly dropped back of Murray, Stahl going to third, Collins hit into a double play, Cady being nipped, Fletcher to Doyle, the latter throwing to Merkle for the put out on Collins. No runs, two hits, no errors.

The Sox switched their style of attack on Marquard during the fourth smashing the first ball over. The shift promised to net runs until a splendid double play, coupled with a sensational catch by Snodgrass disposed of the side.

NEW YORK—Herzog fled to Speaker. Meyers tripled to left center, a smash which would have been good for an easy home run for a fast runner. Fletcher fled to Speaker, whose throw to Cady chased Meyers back to third after he had started for home. The Indian's play was coached by McGraw, who refused to let the catcher take a chance against Speaker's justly celebrated throwing arm. Marquard out, Yerkes to Stahl. No runs, one hit, one error.

The Indian's hard slam in the Giants' half of the fourth should have given them another run when Fletcher's long fly went to deep center, but when the Indian failed to come home on the play the lights dimmed and were snuffed by Marquard's easy out.

Fifth Inning
BOSTON—Hooper fled to Murray, close to the right grand stand wall. Yerkes out on a fly in the same territory. Murray landing the second one without shifting his position. Speaker fled to Herzog. No runs, no hits, no errors.

The Sox again started in to clout the first ball and the first snappy half of the game resulted, as every smash went into a Giant's outstretched mitt.

NEW YORK—Devore dropped a safe one back of second. Doyle popped out to Wagner. Snodgrass got a hand for his spectacular catch when he came to bat and responded by sending a line fly to Hooper, whose throw to Stahl doubled Devore at first.

First. Devore misjudged the ball, thinking it was safe and was half way to third when Hooper caught the ball. No runs, no hits, no errors.

The Giants tried desperately for a rally in the fifth when Devore was safe, but Collins was going good and disposed of the top of the Giants' batting order with ease.

Sixth Inning
BOSTON—Lewis fouled out to Meyers. Gardner fanned. Stahl fanned. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Marquard had struck his stride in the first half of the sixth and was winding his fast ones over with smoke that would have made Joe Wood envious. He retired the first three Sox up, the last two on strike-outs, Stahl himself being killed out with three balls, all directly over the plate. It was easily the Rube's best inning.

NEW YORK—Murray fled to Hooper. Merkle popped out to Stahl. Herzog got a life and Cady an error when the latter muffed a high pop foul. Both Cady and Gardner went after it and both stopped before getting under it. Herzog fled to Yerkes. No runs, no hits, one error.

Collins exhibited good control and kept the Giants in the hole most of the time. Herzog was the only batter in this inning who appeared to have a chance, and his final smash was an easy out.

Seventh Inning
BOSTON—Wagner out, Marquard to Merkle. Cady fled to Snodgrass. Collins fled to Murray, close to the right field fence. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Marquard retired the side on seven pitched balls and each of three men up smashed the latter hard but in every instance the hits went directly to waiting Giant fielders.

NEW YORK—Meyers out, Collins to Stahl. Fletcher fled to Speaker. Marquard fled to Speaker. No runs, no hits, no errors.

For the sixth consecutive inning, Collins disposed of the first three Giants with the assistance of his able team mates, but eighteen men having faced him during the six innings he was in the box.

Eighth Inning
BOSTON—Hooper fled to Snodgrass. Yerkes' slow grounder was just beyond Doyle's reach and counted for a single. Speaker fled to Murray. Lewis fled to Murray. No runs, one hit, no errors.

The Giant outfielders were again busy this session, Marquard putting them over the plate and trusting to the outfielders to pull them down.

NEW YORK—Devore out, Collins to Stahl. Doyle fouled out to Cady. Snodgrass beat out a slow one to Yerkes. Murray up. Snodgrass died stealing. Cady to Wagner. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Ninth Inning
BOSTON—Gardner fled to Snodgrass. Stahl fled to Murray. Wagner out, Herzog to Merkle. No runs, no hits, no errors.

BRIDGIE WEBBER

the records from the conspirators' own lips, he said he would introduce the independent evidence to make their story material. Whitman insisted just before court opened that he had enough with who were not a part of the alleged murder conspiracy to convince the jury that the amazing tale related by Rose was absolutely true. One of these witnesses is Mrs. Rosenthal, widow of the murdered gambler, but the identity of the others will be withheld until they are actually sworn.

Should the state's chief witnesses stick to their stories and each confirm the other, then not alone Becker, but Mrs. Becker and a number of police witnesses will be called by the defense. McIntyre also has complete records compiled for him by private investigators of the characters of the state witnesses, which he will present if he believes they are needed to discredit the prosecution.

Because of the manner in which Goff is forcing the trial ahead, it was believed today that it would reach the jury some time next week, a record in this state. Should the verdict be adverse to Becker, there will certainly be an appeal and McIntyre already has more than 1,000 exceptions to Justice Goff's rulings, on which to carry the case up to the highest court.

Mrs. Rosenthal to Change?

District Attorney Whitman decided on Bridgie Webber as his chief witness today when he reached court. He said that he had heard a rumor that Mrs. Rosenthal was going to change her testimony when she was sworn. Whitman left the impression that he believed his chief witness had been reached by friends of the defense and he said that he had sent two of his assistants to her home to interview her.

According to Whitman and chief assistant, Frank Moss, should Mrs. Rosenthal fail to tell the same story to the jury in the Becker case that she told the grand jury and also made affidavit to in his office, she will first be confronted with this evidence and then prosecuted for perjury.

When the trial opened District Attorney Whitman suddenly shifted his plans and called as his first witness Winfield S. Sheehan, secretary to police Commissioner Waldo.

Before taking the bench, Judge Goff sent for District Attorney Whitman, Attorney McIntyre and some of the newspaper reporters. He said that he was convinced a number of gangsters secured admission to the courtroom on Saturday by means of police cards issued to permit newspaper representatives to pass through the police lines. As a result Goff said, admission hereafter would be on cards signed by him personally.

Threaten McIntyre

Justice Goff was especially angered over the fact that before Attorney McIntyre left the courtroom on Saturday night he was openly threatened by an unknown individual who told him that if he reflected on the wife of Jack Rose he would be killed.

Sheehan was called to identify certain police orders sent to Becker and Becker's signed replies, the intention of the state being to have Becker's signature established.

It was reported in the court room that Whitman had letters in his possession signed by Becker which he claimed would prove the partnership between Becker and Rosenthal, and the relations between Becker and Rose.

W. F. McCombs Tells the Clapp Committee All Details of Pre-Convention Struggle

PERSONALLY RESPONSIBLE

Many of the Campaign Debts Were Incurred by Manager in Private Capacity

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—A full and complete history of the funds used in the Wilson pre-convention campaign was today told the Clapp investigating committee by W. F. McCombs, campaign manager for the democratic nominee. That he personally underwrote the campaign for $10,000 and was personally responsible for many of the debts incurred was a statement by McCombs, who supplied a list of contributions and their makers, and a complete account of expenditures.

The Wilson campaign was "close to the edge" all the time, Mr. McCombs insisted, and greatly needed funds. Only $3,000 was spent in the state of Illinois, the manager declared. The largest contribution was from a party of Princeton friends of the governor, $85,800.

McCombs Called
William F. McCombs, chairman of the democratic national committee, the first witness called before the Clapp committee today, presented a detailed list of contributions to Governor Wilson's pre-convention battle.

McCombs said he knew nothing of 1904 or 1908 contributions.

"I began the campaign about June 1, 1911," said McCombs. "It commenced in my office and for a month or so I bore all expenses out of my own pocket."

"I underwrote the campaign to the extent of $10,000 myself," said McCombs.

The total contributions were $193,585.81.

List of Contributions

McCombs read the list of contributions. They included:
F. Penfield of Philadelphia, $12,000; W. F. McCombs, $11,000; Charles R. Crane, $10,000; Cleveland M. Dodge and Princeton friends, $85,500; H. J. Barrett, $2,500; G. F. Handel, $2,500; R. Magill, $2,500; A. I. Elkins, $12,500; Harvey Thomas, $6,500; Daniel F. Platt, $2,500; Henry Morgenthau, $20,000; Joseph F. Guffey, $1,850; Samuel Untermeyer, $25,000, and collected by Jacob M. Schiff, $2,500; Nathan Straus, $250.

"The campaign was not financed by any of the states," continued McCombs, submitting a detailed account of the entire Wilson expenses aggregating $208,183.05, a deficit of unpaid bills amounting to $14,617.

"The list includes practically all of the money used in the entire country except that raised by the local and state committees," added McCombs. He gave the names of Wilson leaders in various states who would know of expenditures.

REBECCAS TO HOLD

DISTRICT CONVENTION

Representatives of about fifteen Rebecca lodges will hold a district convention in the Odd Fellows' building of La Crosse, Wednesday. All of the officers of the state grand lodge are expected to be present. The visiting Rebeccas will be the guests of Myron P. Lindsey Lodge No. 53 of La Crosse. The convention will close with a big banquet in the evening.

Among the lodges to be represented at the meeting are those of Bangor, Tomah, Fountain City, Sparta, Cashton and Viroqua, composing the Eighth district of Wisconsin. Mrs. Ruth Loneragan, of Grantsburg, president of the state assembly, is to be present at the meeting.

The district meeting is to be held in the afternoon, followed by a banquet at 6 o'clock, after which the regular initiatory work will be put on.

COLUMBUS DAY

Winona, Arcadia and Baraboo Join with Local Council in Observing Anniversary

BANQUET CLOSES PROGRAM

Famous Singer Feature of Banquet Program; Several Prominent Men Speak

More than 400 Knights of Columbus of the Winona, Arcadia, Baraboo and La Crosse councils took part in the joint celebration of the 420th anniversary of the landing of Columbus in America, here yesterday.

The La Crosse Knights met the visiting delegation at the Milwaukee depot at 9:30 yesterday morning and all joined the procession to the cathedral, where they attended mass in a body. The new $6,000 pipe organ which was recently installed in the cathedral was used for the first time at the celebration of mass yesterday morning.

Opened Saturday
Celebration of Columbus day began here Saturday night when the first degree was exemplified at the old Y. M. C. A. building. At 9 o'clock Sunday morning the local knights assembled at the Linker hall and later marched to the Milwaukee depot to meet the visiting knights.

Following the celebration of pontifical high mass by Rt. Rev. Bishop James Schwebach dinner was served at St. Joseph's hall by the ladies of St. Joseph's cathedral. The sermon was preached by the Rt. Rev. Bishop P. R. Heffron of Winona.

All the knights assembled at the Y. M. C. A. hall at 1:30 where the second and third degree were exemplified. Seven new members were initiated.

Banquet

The feature of the observance of Columbus day was the banquet held at the Linker hall at 6 o'clock last evening. Music was furnished by the Kreutz orchestra which rendered the following selections.

LOCAL CAMPAIGN

GETS WARMED UP

All Factions Including Moose Get Down to Real Business This Week

RECORD OF NEW JERSEY HERE

Senator Billed to "Answer La Follette" at Linker Hall Tomorrow Night

La Crosse county politics and politicians settled down to real business today and from the schedule prepared by the three chief contenders it is probable that this will be the busiest week in the campaign for all parties. Speeches will be made by both democrats and republicans in nearly every town in the county and the bull moose bunch break into the game again with a rally at Linkers' hall tomorrow evening. There will be no out-of-town speakers in this city except State Senator George L. Record, of New Jersey, who will expound the Roosevelt doctrines and Hamlin Garland of West Salem who will also speak in the interests of the bull moose campaign at Linker hall tomorrow night. Local speakers will take to the stump almost unanimously.

To Answer La Follette
Senator Record, according to members of the county committee "will answer La Follette" in his speech tomorrow night. He will be preceded and introduced by Hamlin Garland.

According to the democratic schedule, the first rally of the week will be held at West Salem when Judge Thomas H. Henry of Newark, New Jersey, will talk national issues. On Tuesday night C. L. Hood will speak on state questions in the Concordia hall in this city. Wednesday night O. R. Skaar and L. P. Benezet will address an audience in the town hall of Burns. City Attorney A. H. Schubert and Joseph Boschert will speak at the town of Rockland hall and P. W. Mahoney will close the week's program with a speech at Onalaska.

The republican activities as outlined by the county committee today will begin with a meeting of the North Side Republican club at Fjeldstad's hall tonight at which Otto M. Schlachab, candidate for district attorney will be the principal speaker.

Ward committees of eight members each will be appointed at the meeting tonight to carry on the campaign on the north. Mr. Schlachab and Otto Bosshard, candidate for the assembly, will speak in several places in the county on state issues. They are scheduled to speak as follows: Wednesday, the Ten Mile House on the Mormon Coulee road; Thursday, Barre Mills; Friday, the town hall of Burns and Saturday at Burr Oak.

Morris to Durand

Lieutenant Governor Thomas Morris left for Durand today where he will deliver a speech this afternoon. He will speak Wednesday night at Eau Claire. Mr. Morris will speak in several of the larger cities of the state before his return to this county. Governor Francis E. McGovern will speak at the La Crosse Theater October 30 but as yet no other out of town speakers have been arranged for by the county committee. It is expected, however, that Senator R. M. La Follette will deliver an address here before the end of the campaign although no definite date for his appearance has been arranged.

TERM OF CIRCUIT

COURT POSTPONED

The fall term of circuit court was postponed until November 12 by Judge E. C. Higbee today in compliance with a petition which was signed by nearly all of the attorneys of this city. The petition was circulated and presented to the court by George Gordon and Woodward and Lees. So many of the attorneys who have business in the circuit court this term are scheduled to take part in the political campaign that the postponement of court will probably meet with general approval. The Vernon county term will be postponed until December.

Chicago Grain Review

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—Wheat markets were in a turmoil today at the opening and on the local board of trade December and May delivery jumped above the $1 mark. There was an advance of from 2 to 2 1/2 cents on all futures here, immediately followed by a reaction, and prices held firm the remainder of the day at a net gain of 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 cents. In Liverpool great excitement prevailed and prices soared some gains being as high as 3 1/2 pence. The exciting factor was the fear that Balkan situation will mean the closing of the Dardanelles and the shut off of the support of Russian and Danubian supplies.

Corn and oats felt the action in the wheat pit and prices ranged higher.

Provisions were steady at slightly advanced prices.

UP TO MARQUARD TO SAVE GIANTS

Rube, Who Won New York's Only Victory, to Face Wood To-day

SOX WIN WILL END SERIES

Boston Plays Below Form, but Giants' Fielding Is Ragged so Sox Get Jump

(By Grantland Rice)

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—A series of fluttering duck fits at the start, abnormal breaks by both teams—a general helter-skelter with both clubs in the air—and then, with both settled to normal, every day speed, Boston had the class as the early dope has showed, and jumped to the front.

Which is exactly the answer, genial reader, to the highly delicate situation in which the Giants now find themselves after a week's play for the championship of the world. They had their chance in the first three games, with the Red Sox reeling to jump far and away beyond all danger. But while the Red Sox were tottering and playing lop-sided ball in certain spots, the Giants were cracking with even a louder crash, befuddled and muddled their opportunities and today are upon the thin rim of another world's series defeat. For unless Rube Marquard can stop Joe Wood this afternoon—Good night, likewise bum voyage and au revoir.

By the time Manhattan's entry had settled back of first class pitching, Boston's entry had settled likewise and Boston's entry carried enough class to scramble to within easy picking distance of the plum. Where the break is even, the class will tell and Boston in the tight spots has cut in with the class. Hence the present standing of the clubs.

The Situation
What may take place today or later on rests entirely with the boxed details, subject to a later edition.

We can only toy with what has happened and build upon this any prophecies for the future which is now likely to be brief—a short future but a merry one, as you might say.

Before the first battle last Tuesday, the early dope showed Boston leading on form. We rather expected Boston to win, despite the uncertainty of any short series, and 70 per cent of those trailing the game thought likewise.

Then came the shift where we figured New York with a luscious chance to upset the dope. The Red Sox, save in defensive play, were clearly below expected form. Neither Wood nor Collins, her two mainstays through the year, looked to be as impressive as they were tipped to be. The deadly sureness of the Red Sox team in almost every department which featured their play through the American league fight, was evidently out of gear.

And as McGraw had three fine pitchers in tiptop shape, the Polo outlook assumed a highly vermilion hue, fringed with tinnings of gold.

When you hear a man complaining that he hasn't a friend in the world it's a pretty safe bet that he doesn't deserve any.

Give a hustler half a chance and he'll take it all.

Other people's money is the root of much contention.

Anyway, love is blind to the awkwardness of all situations.

INDIANS ROUTED BY HIGHS 53-0

Red and Black Have Easy Time Beating the Tomah Eleven

CAPTAIN WIEBRECHT IS HURT

Halfback's Injured Shoulder May Keep Him Out of Eau Claire Game Saturday

(By Grantland Rice)

The high school football team added another victory to its list Saturday afternoon when they defeated the Tomah Indian football team at League park by the score of 53 to 0. During the first half the Indians were entirely at the mercy of the lighter high school team and could do nothing with the offense put up by the highs. After about three minutes of play Capt. Wiebrecht went over for the first touch down of the game. Strum failed at goal. From then on the highs had everything their own way, skirting the Indians' ends for gains of ten, twenty and thirty yards and scoring touchdowns at will.

The highs received their first serious setback of the season when Captain Wiebrecht tore a ligament in his shoulder during the first half. It is not known how serious the injury will prove to be but there is a possibility that he will not be able to be at his position in the Eau Claire game Saturday which loss will be a great handicap to the highs. Wiebrecht left Saturday's game in the first half after he was hurt.

The first half of the game was featured by long gains by Wiebrecht, Garder, Strum, Harris, McCahan and Dickens. These men took the ball from formations and forward passes and carried it for long gains. McCahan and Dickens were able to negotiate long runs from tackle around plays and McCahan went over for one touchdown from this play. Garder had the Indians completely bewildered with his dodging style of running and kept the spectators in a flurry of excitement whenever he carried the ball. Harris did some excellent running around the ends, the Indians being unable to tackle this speedy runner. Once he nailed a fumble by Dickens and amid great cheering ran about forty yards for a touchdown. Coach Seiler gave many of the reserves a chance to play in the first half and at the end Dickens, Garder and Strum were the only regulars left in the lineup.

The few times that the Indians had possession of the ball in the first half they were unable to make their downs once and had to punt after a few attempts to circle the local's ends and to pierce the line.

The Aborigines came back in the second half and in the third quarter played the locals to a standstill. They made consistent gains off tackle and through the line time and time again on attempts to score on drop kicks. The feature of the game was a triple pass play pulled off by the Indians which netted them several long gains. The play completely fooled the locals and the Tomahites were able to work it effectively three times.

The highs did not use many subs in the second half and were forced to play hard all the time to keep the visitors from scoring. They only scored one touchdown in their period of play and were not able to make such long gains as they did in the first half. The locals play at Eau

CUBS BEAT WALSH IN SLAB DUEL

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—The Chicago National league club made it two straight wins from the local club, in the series which is to decide the championship of the city of Chicago. The score was 4 to 2 in favor of the Nationals.

Comiskey's American league club was the first to score, but the Cubs won out by a batting rally in the seventh. Schulte started with a home run, after which Evers singled and took second on Sullivan's poor return to Walsh. Archer sent a long fly to center, but Bodie let the ball drop into the crowd, Evers scoring and Archer going to second from where he counted on an out and Rath's error.

The game was a pitchers' battle between Walsh and Reulbach. Walsh allowed seven hits, two of which were doubles and one home run, while Reulbach was touched up for eight, four of which were doubles.

Score: R H E Nationals . . . 00000130x—4 7 0 Americans . . . 000001100—2 8 2 Batteries: Reulbach and Archer; Walsh and Sullivan.

KENOSHA HIT BY HEAVY FLOODS

KENOSHA, Wis., Oct. 14.—The worst floods known in Kenosha in many years followed the rain Friday night. At 4 o'clock Saturday morning a dike which had been built to protect a receiving well for the main sewer gave way and flooded more than a hundred acres in the south and west part of the city. In many places houses were completely surrounded by water and men going to work were forced to crawl out of upper windows and wade through water three and four feet deep. Women and children were taken from the houses in boats.

MILWAUKEE GREEKS LEAVE FOR FRONT

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 14.—Spurred by the good wishes of Milwaukee, which were extended to them by Mayor Bading and Alderman John Koerner and the music of the Star Spangled Banner, 552 Greeks left the city at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, bound for Greece and war.

The departing patriots were escorted to the station by more than 2,500 countrymen.

Early Sunday morning a mass was offered in the Greek church for the cause of Greece and the safe return of those who are to battle for the mother country.

PIRATES' PROTEST UPHELD BY LYNCH

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Pittsburgh's protest against Chicago's victory in the game of October 2 was upheld by President Lynch of the National league in a decision made public Sunday night and the game was thrown out of the record, thus changing slightly the league's standing. The protest was based on the fact that Catcher Cotter of Chicago was batting out of his turn when he hit a single which won the game in the tenth inning. The Pirates thus beat out the Cubs for second place by a game and a half.

FIRE DOES BIG DAMAGE

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 14.—After two hours' hard fighting, an estimated $75,000 fire in the Willis block on Third street, near Wabasha, was gotten under control by the entire downtown force of fire fighters shortly before midnight last night. Early this morning firemen were still battling with bursts of flame which from time to time sprang up from the ruins of what for a long time has been one of St. Paul's landmarks.

EX-PRESIDENT WOUNDED WILL RECOVER

COLONEL'S WOUND NOT EXPECTED TO BE FATAL IS DOCTOR'S REPORT

T. R. IS THROUGH WITH CAMPAIGN FOR THIS SEASON

Physicians Will Not Let Big Bull Moose Take the Stump Again

IN CHICAGO FOR OPERATION

Was Taken to Mercy Hospital in Windy City After Speech in Milwaukee

JOKES WITH THE SURGEONS

"Speech Would Have Stopped More Than Bullet," Declares the Colonel

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt will do no more campaigning this year.

Positive announcement that the injury to the progressive presidential nominee was serious enough to keep him off the road during the remainder of the campaign was made today at Mercy Hospital, where he was to be operated on today and a bullet fired by a fanatic in Milwaukee last night removed.

As soon as he is able to leave this city, Colonel Roosevelt will be taken to Oyster Bay. He will remain at home there until he is completely mended and will take no active part in the campaign.

The fact that his injury was such that it would force him into retirement for some time was pointed out to the colonel by the surgeons at the hospital. They were emphatic in telling him that to assure his complete recovery he would have to remain quiet for several weeks, and the colonel reluctantly agreed, insisting at the same time that he felt "perfectly fit" and could make a public speech today.

The announcement that Colonel Roosevelt would do no more campaigning was followed by a revised announcement that if he recovered sufficiently, he might address a mass meeting at Madison Square Garden in New York about October 26.

The colonel's breakfast this morning consisted of liberal portions of eggs, bacon, tea and toast. He ate heartily and said he was experiencing no discomfort except a slight soreness where the bullet was lodged.

John Schrank, East Tenth street, New York, who followed the colonel all over the south and finally fired the shot that nearly killed him, is in the hands of the police at Milwaukee.

The authorities at Milwaukee spirited their prisoner to the county jail to avoid the possibility of a lynching. Roosevelt insisted on speaking before an audience at the Auditorium in Milwaukee after the bullet had lodged in his body.

The colonel had hardly begun to speak last night when an elderly lady in the crowd arose in her seat and said: "Col. Roosevelt, please go back and let the doctors dress your wound."

With a snap of his teeth, the colonel replied: "Dear Madam, it is very nice of you, but I am not hurt. If you saw me on horseback, you would think I had a pretty strong seat now."

Philip J. Roosevelt, cousin of the colonel, also interrupted him: "Stop!" begged the young man. "I will not stop," fired back the colonel as he plunged into his attack on Wilson, La Follette, and the platforms of the two old parties.

The bitter arraignment of his antagonists continued for an hour and a half, but towards the end, as the speaker grew weaker from loss of blood, his tone changed, and he interpolated a new phrase into his parting sentence—an appeal to his hearers to join with him "in kindness, charity and generosity and more charity" to bring nearer the day when social and industrial shall be achieved in this great land of ours.

Then having finished his speech the colonel submitted to the entreaties of his friends and was taken from the hall.

Col. Roosevelt arrived at Milwaukee. (Continued on Page Six.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—In order to be with her husband, while he is compelled to remain in the Chicago hospital, and to be at his side when he comes home to Oyster Bay, Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, with her son, Theodore Jr., and her daughter, left for Chicago over the New York Central railway this afternoon.

She was accompanied by her family physician, Dr. Lambert, who will assume charge of the colonel's case as soon as he reaches him.

Mrs. Roosevelt said that while she was satisfied the colonel was in no danger, she believed that he would be much more comfortable in mind and body to have her with him.

Mrs. Roosevelt, her daughter Ethel, and Mrs. J. West Roosevelt went to progressive headquarters just before noon and in the private office of George W. Perkins listened to the latest bulletins from Chicago.

"While shocked by the occurrence," said Mrs. Roosevelt, "I am hopeful and the latest word that my husband is in no danger has allayed some of my fears. My son Theodore will go to Chicago on the limited this afternoon and if possible will bring the colonel home at once. My own plans will depend on what Dr. Lambert learns by telephone from Dr. Murphy. We want the colonel with us at Oyster Bay."

"William H. Taft." "Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Oyster Bay, N. Y.: 'I extend to you my heartfelt sympathy in your present distress. I earnestly hope and pray that you and your family and the colonel may be promptly relieved of suspense by news that all danger is past."

"William H. Taft." President Taft also issued the following statement: "I cannot withhold an expression of horror at the act of the maniac who attempted to assassinate Col. Roosevelt. This assault, following the shooting of Mayor Gaynor two years ago and the assassination of three out of the last nine of the presidents elected by our people, are events which must cause solemn reflection by all Americans on conditions which make it possible that such dastardly deeds may occur in a country affording its citizens such complete advantages of civil liberty."

"I speak for the American people in expressing the profound hope that Colonel Roosevelt may speedily recover from the effects of this dastardly act."

SCHRANK KNOWN AS A HARMLESS CRANKINGOTHAM

Friends in Bowery Hotel Where He Lived Thought Him a Little Crazy

CONSIDERED T. R. A MENACE

Was Not Thought Man Had Any Real Animosity Toward Third Termers

MOOSERS ARE CONFOUNDED

News of Disaster to Leader Throws Headquarters Into Consternation

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Habitués of the Bowery recalled today John Schrank, who tried to murder Colonel Roosevelt last night, as a harmless, inoffensive crank. A German, with a somewhat noticeable accent, yellow hair, and a reddish brown beard, he lived at the White Hotel, just off the Bowery, on Canal street, for a long time. Only one man penetrated the air of exclusiveness with which he surrounded himself. That was Jack Walker, bartender in the hotel, who said today that he and Schrank often discussed general affairs over a glass of beer.

HAD FEW FRIENDS. According to Walker, Schrank apparently had few friends and absolutely no intimates. He was always quiet in manner and in his conversation never discussed himself. While he had been heard to say that he considered him (Roosevelt) a menace to the country there never was anything in his conversation that led those in contact with him to believe that he held real animosity toward the progressive presidential candidate.

Everybody at the hotel believed that he was slightly crazy, although no one there today could give any particular reason for that belief other than a general feeling based on the manner in which Schrank held aloof from his associates.

Gus Jost, proprietor of the hotel, said that Schrank always paid his bills promptly and that when he left the hotel about the middle of September he did not say where he was going or what his forwarding address was.

CONFOUNDS MOOSERS. The news of the shooting of the colonel caused consternation among his followers last night. Today, however, there was a general air of hopefulness about headquarters in the Manhattan hotel and the party leaders were inconstant touch with the Mercy Hospital in Chicago where the colonel was under treatment.

George W. Perkins, who was alone in headquarters when the word came, prevented Mrs. Roosevelt receiving a serious shock. The first word that the financier had was from the telegraph operator who dashed madly into the room in which he was seated, gasping out that Roosevelt had been shot and killed.

"Get back on the wire and confirm that," snapped Perkins, as he followed the frantic operator into the little room where the leased telephone was.

SAW VISION OF M'KINLEY SAYS JOHN SCHRANK

Would-be Assassin of Col. Roosevelt Declares Dream Caused Shot

HE IS A NATIVE OF BAVARIA

Came to United States at Age of Nine and Lived Always in New York

SORRY HE DID NOT KILL

Tells Guards at Milwaukee Jail He Wishes He Had Slain the Candidate

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 15.—John Schrank, would-be assassin of Colonel Roosevelt here, today had nothing to add to his earlier statement made late last night in which he said his attempt to kill Roosevelt was because President McKinley had appeared in a dream pointing out Roosevelt, who appeared in mon's garb, as his slayer. Following his statement Schrank was taken back to his cell, where he slept uninterrupted until 7 o'clock.

Schrank's statement was complete. Cross examined by Chief of Police Janssen and other officials at central station he told of having followed the colonel since September 12 and his determination to assassinate the former president because of the McKinley dream and his belief that Roosevelt was a menace to the country.

Thought Moose Dangerous. "I began to think of Roosevelt as a menace when he cried 'Thief' at the Chicago convention," confessed Schrank. "I looked upon his plan to start a third party as a danger to the country. My knowledge of history, gained through much reading, convinced me that Roosevelt was engaged in a dangerous undertaking. I was convinced that if defeated at the fall election he would again cry, 'thief,' and his action would plunge the country into a bloody civil war."

Schrank, according to his statement, was born in Erding, Bavaria, two hours out of Munich, the capital of Bavaria. He came to the United States when nine years old, with his parents.

He worked about saloons in New York, he stated, until he became the proprietor of a place at 10 East ents street. He sold this place when the determination came to him to slay the ex-president.

Schrank is 36 years of age. He is 5 feet, 7 1/2 inches in height, and weighs 170 pounds. His appearance as he waited for the colonel to

Would-be Assassin of the Third-termers Makes No Attempt to Deny Guilt

TRIAL DATE IN DECEMBER

Bonds of $5,000 Set by Judge Neelen in the Municipal Court

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 15.—John Schrank, the fanatic who attempted the life of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt here last night, was arraigned in district court at 10:30 a. m. today, pleaded guilty and was bound over on $5,000 bail to the next term of the municipal court which convenes December 10.

The would-be assassin of Colonel Roosevelt was extremely nervous when brought into the court room surrounded by a heavy detail of deputies. His fingers twitched and he rubbed his hands together constantly as he glanced from side to side at the crowd of curious spectators.

Judge Neelen read the warrant. "How do you plead, guilty or not guilty?" asked the court.

"Guilty," answered Schrank, in a low voice. "You are charged with a serious crime," interrupted District Attorney Zabel. "You have a right to waive examination and be bound over for trial later or to have an immediate hearing. Which do you choose?"

The prisoner hesitated a moment and then stated he desired to waive examination and have his trial set at a later date.

Judge Neelen immediately ruled that the man should face the December term of the municipal court, and set his bond at $5,000.

Schrank was taken back to the county jail where he lapsed into a state of quiet and contrary to his early mood, refused to talk to anyone.

FENWAY PARK, BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 15.—The tumult and the shouting is still on. The captains and the camps may have another day to wait. It all depends upon what happens between this interim and dusk. But in the meanwhile Boston's phalanx of the fans, rolling in through the gates, has come again to another game with undying confidence in Joe Wood.

"Wood works and it ends tonight," was the war cry of the human tide for knowing, as each did, the fickleness of baseball, there was hardly one in the crowd who believed that Wood, pitching at home, pressed to the last crowning test—could be beaten.

Hinges on Wood. "You might as well as have tried to impress upon Boston that Gibraltar could be pushed over by human hands or that Mount McKinley could be toppled by a drifting summer breeze."

Wood, the paragon of all who pitched through the 1912 hurricane season, stood in the Giant pathway—stood with the home crowd at his back—an ideal day to work and a team to face that he had already conquered twice away from home.

Boston felt that way—and then some—but the Giants felt differently. There was a stronger show of confidence in the club before the game time, than it had felt all through the series.

From the general feeling displayed by both sets of nerve-racked athletes and the crowd the combined frenzy and mania of the entire series seems to be crowded into one brief afternoon.

The fans remembered what happened when Smoke Ball Joe Wood faced Walter Johnson and had been forced to pitch unless ball to win. They remembered his American league record—the greatest of modern years—with 34 victories and five defeats. They remembered again what he had handed New York in Manhattan, running the total of his season's to thirty-four winnings and only five defeats, an average of seven games out of 8.

Mathewson had a long workout while the Giants had batting practice but it was evident that Big Six's arm was not in condition as Tesreau alone warmed up just before play was called.

Wood was the only Red Sox pitcher to get ready.

The sun was in Devore's eyes which did not bother him as he is the regular Giant sun fielder. The unofficial estimate of the attendance was 35,000.

The police had to chase back a bunch of fans who broke out of the overflow bleachers in left field. The umpires—Evans, behind the bat; Klem on the bases; O'Loughlin on left foul line; Rigner, on right field foul line.

HIS WIFE UNWORRIED

MRS. ROOSEVELT READY AT 8:30
THIS MORNING TO RUSH
AT ONCE TO CHICAGO

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt was still asleep at the residence of J. West Roosevelt at 8:00 o'clock today. Oliver Roosevelt, who met callers, said:

"Mrs. Roosevelt was entirely satisfied with the reassuring message she received from the colonel and she had no intention whatever of going to Chicago when she retired last night."

At 8:15 a. m., Mrs. Roosevelt was awakened and given a bulletin saying the colonel was being operated on in Chicago. This caused her to demand immediate further details, and to announce that she might go to Chicago at once. Mrs. J. West Roosevelt assisted her to dress rapidly and it was planned to go direct to progressive headquarters, where she expected to determine her immediate plans.

Mrs. Roosevelt sent for Dr. Franklin Lambert, and had him explain to her the nature of her husband's wound. He reassured her all he could and gave her a sedative to settle her nerves, which were badly unstrung. Asked whether Mrs. Roosevelt was in condition to make the trip to Chicago to her husband's side, the physician said: "Any woman in condition to make any trip on which she makes her mind. Of course, Mrs. Roosevelt will not decide whether she will go to Chicago until after she learns more details of the operation."

Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., and Mrs. Roosevelt were with the wife of the colonel all morning.

No Profit in Alligators.
The difficulty about raising alligators to supply the demand for the animals and skins is that they do not attain full growth for about 100 years. The skin of the six or seven-year-old animal is available, however, for many practical purposes. There is one on a farm at Palm Beach which measures 18 feet in length and is said to be about 900 years old. There are several of these farms in operation at the present time, but the industry will not be really profitable until the wild alligators become scarcer.

CRONON WRITES OF OLD ABE REUNION

Veteran of Eagle Regiment
Tells of Recent Reunion Held at Eau Claire

(Edward Cronon, Co. "J," 8th Wis.)

The meeting of the survivors of the Eagle Regiment at Eau Claire on October 3rd and 4th in commemoration of the Battle of Corinth, Miss., was a notable gathering of those who took part on that hotly contested battlefield. There were those present who had not seen each other since the date of the battle, fifty years ago. Comrade Alfred Thorston, who was wounded at Corinth and sent to the hospital and discharged from there and was mourned for as dead, showed up at the reunion, having seen a notice of the meeting in a St. Paul paper at his home in South Dakota. He was very much alive indeed. Then there was Myron Briggs, color bearer, who came from Florida to meet the boys. John F. Hill, who was shot clear through the body, taken prisoner and reported as dead, was present. There was Billy Heyitt, who was wounded in four places, captured and lost a leg. There was Ed. Cronon who lost an arm. Tom Hill and Dave McLain who carried "Old Abe," Ephraim Wilcox, Capt. Tom Butler, Lieut. Burnett Demonest, John Devlin, Russ Brownell, Lieut. Frank McGuire, Isaac Hewitt, A. R. Barnes and others whose names I cannot recall and have not seen in fifty years. What magnetism is it that calls these old comrades to meet once more and renew comradeship after so long a lapse of time? What is it that calls Comrade Briggs from Florida, Comrade Thorston from South Dakota, Comrades Cole and Barnes from Iowa and others from distant parts of our country? It is the tie which was welded in the fire of battle, which tried men's souls; it is a patriotic pride which still burns in their breasts fifty years after; it is a lesson to the rising generation to follow and emulate. To the citizens of Eau Claire, it can be said, too much praise cannot be given; their hospitality has never been equaled at any reunion which I have attended. The city of Eau Claire feels a just pride in her Company C and the Eagle Regiment. Those of us who were there will long remember our visit to their city. May we meet again.

On Pennsylvania Farm.

Here is one of the stories, says the American Greeting, from the old man's row in front of the barber shop: One man said back in Pennsylvania they farmed the land where the hills were so steep that when they planted potatoes one man had to hold them in a furrow while another man covered them up. When they dug them in the fall they were simply allowed to roll to the bottom of the hill before any attempt was made to pick them up.

Quite Another Thing.

Keeps Your Stove "Always Ready for Company"

A bright, clean, glossy stove is the joy and pride of every housekeeper. But it is hard to keep a stove nice and shiny—unless Black Silk Stove Polish is used. Here is the reason: Black Silk Stove Polish sticks right to the iron. It doesn't rub off or dust off. Its shine lasts four times longer than the shine of any other polish. You only need to polish once a month, and your stove will be cleaner, brighter and better looking than it has been since you first bought it. Use on your parlor stove, kitchen stove or gas stove. Get a can from your hardware or stove dealer. If you do not find it better than any other stove polish you have ever used before, your dealer is authorized to refund your money. But we feel sure you will agree with the thousands of other up-to-date women who are now using Black Silk Stove Polish and who say it is the "best stove polish ever made."

BLACK SILK STOVE POLISH

LIQUID OR PASTE ONE QUALITY

Be sure to get the genuine. Black Silk Stove Polish costs you no more than the ordinary kind. Keep your grates, registers, fenders and stove pipes bright and free from rusting by using Black Silk Air-Drying Enamel. Brush free with each can of enamel only.

Use BLACK SILK METAL POLISH for silverware, nickel, tinware or brass. It works quickly, easily, and leaves a brilliant surface. It has no equal for use on automobiles.

PLAGUE IS HARD ON CARPENTERS

Seventeen Per Cent of the Deaths of Workers and Their Wives Due to Tuberculosis

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 15.—

Seventeen per cent of the deaths of carpenters and their wives are caused by tuberculosis, the most prevalent disease causing death among that profession according to the report of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, which was submitted to the convention at Washington this fall. According to Frank Duffy, general secretary of the organization, this disease has made great inroads on the carpenters' organization in spite of efforts of the officials at the head of the union to warn union men against it. The prevalence of tuberculosis is attributed to dusty shops, by Duffy. However, it was pointed out to him that the life of a carpenter is in the main an outdoor life.

Are Too Careless.
"But the workman may grow careless," replied Duffy. "Working sometimes to the point of fatigue, subjected to all kinds of weather, the outdoor carpenter may have a tendency to pay too little attention to his health. Pneumonia may develop and tuberculosis in time follow. Pneumonia some years ago had a much higher death rate among carpenters than now, although the rate at present is still considerable."

Seven years ago, Duffy wrote an article in the Carpenters' Journal, entitled "Captains of Death." Denominating consumption as the captain of death, he called pneumonia "the king." The tendency of carpenters to contract slight colds and to neglect them was called to the attention of the unionists. The carpenters' union pays a death benefit on the death of either the carpenter or his wife. The figures of the report which are based on the number of claims paid, include both members of the family. From March 1, 1911, to March 1, 1912, the union paid 385 claims for death of tuberculosis. The number of deaths during that time approximated 2,200, hence more than 17 per cent of the deaths were from this one disease. The previous yearly report showed 15.29 per cent.

There has also been a remarkable increase in the number of deaths from heart disease, according to Duffy. Deaths from that cause totaled 325 or nearly 15 per cent of all the deaths in 1911-12. During the year previous it had been 11.54 per cent.

Cancer Deaths Many.
Pneumonia runs about 7 or 8 per cent a year, and cancer as a cause of death has been running high as compared with the average of the disease. Duffy in the report points out that the percentage of deaths from tuberculosis and heart disease is almost as high as that due to accidents. The number of deaths from accidents in the year was 398 or only 14 more than deaths from tuberculosis.

"The deaths from accidents include many not suffered by carpenters in their line of work, as many deaths result from accidents in the home or elsewhere such as befall the ordinary person not engaged in carpentry," declared Duffy. "Taking into consideration the work as a dangerous profession, the deaths due to accidents of the trade will fall far short of the deaths due to tuberculosis."

British Cows Which Eat Fish.

Dried codfish, unsalted, is eaten by the inhabitants of the Faroe islands (between Shetland and Iceland) or their cows, says a consular report. The fish, which is of the cod type, is considered good for cows, as it enables them, it is stated, to yield an ample supply of rich milk. The dried fish is not cooked before being eaten; it is merely laid on stones and then pounded with stones or hammers.

Philanthropic Penology.

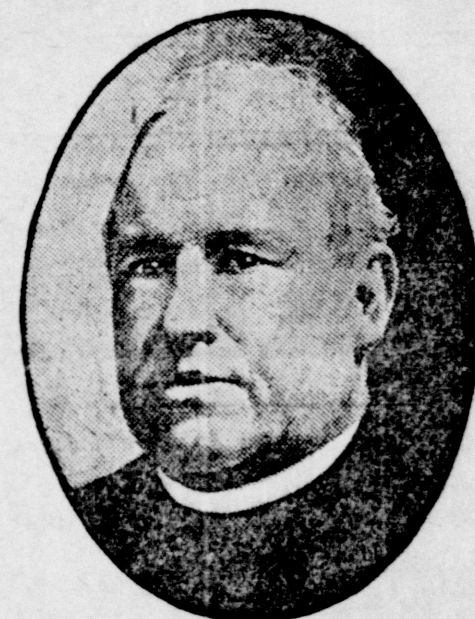

"What is that open-air structure you have inclosed with mosquito netting?" "That," replied Farmer Cornstossel, "is our village jail." "But you want iron bars for a jail?" "Not here. Anybody we put in there will be so thankful to get away from the mosquitoes that he wouldn't think of leaving."

TO THE PUBLIC

We are about to publish in this paper a series of articles introducing Father John's Medicine to this city.

We shall tell you its interesting history, how it was prescribed for the Rev. Father John O'Brien of Lowell, Mass., from whom it got its name, 50 years ago.

You will understand why it is the leading preparation wherever it is advertised, because of its merit, as proven by a great number of impressive endorsements by clergymen, doctors, hospitals and institutions all over the country.

Father John's Medicine has had fifty years' success as a body builder, for colds, throat and lung troubles, asthma, bronchitis, and consumption. It does not contain alcohol nor dangerous drugs in any form.

The history of Father John's Medicine is guaranteed to be true. We offer to give $25,000 to any charity if it can be shown otherwise.

If you have any difficulty in getting Father John's Medicine from your druggist, write the Carleton and Hovey Company, Lowell, Mass., enclosing one dollar for a large sized bottle, express prepaid.

THE MEANING OF GOOD ROADS

Under the caption "What Good Roads Mean to a Community," the Southern Agriculturist says:

"First, they mean a decreased expense in hauling produce to market and in getting goods home from town. A farmer in Sullivan, Tenn., in 1908 had to haul barbed wire from Kingsport to Bristol, a distance of twenty-five miles. He found that with a two-horse team the largest load he could draw was 500 pounds, and that three days were necessary to make the trip. To haul one ton, therefore, took twelve days, which, reckoned at $3 a day for man and team, was an expense of $36. A bond issue was finally made and the strip of road over which he had hauled the wire was improved so that the same team could haul a ton to the load and make the round trip in two days at a cost of $6. In Madison county, Tennessee, before the roads were improved a bale of cotton was a load for a team. Now the same team can haul ten bales to the load in less time. Figure it out.

"Second, good roads improve farm values. A farmer in Lee county, Virginia, owned a tract of 100 acres which he offered for $1,800. In 1908 the road past his farm was improved, and though he fought the improvement he has since refused $3,000 for this place. On this same road a tract increased from $6,000 to $9,000 in value after the improvement of the highway.

"Third, road improvement means better access to schools and better schools. It means the facilitation of the rural mail service, which is now seriously hampered in many places by the condition of the roads. It also means a better and more attractive country and a consequent lessening of the cityward drift of rural population. Let us have more good roads. They are worth while."

Good roads mean so much to a community that it hardly seems reasonable that any community in this enlightened era would endure bad roads and make no serious effort for their betterment. It is true, however, that there are many such communities, not lacking in prosperity, education or in general progressiveness, which appear to have gone to sleep on the road question. There are rural localities which have good farms, good schoolhouses, good churches and a fair share of the conveniences of life and yet have roads which are next to impassable for several months in the year.

At this season there are more good roads than at any other time of the year. If a road is ever good at all it is good in the fall, before the rains and the freezes set in. The true test of the highway comes in the winter and in the spring and it is then that the good roads are painfully scarce. In some places the mistake is made of repairing dirt roads in the fall with the result of merely making a bad matter worse when the winter season begins. In many places es the road question is handled with such ignorance or indifference that the progress of communities is delayed and the value of property is affected.

Every community should be alive to the benefits of improved highways. No neighborhood should passively tolerate bad roads.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

THE TERRIBLE TOLL OF THE GRIM REAPER

That we, as a nation, are still furiously burning the candle at both ends, was the indictment presented to the National Conservation Congress at Indianapolis in an address delivered by E. E. Rittenhouse, conservation commissioner of the Equitable Life Assurance society.

Mr. Rittenhouse declared that, while we have reduced the mortality rate 25 per cent during the last 30 years, this has been done by increasing the proportion of children who survive infancy, while degenerative diseases of middle life and old age have been steadily increasing.

With all the blessings which modern life has introduced so far as comfort is concerned, the birth rate is steadily declining and the span of life is steadily shortening.

Other facts in the indictment are these:

Of the 20,000,000 school children in this country, not less than 75 per cent need attention for physical defects which are detrimental to health. Insanity and idiocy are increasing.

Suicides are increasing and now reach the enormous total of about 15,000 annually.

Over 9,000 murders are committed every year, and only 116 murderers, on an average, are executed for these crimes.

The death rate from the degenerative diseases of the heart, blood vessels and kidneys, including apoplexy, has increased over 100 per cent since 1880, and claims over 350,000 lives annually.

Cancer claims 75,000 lives annually, and the death rate has increased 52 per cent in the last 10 years.

Over 150,000 Americans are destroyed annually by tuberculosis. We know now how to prevent it, but our taxpayers object to the expense and leave the battle almost wholly to charity.

This gruesome indictment closes with the assertion that we are not only reducing the fertility of the race and also shortening the span of life, but we are permitting at least 650,000 lives to be destroyed annually which we could save by the application of simple and well known precautions.

The war, as stated by Mr. Rittenhouse, is a struggle between the dollars and the death rate. And the niggardly spirit shown toward the conservation of human life is proved by the fact that in 1910, 184 cities could spare but two per cent of their total public appropriations for the public health service. Some cities spent as little as the following: Quincy, Ill., 2 cents; Lansing, Mich., 5 cents; Scranton, Pa., 7 cents; Bridgeport, Conn., 9 cents.

Mr. Rittenhouse also scored the people of the country for refusing to back up the bill for the establishment of a national health bureau, because "we have permitted a small but active body of people who are more concerned in treating disease than in preventing it to block the consummation of this thoroughly sensible and business-like consolidation of the various bureaus under one responsible head."

The only remedy is, as he suggests, a comprehensive life conservation campaign.

Our esteemed contemporary seems to have thought better of its sinister intention made apparent earlier in the campaign to make a "goat" out of County Clerk Rawlinson over the campaign statement affair.

"Uncle Sam's staff sergeants in the Philippines have waxed fat," says a news item. Now the government will have a new inducement for thin people to join the army.

It takes all kinds of people to make a world, but there are more many like the Chicago man with $5,000,000 who has decided to be a missionary.

Nearly all of the ginner palls are full, but the great question of the day is to discover just how much it costs to fill each of them.

Probably the only reason that rain water is inexpensive is because it is always coming down.

There is one kind of suit that never seems to go out of style; that is the suit for divorce.

The Bulgarians may be all at sea, but it is reported that the Turks are all in aeroplanes.

Quips and Cranks and Wanton Wiles

Blue Monday
Of course everything has gone crooked,
As crooked as things can well go.
Of course deepest gloom is your portion
And storm clouds are gathering low.

You're filled with deep, dark disappointments,
In all of the world there's no friend;
Your troubles will surely overwhelm you,
They never will come to an end.

Your grocery bill is a corker;
Your note is past due at the bank;
They're going to foreclose on the homestead
Unless you put up with a yank.

Your automobile has grown balky,
The kitchen roof's sprung a great leak,
And there are nine thousand more troubles
Of which you would just love to speak.

When things seem as bad as they can be
Just lay all your cares on the shelf,
There are some folks worse off than you are;
You should be ashamed of yourself.

The Typo's Way
A popular novelist was correcting proofs at a desk in the Century club. "Typographical errors are the bane of all writers," he said. "I have never had very bad ones myself—nothing like the one I once saw in the famous line:

"There were roses strewn in my path like mad."

"This the typesetter turned to:

"There were roses strewn in my path like mud."

"The other day Mr. Roosevelt was advocating 'the purity of the ballot';

he'd sacrifice himself to bring about 'the purity of the ballot.' But in my paper the typesetter made it read 'the purity of the ballot.'

"I did once suffer myself; not in a book, in a speech. I was addressing a Scottish literary society, and I began with the words 'Brither Scots.'"

"But the typesetter made me begin: 'Brither Sois.'"

The Best Cured Man
"There was a man in our town," said the one who told the story.

"Well, he was about the tallest and thinnest man I ever saw. He looked to be about seven feet high, and I believe he was pretty near it. One day an odd character met him in the street and stopped him.

"Excuse me, sir," he began, "but have you ever had the dropsy?"

"No," said the tall man, with dignity. "I've never had the dropsy. Why do you ask?"

"Well," said the odd character, looking him over, beginning at his feet and craning his neck as his glance traveled upward to take in the entire altitude. "I was just thinking—if you'd ever had the dropsy—"

and again his glance traveled all the way back to the feet—"if you'd ever had the dropsy," he repeated, "I was just thinking if you wuz about the best cured man I ever seen."

EXPERIENCE GAINED WHILE In The Drug Business

I have been troubled more or less in the last five years with kidney trouble and from the experience I gained while in the drug business and from different cases where I have sold Swamp-Root with perfect satisfaction to those who purchased it, and as I never had a single complaint regarding the medicine while I was in business, I was in a position to know that it was a great preparation and it did not fail me when I used it myself. It has certainly afforded me great relief at all times and I would not be without it. I always recommend Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root to my friends as I believe it to be a medicine of great curative value in the diseases for which you recommend it.

Sincerely,

SPOTLIGHTS

To Open Music Study Club Series

It is within reason to say that Maud Powell has reached a position in her profession that few of her sex have ever attained, and very few of the sterner sex, for she is an artist in the highest sense of the word. Her violin playing is so well known to American concert goers that encomiums are unnecessary; suffice it to say that her managerial agent puts the case in a nutshell when he announces she has "the head of an artist, the arm of a man and the heart of a woman." She combines skill with feeling, superb technique with great strength of tone and interpretation, and her programs are always unique.

There is no doubt that the concert given by Maud Powell on Friday evening, October 18, at the La Crosse theater will prove the greatest treat to all music lovers. This concert opens the series of concerts to be given this season by the Music Study club. Seats go on sale for this concert Thursday, October 17th.

COMPANY ELECTS OFFICERS

The Parker-Hirt Machine company which was incorporated in this city, elected the following officers: Joseph F. Hirt, president; Andrew Hirt, vice president; Louis Anderson, secretary; and Tom Clemens, treasurer. The firm will do all kinds of machine repairing and will manufacture automobile accessories. It is located on Front and Main streets.

ACCUSED OF AUTO THEFT

Christ Steinegar and Benjamin Petrick, aged 20 years, were arrested late Saturday night for the theft of an automobile owned by J. Albrecht. The automobile was found standing on Jackson street at 12:30 and the lads were arrested a few moments later. They will probably be held for prosecution.

FELIX DIAZ REVOLTS

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 15.—The evening papers on Saturday declared that Felix Diaz has openly revolted and gone to Oaxaca to take command of the principal rebel army. It is stated that Diaz is now the choice of all rebels of whatever faction to succeed President Madero when he is overthrown.

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 15.—The estate of Henry Strang of Chicago will pay inheritance tax. Strang died in Chicago a year ago at the age of 90, leaving an estate of over $5,000,000. His Wisconsin property consisted of a home at Lake Geneva and $200,000 in personal property.

HERMIT HANGS SELF

CALUMET, Mich., Oct. 15.—Jos. Gillette, a 72 year old hermit, was found dead in his home near here on Monday. The man committed suicide by hanging. He was one of the first residents of Calumet. No motive for the deed is known.

Kidding the New Yorker

A traveling salesman blew into Little Rock, Ark., and, going to the leading merchant, said pompously: "I'm from New York. I want to show you the newest line of—"

"Where did you say you were from?" asked the merchant, getting ready to do some "kidding." The well-headed manner of the New Yorker had ruffled him. The salesman seemed to think the fact that he was from New York was something to make rural merchants' jaws drop open. He was what the western people call a "New York fool!"—the one kind that's hopeless.

"Why, I'm from New York," repeated the gingery, swell-up geek.

"Who runs the hotel in that town?" asked the merchant in a friendly manner.

HE COMES UP SMILING

Copyright: Bobbe-Merrill Co.

The general stopped in the doorway and stared. His car? And such a wave of thanksgiving rushed over him that it was not his car that was missing that he felt he owed Alphonse a debt of gratitude and forgave him immediately.

"My car," said he, and chuckled with relief.

"Where's mine?" demanded Bartlett, growing red and angry.

"Where's Alphonse?" suggested the Watermelon significantly.

Henrietta laughed with positive gratitude to her erstwhile serving-man. "Why," she cried, "he left us ours."

"Alphonse was very fond of me," said the general with some little pride, as he patted his car tenderly.

"Yes," agreed Bartlett, "I can see that. He demonstrated it fully. I am glad he didn't love you or he might have killed Billy and me."

The landlord, followed by the slatternly maid-servant and the shifty-eyed stable-boy, trailed into the barn.

"Man gone off with your car?" asked the landlord. "I locked up last night about twelve. He must have left before then."

"The general's man did," said Bartlett, who felt that the general was in some way to blame.

"He has taken all our money," added Henrietta.

"A thief, eh?" said the landlord. "Can't we follow the car by the tracks?" asked Henrietta. She went to the door and peered eagerly at the many wheel tracks in the dust of the drive.

The general waved the suggestion scornfully aside. "You can't tell whether the tracks are coming or going," said he.

"All detectives do," said Billy, following Henrietta to the door.

"I'm sorry," whispered the Watermelon in Billy's ear.

Billy laughed. "We have more cars at home," said she. "It doesn't bother me at all. That's the trouble of being rich, you can't be robbed and feel badly about it."

"Batchelor, you say that you were up until after eleven," said the general, feeling that the occasion called for intelligence. "Did you see Alphonse go out?"

"No," said the Watermelon.

"The landlord says, however, that he must have gone before twelve," went on the general. "Then don't you see how Alphonse could not have stolen the money? Those thefts were not committed until after twelve."

"I don't see how you work that out," said Henrietta, puzzling over it with knitted brows.

"Don't you see, Henrietta, that if Alphonse stole our money after twelve, he could not have gone out in the car before eleven, so if he went out in the car before twelve, he did not steal the money. He either stole the money or the car."

"Maybe he didn't take the money," said Henrietta, feeling vaguely and disappointingly that she was not a person with detective-like instincts.

"You see," said the general, "if Alphonse took the car, he did not take the money; if he took the money, he did not take the car."

"He certainly did take the money," snapped the farmer.

"And my car," added Bartlett angrily.

"He could not have taken both," declared the general.

"You were robbed last night, weren't you?" demanded the farmer. "Well, then."

"And my car is gone, isn't it?" demanded Bartlett.

"Yes, yes," acknowledged the general, feeling that every word he said only made the other two angrier, but still clinging to his deductions as to his life's principles. "Yes, of course; but Alphonse could not have done both. He went off with the car before eleven, so he could not have robbed us after twelve."

"Sir," interrupted the farmer with a quick dignity that was impressive, "do you accuse any of us of stealing?"

"No, no," protested the general, now hopelessly rattled. "But if Alphonse stole the money—"

"Alphonse swiped both," said the Watermelon, and that settled it as far as the general was concerned, for the general had boundless faith in the young man's deductive abilities. "I went in about eleven. He took the car out, ran it down the road a bit and then came back and sneaked our things."

"Certainly," said Bartlett, who could not help feeling irritated with the general for the fault of his man.

Billy laughed. "All this bother about nothing," said she. "Dad, what's one car, more or less?"

"A car is a car, Billy," said Bartlett coldly, refusing to be comforted for the ruin of his plan to keep Batchelor away from the city over Sunday.

"Yes," agreed Henrietta sympathetically. "any one hates to lose a car."

"But when you have seven," objected Billy.

"We have n't got them here, have we?" asked Bartlett.

"No, but we have one, and that's enough for five," declared Billy, finding the usual difficulty in persuading people to count their blessings. "We didn't need two, anyway."

"Yes, we did," said the Watermelon, thinking of the tonneau

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE SAVES WORRY, SAVES MONEY, SAVES THE HAIR

If you want to free your head of dandruff and stop falling hair, you must sooner or later resort to Newbro's Herpicide.

By using Herpicide first you save yourself worry, which is desirable, you save money, which is a consideration, and you save your hair, which is the most important of all.

Why not profit by the experience of Mrs. S. A. Lee, of 110 South 4th St., Richmond, Va., who writes:

"Four years' residence in India ruined my hair until it was but two inches long and very thin. I tried everything in Europe and America without benefit until I was induced to use Herpicide. My hair is now long, soft and silky and natural color, while before it was quite gray. My friends never tire of admiring my hair."

Mrs. Lee's story is a typical history of hair troubles. After everything else fails Newbro's Herpicide brings relief. It would be just as effective if used first.

Newbro's Herpicide kills the dandruff germ and prevents falling hair. It stops itching of the scalp almost instantly. No matter what the claims of others, Herpicide is the only genuine original dandruff germ destroyer.

Newbro's Herpicide in 50c and $1.00 sizes is sold by all dealers who guarantee it to do all that is claimed. If you are not satisfied your money will be refunded.

Applications at good barber shops.

Send 10c for sample bottle to The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich. Hoeschler Bros., special agents.

TURKS FEAR BULGARIANS MOST OF ALL

Bulgarian Generals at War Maneuvers; arrow points to Ferdinand, King of Bulgaria

By the Turks the Bulgarian army is feared most of all. It is the largest and the best trained to be found among the Balkan states. King Ferdinand, skilled in military matters, is at its head. In the present war the Bulgarian forces will probably play a larger part than the army of any of the other states now fighting Turkey.

with only Billy and him, the general in front completely absorbed with the car.

"Why?" asked Billy.

"Why," stammered the Watermelon, who no longer cared to flirt with Billy and who had spoken without thinking, "why, so the general and your father could each run a car," he explained weakly.

"Oh, yes," chirped Billy. "What will they do now?"

The Watermelon turned and glanced out of the wide doors, down the tree-shaded road, and thought pityingly of the unfortunate Alphonse gone off at the wrong time, with the whole country-side on the watch for a lone youth in a big red touring car. That the car was of a different make from the one they were hunting for would not impress the sheriffs so forcibly as the fact that the youth also carried a time-piece as big as a clock, along with a cigarette case, cuff links and stick pin, all marked plainly and beyond question, with the damning initials, W. H. B.

The Watermelon laughed softly, and glancing at Billy laughed again. With Bartlett going directly back to the city, he would not have to confess to make things right. He could leave them at the telegraph office and drift away on some pretext or another, leaving Billy gaily, head up, as became a successful financier, not sink away like a whipped dog, with only the scorn and loathing in her eyes to remember, to obliterate all the other memories of that one nearly perfect week.

African Dwarf Elephants.

An English official in Uganda claims to have seen a herd of dwarf elephants, the existence of which has often been affirmed by natives. When recently seen the company consisted of from 30 to 40 individual elephants meandering in solitary fashion over a plain. The observer was most astonished at the weak defenses offered by their bodies. None of them had a tusk of more than ten kilograms in weight. A dead member of the flock was afterward found, the tusk of which weighed but eight kilograms.

Bee Sting Cause of Death.

While the Abbe Genoux, priest of the parish of Plagnes, France, was out walking at Anney, a bee flew into his mouth and stung him in the back of the throat. The sting brought about acute inflammation and such a swelling of the throat that the priest died of suffocation within 20 minutes, after great suffering.

SCHLABACH TALKS ON INCOME TAX

Defends Progressive Law at North Side Republican Meeting Last Night

SAYS IT IS EQUITABLE

Avers that Cost of Running the State Has Increased Very Little

Declaring that the income tax was correct in theory, that it would work out all right and that by means of this law nobody would be able to dodge his taxes, Otto Schlachbach, republican candidate for district attorney, delivered a strong endorsement of progressive principles at a republican meeting at Fielstad Hall last evening.

Mr. Schlachbach showed how the law had been passed in order that nobody would be able to get out of paying his just taxes. He also explained that by means of the income tax a sufficient amount of money could be raised to conduct the state's affairs without any additional money being needed. The income tax is just in that it equalizes the taxes instead of making the man of moderate means bear the entire burden, he said.

Judge J. C. Karel's arguments against the income tax law were taken up in order and Mr. Schlachbach refuted each one of the opposition's statements.

Defends Commission. Mr. Schlachbach also spoke on the subject of the various state commissions and he defended them by saying that they more than pay for themselves. The members of these commissions receive very low salaries in proportion to the money which they collect. Many blame the state for high taxes but Mr. Schlachbach asserted that the state received only 40 cents out of every $21 which was collected last year. In answer to the assertion that the cost of running the state had increased a great deal, Mr. Schlachbach showed that it cost but comparatively little more to conduct the state government than it did ten years ago.

Dr. A. R. Kemper also spoke at this meeting and he said that although he did not intend to get into politics very deeply he thought the voters should show their appreciation of the work of Thomas Morris and J. E. McConnell, who had helped make the income tax a law, by voting for them. He declared that Messrs. Morris and McConnell had voted for the income tax law in spite of the fact that it increased their own taxes and for this reason he thought credit was due them. Dr. Kemper also spoke about the commissions and he defended them as he asserted that they were protection for the public as the corporations could not raise their rates without the consent of the commissions.

Another meeting will be held in Fielstad Hall Friday evening.

MACCABEES TO DANCE

The New Century Hyle No. 101 of the Maccabees will give their twentieth anniversary ball at the north side Woodmen hall on Friday evening, October 18. The music will be furnished by the Kreutz orchestra and dancing will continue from eight until one o'clock.

Not Her Hero.

"I suppose you are proud of your wife's literary success?" said the intimate friend. "Yes," replied Mr. Stubbs. "Only I wish she wouldn't insist on making the hero of every novel a tall, athletic young man, with wavy hair and piercing blue eyes. Anybody can see that I am short, fat, bald, and compelled to wear specs."—The Pathfinder.

Wisdom of Childhood.

The following composition on men is credited to a little girl: "Men are what women marry. They drink and smoke and swear, but don't go to church. Perhaps if they were bunnies they would. They are more logical than women and also more zoological. Both men and women sprung from monkeys, but the women sprung further than the men."

Clever Idea of Thieves.

An up-to-date method of robbing hotels is exposed in the German papers. Two young men of excellent appearance are moving about Germany, staying at the best hotels in the leading holiday resorts. After dinner one of them amuses the hotel guests with songs, pianoforte solos and anecdotes, thus keeping the majority of them in the drawing room, while his companion ransacks the private rooms for money and valuables.

"Don't you give me any of your hip!" said the young lady to the young man, as their train passed through the tunnel.

BREAKS A COLD IN A FEW HOURS

Tastes nice—acts gently.—Advertisement.

SAM SCHEPPS CALLED IN CASE

Whitman to Question Witness as Independent Source of Testimony

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—The real fight to save Police Lieutenant Charles Becker from electric chair began today with the calling of Sam Schepps to the stand. Whitman relied on Schepps to prove his case, insisting that he was not one of the murder conspirators, but that he was the "independent source" which the law demands for confirmation of the story of conspirators. To offset this McIntyre, for the defense, had the police circulars sent out calling for the arrest of Schapps in which he was referred to as "wanted for murder," and was planning to get them before the jury if possible.

The entire Becker case hinges on Schepps. Should Justice Goff hold that he was not a member of the murder conspiracy then his evidence would make the stories told by Rose, Wabber and Vallon material, and the jury could believe them.

It was also stated that Mrs. Rosenthal would tell her story to the jury. She assured the district attorney that a mistake had been made when it was declared that she had agreed to retract much of her original statement.

Taft Reviews

ATLANTIC FLEET

Warships Steam Past President on Yacht Mayflower and Fire Salutes

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—For the first time in years all traffic on the North river was halted for hours today. The reason was the final review of the Atlantic fleet, which steamed out to sea past the converted yacht Mayflower with President Taft on board. The review was one of the most wonderful spectacles ever presented in American waters, and was witnessed by the hands who crowded the river docks and the great fleet of passenger craft that was anchored near the Mayflower in the upper bay.

The Mayflower today took position off Bedloe's island shortly before 10 o'clock. Promptly at that hour all river craft were expected to tie up before the Mayflower's anchorage and Fort Washington by Commander Bullard, U. S. N., in charge of the regulation of traffic.

The weather was beautiful and the great fighting machines presented a most impressive sight, as steaming in single column formation, they passed down the bay, each saluting with 21 guns the flag of the president flying from the Mayflower, in the very shadow of the statue of liberty.

No Suffragette Views.

A visitor at a seaside boarding house went into the local postoffice and, seeking to draw the postmaster into conversation, asked him what his views were as to suffragettes. "Hain't got no views of that kind," replied the postmaster, "but we've got some fine postcard views of the new viaduct, the Baptist church, and the new library. Want to look at 'em?"—London Tit-Bits.

A New Face.

Mrs. Platt and her little son Tommy frequently went to St. John's church and the little boy had become familiar with the minister's face. One Sunday morning another minister was filling the pulpit. Tommy seemed rilling rumbled. Finally he leaned over to his mother and in a very audible whisper said: "Mother, what's become of St. John?"

THE BULLET MARKED SPEECH

Colonel Roosevelt's speech, prepared for delivery in Milwaukee, and which he began to speak but was unable to complete, was as follows:

"I ask you men and women of Wisconsin to read the progressive platform on social and industrial justice, on the right of the people to rule, on business and corporations. You will find therein the doctrines preached by such leaders of thought here in Wisconsin as President Van Hise and Dr. McCarthy, both of whom I consulted and by whose advice I profited in making my 'confession of faith.'"

"You in Wisconsin have occupied an advanced position in all these matters and at every point, when you have been asked to enact a child labor law or a workman's compensation law, or a law to prevent occupational disease, or anything of that kind, the argument has been made against you that as the other states had no such laws it meant a detriment to Wisconsin's industries for you to pass them."

"The objection has a real basis of justification. For instance, the other day in Colorado when I stopped at Pueblo where the Colorado Fuel and Iron company has a plant. This plant has recently been condemned by the best authorities in this country, because of the excessive hours of labor, because there is no day rest for the laborer during the week, because there is inadequate protection for their lives, limbs and health."

Fear Loss of Companies. "I asked the Colorado people why they did not pass laws to put a stop to these abuses and they answered that if they did it would probably result in the plant's being moved into one of the neighboring states where there were no such laws."

"While in North Carolina the other day several of the mill owners told me they would be glad to see the women and children workers protected by legislation such as we advocated, provided it were done nationally, but if it were done within the state only it would mean that the industries of certain neighboring states would be encouraged at their expense inasmuch as the competition was in the common market over the whole country."

"Here in Milwaukee your hosiery plants are seriously threatened by the competition of hosiery plants in other parts of the country where they have less advanced labor legislation than you have here."

Urges Them to Stand Firm

"Your business leagues here in Milwaukee, here in Wisconsin, will tell you that instance after instance has come to their knowledge of industries declining to enter the state because you have laid down for securing decent treatment for laborers would mean that they would be put at a disadvantage in the common competitive market."

"Now, friends, I know you will never retreat an inch from the position you have taken in behalf of human rights. In New York state I have been advocating for years that we put ourselves abreast of the standards you have taken, because I will never consent to sacrificing human rights, to sacrificing the manhood, and womanhood, and childhood of the land for the sake of any commercial advantage."

"But it is the duty of wise statesmanship to secure both the human rights and the commercial advantage when it can be done, and it can be done by making these laws national and uniform instead of local and conflicting. The welfare of the womanhood and childhood of America is an American asset. All of us throughout this country are bound to shape things so that the next generation of American citizens will be equal to the high and responsible duties of American citizenship."

Regrets Loss of La Follette

"Under these circumstances it has been a matter of genuine regret to me that Senator La Follette, who has done so much for the progressive cause, has felt that because of his antagonism to me he was obliged to range himself against the progressive movement in this campaign, thereby giving to his old time enemies, the reactionaries, a much needed support which they have acknowledged by the first praise they have given him in twenty years."

"It has been asserted that I did not take sides with the La Follette people in their campaign in Wisconsin in 1904. This is an error. On October 16th of that year I made my position clear in a letter to Mr. Cortelyou, chairman of the national republican committee, which read as follows:

"I think Babcock and his people should be told that, especially in view of the decision of the supreme court, there must not be any kind of favoritism shown by us toward the 'stalwarts.' Under the decision of the supreme court any weakening of the national ticket is a weakening of the republican ticket. I should assume that Spooner, Quarles and the rest would at once withdraw their ticket and leave but one republican ticket in the field. This certainly ought to be done. If Foraker has gone to Wisconsin under the aus-

A TEN CENT BOX OF "CASCARETS"

Insures you against Headache, Biliousness, Constipation or a Bad Stomach.

Put aside—just once—the Salts, Cathartic Pills, Castor Oils or purgative waters which merely force a passageway through the bowels, but do not thoroughly cleanse, freshen and purify these drainage or alimentary organs, and have no effect whatever upon the liver and stomach.

Keep your inside organs pure and fresh with Cascarets, which thoroughly cleanse the stomach, remove the undigested, sour and fermenting food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the intestines and bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will make you feel great by morning. They work while you sleep—never gripe, sicken and cost only 10 cents a box from your druggist. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never have Headache, Biliousness, coated tongue, Indigestion, Sour Stomach or Constipated bowels. Cascarets belong in every household. Children just love to take them.—Advertisement.

pieces of the "stalwart" committee he should be recalled at once. If Babcock will not be reasonable then can't you take everything concerning Wisconsin out of his hands?"

"Again and again I have borne testimony in speech and in writings in the Outlook to what Senator La Follette has accomplished in the way of progressive leadership and I have never said one unkind word about him. Until I became a candidate last winter Mr. La Follette never spoke of me publicly except in terms of cordial approval of what I have done and was doing in the presidency."

"For example, on April 10, 1907, the Associated Press reported him as saying in Helena, Mont.:

"The railroads will force him to become a candidate if I am correctly informed as to the action of Harriman and his associates. Abusing the president will result in Roosevelt renouncing his declarations not to run again. The president is entitled to another term and the people are entitled to Roosevelt. We must have Roosevelt again."

La Follette's View on Record. "In La Follette's Magazine of March 9, 1909, Mr. La Follette summed up the record of my administration as follows:

"Roosevelt steps from the stage gracefully. He has ruled his party to a large extent again its will. He has played a large part in the world's work for seven years. The activities of his remarkably forceful personality have been so manifold that it will long before his true rating will be fixed in the opinion of the race. He is said to think that the three great things done by him are the undertaking of the construction of the Panama canal and its rapid and successful carrying forward, the making of peace between Russia and Japan, and the sending around the world of the fleet."

Same View Must Hold Now

"These are the views that Senator La Follette held of my administration, and they must control as against anything that is now said of that administration. Mr. La Follette has an entire right to express an adverse opinion of anything I have done since the date he wrote this article, but not of what I did prior to the date of the article."

Don't think you're smart, don't act smart, and you'll soon win the reputation of being smart.

CARELESS ABOUT HIS OWN FATE

Roosevelt's Assailant Refuses to Be Worried by What Will Happen to Him

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 15.—John Schrank, the man who attempted assassination of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt last night, showed no emotion shortly before 10 a. m. today when a warrant charging him with "assault with intent to kill and murder one Theodore Roosevelt," was read to him in his cell at the county jail. The man will be arraigned in court some time during the day according to District Attorney Zabel.

Schrank admitted to newspaper men today that he does not care what becomes of himself and reiterated his statement that he was sorry his bullet did not put an end to the third party leader.

"I am not worried about what they are going to do with me," said the prisoner. "That is a most trivial matter in my mind. I am only sorry that my intentions were not realized and that I failed to kill Roosevelt. I am able to stand the consequences of my act. No man has a right to a third term."

Schrank talked freely to newspapermen and jail attaches today. Asked if he had ever had a sweetheart, he immediately stated that he had and her name was Elsie Zeigler, but he added "she went down on the General Slocum and I have never felt right since."

Schrank told jail officials early today that he was hungry. A plate of sausage and bread and a cup of coffee was set before him. He took a bite of the food and left it untouched, saying that his appetite had failed him.

LADIES' AID PLANS AN ANNUAL BAZAAR

The Ladies' Aid society of the Caledonia Street M. E. church held their monthly meeting in the church parlors last Friday evening, when Mesdames Betsinger, Erickson, Egan, J. Davis and George Larkin served. Mrs. Newsum, wife of a former pastor, was present at the meeting and gave an interesting talk. Plans were laid for the annual bazaar and each division is now busy working for this occasion. Meeting days and the places where they are to meet were announced for each division.

PICKS DANGEROUS BED

The light from an approaching engine resulted in the discovery of Mr. Charles Young, 415 North Twelfth street, lying across the Burlington tracks at Second and Jay streets in a stupor at 8:30 last night. Before the engine reached him, he was dragged from the track by a pedestrian who turned him over to the police. Young paid a fine of $1 and costs in police court this morning.

Why Salves Can't Cure Eczema

Since the old fashioned theory of curing eczema through the blood has been given up by scientists, many different salves have been tried for skin diseases. But it has been found that these salves only clog the pores and cannot penetrate to the inner skin below the epidermis where the eczema germs are lodged.

This—the quality of penetrating—probably explains the tremendous success of the well known liquid eczema remedy, oil of wintergreen, thymol, glycerine, etc., as compounded in D. D. Prescription.

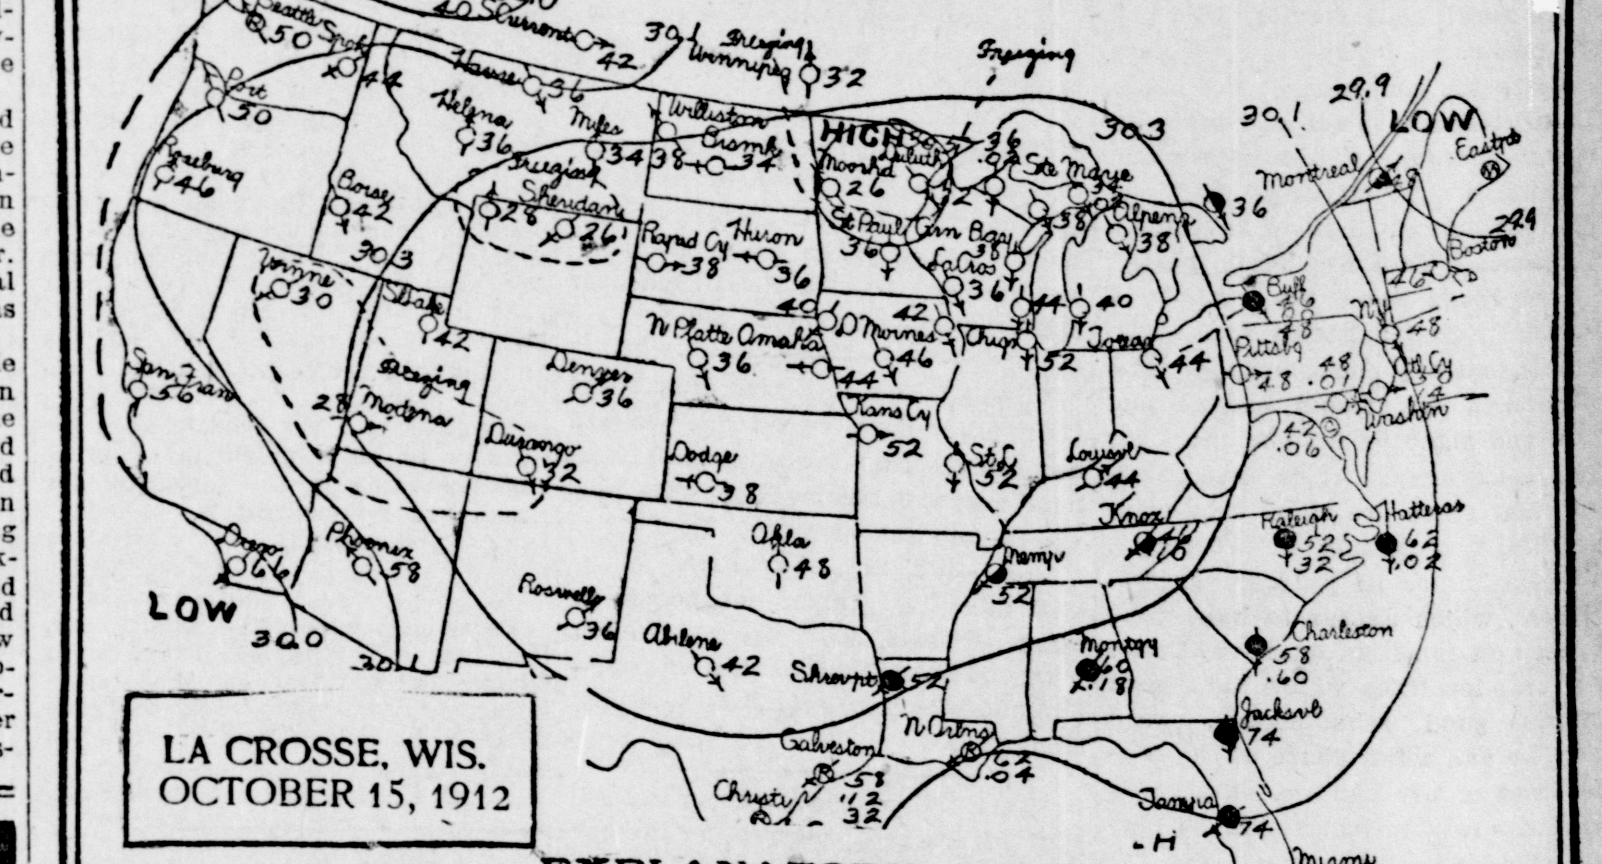

We have sold other remedies for skin troubles but none that we can recommend as highly as this for we know that D. D. stops the itch at once. We can give you a good size bottle for 50 cents that will be enough to prove it.

Of course all other druggists have D. D. D. Prescription—go to them if can't come to us—but don't accept some big profit substitute.

But if you come to our store, we are so certain of what D. D. will do for you that we offer you a full size bottle on this guarantee:—If you do not find that it takes away the itch AT ONCE, it costs you not a cent. Columbian Drug store, Hoehschler Bros.

JAIL BREAKER HEADS THE BILL

Brindamour, the Handcuff King, Closes Majestic Program the First Half of Week

Brindamour, the original handcuff king and jail breaker, who claims to hold the record for breaking out of more prisons than any other man, is the closing feature of the bill at the Majestic this week. He escapes from all varieties of leg irons and handcuffs in record time, and thoroughly mystifies the audience. Unlike many fatter breakers, Brindamour does not use the cabinet in making his escapes.

Bradley Martin and Edith Fabbrini have a clever dancing and singing number, with the dancing the high light. Eccentric and fancy dancing of the highest order, including a bit of excellent toe-dancing by Miss Fabbrini, make up the program of the act. It is one of the best exhibitions staged here for some time.

Vernon and company—the company consisting of a number of dummies—present a ventriloquial act of merit. The number of changes Mr. Vernon manages to secure with one voice, is wonderful. There is a lot of comedy in the act, as well.

Miss Williamine Bowman, a charming young lady with a sweet voice, captivated the house last night with her original ways of singing new songs.

The Four Victors, leaping athletes, perform a number of new and very hard feats of acrobatic tumbling, and received a generous round of applause last night.

WILLING TO TAKE OATH

As to the Truthfulness of Statements in Beneath Letter, Says Mrs. Cook

Denison, Texas.—"You may print any statement from this letter you please," writes Mrs. Jess Cook of 207 1/2 Main street, this city, "and I am willing to swear to its truthfulness."

On the third day of April I had an operation performed, for womanly trouble, thinking that would make me well.

In a few weeks after the operation, I got down again, and I was advised to have another operation. I would not listen to this.

Having heard so much about Cardui, the woman's tonic, I decided I would try it.

I have taken only seven bottles, and believe I am a well woman. Have no pains at all, and the other trouble has disappeared. Have gained both in health and strength.

My weight now is 149 pounds. Before taking Cardui it was 105 pounds.

I really know that I am well, but keep a bottle of Cardui in the house all the time, for use in case I need it.

Several of my lady friends are already taking Cardui on my advice, and I wish all other suffering women would try it.

Cardui will surely do as much for you as it did for the writer of the above letter, if you will only give it a trial.

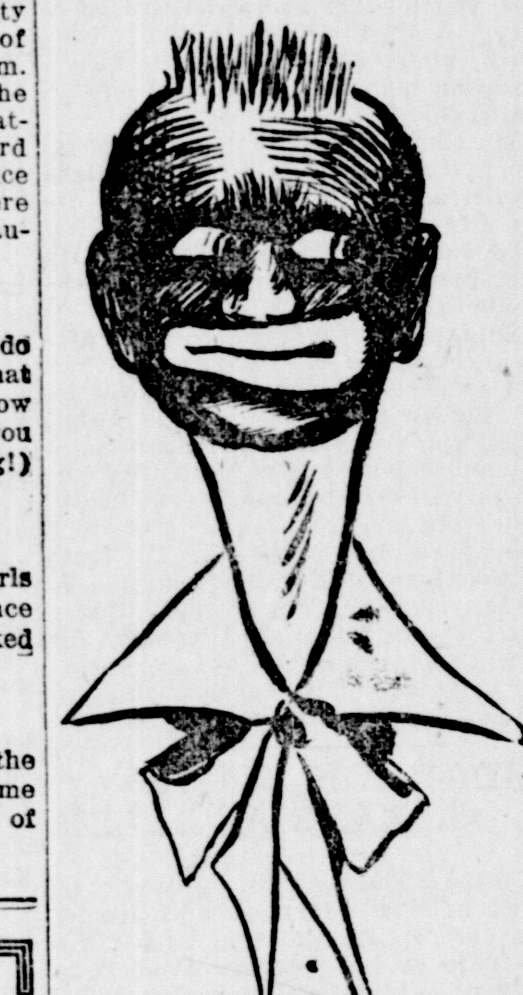

If you are sick, it may be just the medicine you need.

SOCIETY

ENTERTAINS THE D. A. R.

The La Crosse Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution was entertained handsomely by Mrs. C. S. Van Auker yesterday afternoon. This was the first meeting of the season and was an unusually large and interesting one. After the business meeting a program of music both vocal and instrumental was rendered. Miss Helen Burke gave two solos for which she received many compliments. Miss Miriam Harrison delighted the audience with several selections. Miss Helen Dorset read Miles Standish, which was illustrated with microscope slides. This was a very entertaining part of the program. Refreshments were served.

Mrs. F. A. Cotton sat at the head of the table and poured the coffee. Mrs. Alfred Harrison at the opposite end served the salad, and Mrs. Van Auker, Miss Miriam Harrison and Miss Wheeler assisted in serving.

Mrs. Van Auker served a dinner to the serving ladies, augmented by the presence of Mrs. Atherton of Sparta and President Cotton of the Normal school. This was a delightful entertainment which all appreciated.

Mrs. George Burton, regent, and Mrs. B. C. Smith, secretary of the chapter, left today to attend the state convention which will be held at Plymouth, Wis.

NEW DISCOVERY QUICKLY CURES KIDNEY AND BLADDER TROUBLES

Chronic Sufferers Find Relief After Few Doses are Taken

If you are bothered with backache—or rheumatism, have disagreeable, annoying bladder or urinary disorders to contend with—or suffer with any other of the many miseries that come from weak kidneys, here is a guaranteed remedy you can depend upon, no matter what else may have failed to cure you.

It is a positive fact that the new discovery, Croxone, permanently overcomes such diseases. It is the most wonderful remedy ever made for ridding the system of uric acid. Pills, tablets and other remedies at the best merely stimulate the kidneys, giving temporary relief. Croxone removes the cause and cures the troubles.

It soaks right in and cleans out the stopped up kidneys and makes them filter and sift out all the poisonous waste matter from the blood. It neutralizes and dissolves the uric acid that lodges in the joints and muscles, causing rheumatism; soothes and heals the delicate linings of the bladder; and puts the kidneys and urinary organs in clean, strong, healthy condition.

More than a few doses of Croxone are seldom required to relieve even the obstinate long standing cases, while it cures the most severe form of kidney, bladder trouble, and rheumatism in a surprisingly short time.

You will find Croxone entirely different from all other remedies. There is nothing else on earth like it.

It is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results. An original package costs but a trifle at any first class drug store. All druggists are authorized to personally return the purchase price if Croxone fails to give the desired results the very first time you use it.

ROOSEVELT MEN GAIN CONFIDENCE

Profess to Believe Attempted Assassination Means Victory for Bull Moose

The chief topic of discussion among those interested in politics today is the attempted assassination of Theodore Roosevelt in Milwaukee last night. The interest centers on the question of what effect the New York madman's act will have on the tangled situation in Wisconsin. While there are many opinions on the probable effect on the other candidates for the presidency, one and all seem to agree that Roosevelt's support, not only in the nation but in the state, will be augmented in no small measure.

While the bull moose men were worried over their leader's physical condition they were nevertheless jubilant over what they profess to believe the act that gives them the victory in a hard fought campaign. The question of whether Roosevelt would receive his added support from the ranks of the Taft men or the Wilson supporters was discussed at some length in various quarters today and some of the disinterested operators (if there be such) held that Wilson would be the loser.

Nevertheless politicians of all faiths are anticipating a speech of unusual interest when State Senator George L. Record of New Jersey hall appear at the bull moose rally at Linker hall tonight. Mr. Record said to be one of the original Roosevelt progressives and stands very close to the throne. Whether he will divulge the future course of the moosemen at the rally tonight of course will not be revealed until he appears on the platform. But the few faithful who have been keeping the Roosevelt fires burning in this rather un hospitable neck of the woods are predicting things today that they never talked out of camp before.

RIVALS CONDOLE WITH ROOSEVELT

Headquarters in this city was swamped with messages directed to Colonel Roosevelt expressing sympathy and congratulations at his narrow escape from death. Governor Hiram Johnson called over the long distance telephone from Cleveland to express the hope that the colonel would "live to lead the great cause," and to obtain the latest news of the bull moose leader's condition.

GET TO SMOKE IN A FUSILLADE FOR SIX EARNED RUNS

Tesreau and Meyers; for Boston: Wood and Cady.

Being delayed on account of the crowd on the field.

Game Called

The game started at 2:08 p. m. There was a delay to fix left field bleacher fence, broken down by the overflowing crowd.

First Inning

NEW YORK—Devore singled to Wagner in front of second. Doyle singled to center. Devore and Doyle worked a double steal. Devore reaching third and Doyle second. Snodgrass doubled to right, scoring Devore and Doyle. Murray sacrificed Stahl unassisted. Snodgrass taking third. Merkle singled to left, scoring Snodgrass, and Merkle took second on Lewis' throw to the plate. Herzog grounded to Wood, who threw to Wagner and Wagner threw to Gardner, who tagged out Merkle between third and second. Herzog singled to left, scoring Herzog. Fletcher singled to right, sending Meyers to third and on Hoopers throw to third, Fletcher took second. Tesreau singled, beating out a hard bouncer which Wood knocked down and deflected toward third. Meyers scoring and Fletcher taking third. Devore up. Fletcher scored while Tesreau was being retired. Cady to Yerkes. Stahl to Wagner. Six runs, seven hits, no errors.

Second Inning

NEW YORK—Hall replaced Wood for Boston. Devore walked. Devore stole second. Doyle walked. Devore was caught off second. Hall to Wagner. Snodgrass singled to right. Hooper's quick throw holding Doyle at second. Doyle scored and Snodgrass went from first to third on Hall's wild throw to Wagner to catch Doyle off second. Murray filed to Wagner. Merkle up. Merkle out, Wagner to Stahl. One run, one hit, one error.

Hall was very wild and besides walking two of the five Giants to first, gave the other three, three balls. Cady gave him two wild pitches.

Third Inning

NEW YORK—Herzog singled to center. Meyers singled to left. Fletcher forced Herzog at third. Hall to Gardner. Tesreau out. Hall to Stahl. Meyers went to third and Fletcher to second on the play. Devore filed out to Hooper. No runs, two hits, no errors.

Hooper's catch of Devore's fly, which made the third out, was one of the prettiest fielding efforts of the world's series and cut off two runs. Hooper got the ball on the run almost against the right field fence.

Fourth Inning

NEW YORK—Doyle out, Stahl unassisted. Snodgrass filed to Wagner. Murray out, Yerkes to Stahl. Hall getting an assist for deflecting the ball to Yerkes. No runs, no hits, no errors.

A brilliant catch for Devore which retired Speaker in the last half of the third, saved Tesreau when he was wobbling badly. The big fellow was unsteady. Hall missed a chance to score after Devore's catch by waiting too long at third before he started.

Fifth Inning

NEW YORK—Merkle out, Cady to Stahl. Herzog struck out. Meyers singled to left. Fletcher's forced Meyers, Wagner to Yerkes. No runs, one hit, no errors.

A lucky record by Doyle of a grass cutter grounder off Wagner's bat cut short a Red Sox rally. The ball hit Doyle's wrist and bounded from second base. The Giant captain dashed after it and by a snap throw to second to Fletcher, forced Stahl at second.

Sixth Inning

NEW YORK—Merkle out, Cady to Stahl. Herzog struck out. Meyers singled to left. Fletcher's forced Meyers, Wagner to Yerkes. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Seventh Inning

NEW YORK—Merkle singled to center. Herzog filed to Lewis. Meyers grounded to Wagner whose throw to Yerkes was too late to get Merkle at second, and Merkle was safe at second and Meyers at first. Fletcher filed to Speaker. Tesreau singled to right, scoring Merkle, but Hooper's throw to Wagner held Meyers at second. Devore filed to Lewis. One run, two hits, no errors.

Hundreds of Boston fans began to leave the park when the Giants got to Hall again in the first half of the seventh. There was no enthusiasm in those who remained.

Eighth Inning

NEW YORK—Doyle singled to right. Snodgrass out, Stahl unassisted. Doyle taking second. Murray filed out to Speaker, whose throw to third held Doyle at second. Merkle grounded to Wagner and was out at first. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Ninth Inning

NEW YORK—Herzog walked. Wilson singled to center, sending Herzog to third and Herzog scored on Speaker's wide throw to third. The ball rolling to the stand, Wilson took second on the play. Fletcher lined out to Speaker, who ran in to second and made a double play unassisted by tagging the bag and doubling up Wilson. Tesreau walked. Devore out, Yerkes to Stahl. One run, one hit, one error.

Tenth Inning

BOSTON, Lewis walked. Gardner struck out. Stahl forced Lewis. Herzog to Doyle. Wagner out, Tesreau to Merkle. No runs, no hits, no errors.

AWAY WITH CATARRH A FILTHY DISEASE

A Safe Old-fashioned Remedy Quickly Relieves All Distressing Symptoms

If you are subject to frequent colds, or if you have any of the distressing symptoms of catarrh, such as stuffed up feeling in the head, profuse discharge from the nose, sores in the nose, phlegm in the throat causing hawking and spitting, dull pain in the head or ringing in the ears, just anoint the nostrils or rub the throat or chest with a little Ely's Cream Balm, and see how quickly you will get relief.

In a few minutes you will feel your head clearing, and after using the Balm for a day or so the nasty discharge will be checked, the pain, soreness and fever gone, and you will no longer be offensive to yourself and your friends by constantly hawking, spitting and blowing. Shake off the grip of catarrh before it impairs your sense of taste and hearing and poisons your whole system. In a short time you can be completely cured of this distressing disease by using Ely's Cream Balm. This healing, antiseptic Balm does not fool you by short, deceptive relief, but completely overcomes the disease. It clears the nose, head and throat of all the rank poison, soothes, heals and strengthens the raw, sore membranes, making you proof against colds and catarrh.

One application will convince you, and a 50 cent bottle will generally cure the worst case of catarrh. It is guaranteed. Get it from your druggist today. O. T. Erhart.—Advertisement.

emerge from the Gilpatrick hotel, where the attempted assassination was made, was such as not to create suspicion. He wore a light grey suit, light overcoat and was neatly dressed.

Sorry He Failed

Schrank sat in his cell unprotected today, talked freely and joked with his guards who stood near. He repeated that he was sorry his bullet did not kill Roosevelt, because it was the burden of his convictions that had he been successful he would have performed a signal achievement for the country.

Schrank stated he had known Roosevelt since the latter was police commissioner in New York in 1895, but his first attention was drawn to Roosevelt when the latter cried "Thief" at the Chicago convention. He related following the colonel to Charleston, S. C., on his southern trip. He went from New York to Charleston by boat. Failing to get at Roosevelt there he followed him to Atlanta, Ga., where he again failed. Schrank told of leaving a bag at the Mosley hotel, Charleston, which contained a deed to property on Eighty-first street, New York, worth $25,000, and his naturalistic papers. The bag yet remains there.

He then went to Chattanooga, Tenn., to Evansville, Ind., Indianapolis, and then to Chicago. His every attempt to kill Roosevelt in Chicago was frustrated, he confessed. He then determined to try again in Milwaukee.

Schrank, according to his statement, came here Sunday morning and awaited the arrival of Roosevelt. He registered at the Argyle hotel, under the name of Walter Ross, and did not divulge his real identity until he was arrested and taken to the police station.

Schrank will be held by the local authorities until determination is made regarding his preliminary hearing and trial. The penalty for Schrank's crime, if Colonel Roosevelt recovers, will be from one to fifteen years in the penitentiary.

JUDGE T. H. HENRY SPEAKS AT SALEM

Judge Thomas H. Henry, of Newark, New Jersey, and Joseph Boschert, of La Crosse, were the speakers at the second democratic rally of this campaign at West Salem last night. Roberts' hall, where the meeting was held, was filled to capacity, the larger part of the audience being farmers living in the vicinity of West Salem. Judge Henry discussed national questions, dwelling chiefly on Woodrow Wilson's accomplishments in the state of New Jersey. He declared that the democratic candidate for the presidency is one of the greatest statesmen of this age.

Mr. Boschert confined his address to a dissertation on the differences of the republican and democratic parties in this state. He attacked the McGovern administration as being extravagant and unstable in the matter of legislation. He particularly scored the income tax law, which he termed inequitable and unfair to the small home holder.

AWAY WITH CATARRH A FILTHY DISEASE

A Safe Old-fashioned Remedy Quickly Relieves All Distressing Symptoms

If you are subject to frequent colds, or if you have any of the distressing symptoms of catarrh, such as stuffed up feeling in the head, profuse discharge from the nose, sores in the nose, phlegm in the throat causing hawking and spitting, dull pain in the head or ringing in the ears, just anoint the nostrils or rub the throat or chest with a little Ely's Cream Balm, and see how quickly you will get relief.

In a few minutes you will feel your head clearing, and after using the Balm for a day or so the nasty discharge will be checked, the pain, soreness and fever gone, and you will no longer be offensive to yourself and your friends by constantly hawking, spitting and blowing. Shake off the grip of catarrh before it impairs your sense of taste and hearing and poisons your whole system. In a short time you can be completely cured of this distressing disease by using Ely's Cream Balm. This healing, antiseptic Balm does not fool you by short, deceptive relief, but completely overcomes the disease. It clears the nose, head and throat of all the rank poison, soothes, heals and strengthens the raw, sore membranes, making you proof against colds and catarrh.

One application will convince you, and a 50 cent bottle will generally cure the worst case of catarrh. It is guaranteed. Get it from your druggist today. O. T. Erhart.—Advertisement.

emerge from the Gilpatrick hotel, where the attempted assassination was made, was such as not to create suspicion. He wore a light grey suit, light overcoat and was neatly dressed.

Sorry He Failed

Schrank sat in his cell unprotected today, talked freely and joked with his guards who stood near. He repeated that he was sorry his bullet did not kill Roosevelt, because it was the burden of his convictions that had he been successful he would have performed a signal achievement for the country.

Schrank stated he had known Roosevelt since the latter was police commissioner in New York in 1895, but his first attention was drawn to Roosevelt when the latter cried "Thief" at the Chicago convention. He related following the colonel to Charleston, S. C., on his southern trip. He went from New York to Charleston by boat. Failing to get at Roosevelt there he followed him to Atlanta, Ga., where he again failed. Schrank told of leaving a bag at the Mosley hotel, Charleston, which contained a deed to property on Eighty-first street, New York, worth $25,000, and his naturalistic papers. The bag yet remains there.

He then went to Chattanooga, Tenn., to Evansville, Ind., Indianapolis, and then to Chicago. His every attempt to kill Roosevelt in Chicago was frustrated, he confessed. He then determined to try again in Milwaukee.

Schrank, according to his statement, came here Sunday morning and awaited the arrival of Roosevelt. He registered at the Argyle hotel, under the name of Walter Ross, and did not divulge his real identity until he was arrested and taken to the police station.

Schrank will be held by the local authorities until determination is made regarding his preliminary hearing and trial. The penalty for Schrank's crime, if Colonel Roosevelt recovers, will be from one to fifteen years in the penitentiary.

JUDGE T. H. HENRY SPEAKS AT SALEM

Judge Thomas H. Henry, of Newark, New Jersey, and Joseph Boschert, of La Crosse, were the speakers at the second democratic rally of this campaign at West Salem last night. Roberts' hall, where the meeting was held, was filled to capacity, the larger part of the audience being farmers living in the vicinity of West Salem. Judge Henry discussed national questions, dwelling chiefly on Woodrow Wilson's accomplishments in the state of New Jersey. He declared that the democratic candidate for the presidency is one of the greatest statesmen of this age.

Mr. Boschert confined his address to a dissertation on the differences of the republican and democratic parties in this state. He attacked the McGovern administration as being extravagant and unstable in the matter of legislation. He particularly scored the income tax law, which he termed inequitable and unfair to the small home holder.

See shortly before six o'clock last night. It had been planned for him to take dinner on his special car, but he yielded to the entreaties of a local committee and went to the Gilpatrick Hotel. After dinner he was escorted to an automobile which was to take him to the Auditorium.

Harry Cochems, Philip J. Roosevelt, Elbert Martin and Col. Cecil Lyon, members of the colonel's own party, accompanied him from the hotel and, contrary to the usual custom, allowed him to enter the machine first.

Shot in Auto

All had followed the colonel into the automobile and Roosevelt was standing in the tonneau for a last greeting to the crowd, when the shot rang out. The bull moose leader swayed slightly but recovering himself in a moment, he turned to Cochems and said: "Sh-sh! Not a word! They've pinked me. Don't say a word."

But Martin, the colonel's stenographer, had already thrown himself upon the would-be assassin and borne him to the ground. Col. Lyon jumped from the machine, followed by Cochems and the two, with Martin, wrested the pistol from the hand of the assailant.

By this time the crowd of several hundred people was making a rapid advance upon Schrank. Cries of "Lynch him!" and "Kill him!" were raised, but Roosevelt, with a wave of his hand, urged the crowd to be quiet. "Bring the man to me," he said. "Don't hurt him."

But Cochems, Martin and Captain A. O. Girard, a former Rough Rider, dragged their prisoner into the kitchen of the hotel and held him there until the local police took him to a cell. Roosevelt ordered the driver of the machine to continue to the Auditorium.

Against the entreaties of his friends, he insisted on speaking and was introduced by Cochems, who warned the crowd that the colonel had met with an accident, but asked them not to worry, as it was not serious.

The colonel then began his speech and continued until he swayed to and fro from weakness, occasioned by his loss of blood and the members of his party closed in on him and bore him from the place to the Emergency hospital.

In the meanwhile the assailant had been taken to police headquarters. He gave his name as John Schrank, East Tenth street, New York, and said he had worked at a hotel there, of which a relative was proprietor.

Tells Why He Shot

"Why did you shoot the colonel?" he was asked.

"I read the stories about him in the New York World and the Herald," replied Schrank, "and I thought he was wrong to seek a third term. I followed him from Montgomery and Chattanooga, and Atlanta, and all through the south, waiting for a chance."

"I followed him since September 14,"

September 14, 1901, is the date on which President McKinley died after being shot at Buffalo by Czolgoz.

Schrank had $157 in his pocket, some newspaper clippings and a copy of the Roosevelt itinerary for the present trip.

He was plainly dressed in a gray suit of check, was about 36 years old and showed the effects of the strain incident to his long pursuit of the colonel.

Fearing that their prisoner would be lynched, the authorities spirited him off to the county jail, where he is now held under heavy guard.

At the Emergency hospital Roosevelt walked into the operating room

unassisted, and submitted to examination.

Dr. Joseph C. Bloodgood of Johns Hopkins University hospital, Baltimore, was visiting friends in Milwaukee, and on hearing of the shooting, he hurried to the hospital and assisted Dr. Scurry Terrell, the colonel's private physician, Dr. S. F. Sorensen of Racine, Dr. Stratton of the hospital staff and several others in their efforts to locate the bullet. An X-ray photograph showed the missile lodged against the wall of the chest on the right side and just beneath the tenth rib. It was deemed advisable not to probe for the shot until the colonel could be brought to Chicago.

During the preliminaries to the operation which was decided upon at Mercy hospital, Colonel Roosevelt patiently submitted to two X-ray examinations. While they were in progress he laughed and joked with the surgeons, and there was a twinkle in his eyes that indicated that his physical injury was not affecting his cheerfulness.

Good Speech, Says T. R.

"Carrying that speech in that pocket certainly was a lucky thing for you," said Dr. Ochsner, one of the Chicago surgeons who was to help in the operation.

"Ho, ho," laughed the colonel. "That speech would have stopped more than a bullet. It was a great speech."

Dr. John B. Murphy, who was to wield the knife, stopped peering into the X-ray machine and looked at the colonel's face.

"Come pretty near getting you, colonel," said the surgeon.

"Not with a little bullet like that," replied Roosevelt.

"They will have to use bigger calibre lead than that if they want to get me. It would take a Mowitzer to kill a bull moose."

The colonel jokingly chided the surgeons for "taking the case so seriously." He insisted he was "feeling fine."

"I'll be out campaigning in the next twenty-four hours," he said, "if they let me have my way about it. I feel great this morning, and I could deliver a speech now if you doctors would let me get up."

Shaved Himself

After the wound was dressed, Roosevelt returned to the special car and ordered some warm water. Then he entered his own compartment and shaved himself and went to bed.

The train reached Chicago in the early dawn and at 6:15 the colonel was taken to Mercy hospital in an ambulance.

The greatest danger was from blood poison, the surgeons agreed, by the bullet, which had been fired from a rusty revolver, and possibly had deposited infection as it ploughed through the colonel's clothing, his thick bundle of manuscript of the speech he was to deliver at Milwaukee late last night. His spectacle case and into his body.

Speech Saves Colonel.

The manuscript of his speech, a steel spectacle case and a thick coat lessened the force of the bullet and probably saved the colonel's life. The speech and case were in the right-hand breast pocket of his small coat.

Dr. Terrell, the physician traveling with the Roosevelt party, was indisposed and had intended to remain at the hotel. He was in his room on the fourth floor when he heard the shot and was told that somebody had been killed.

When he reached the side of the colonel, he demanded to know what was the matter. "Oh, nothing," replied Roosevelt. "I want to see what's wrong," the doctor insisted, but was unable to do so until the colonel submitted to a preliminary examination behind the stage of the auditorium.

These efforts were made to induce him to go to a hospital. "I'll make my speech if I die making it," he declared. "Boys, this may be my last message but I'm going to deliver it."

Throughout his speech, Roosevelt showed unusual tolerance toward his enemies and, instead of the sharp retorts which he usually administers, his tone was one of mild reproach.

He tried to minimize the fears of his friends and the audience, but his manner was more of a man who anticipated a fatal result of the attack, and he seemed to be making a last supreme effort to implant his message in the hearts of the hearers.

Elbert E. Martin, the colonel's stenographer, who was the first to seize Schrank after the shooting, joined the Roosevelt party August 15. He was born in Manchester, N. H., but at present his home is at Rhinelander, Wis.

A week ago Martin bowled over a man who grabbed the Roosevelt coat in a crowd at Houghton, Mich. It is likely that Schrank would have had small chance for his life had it not been for the appeals of Harry Cochems. After the bullet was fired, Col. Cecil Lyon, the colonel's body guard, pulled out a revolver and went after the would-be murderer.

Lands on Schrank.

At the same time Martin made a spring clearing the automobile and landing upon Schrank, who stood in the roadway on the right side of the automobile.

Martin caught Schrank about the neck and bore him to the ground and Lyon then made a desperate effort to reach the man's side.

Cochems then joined his friends, and the three struggled in the street with their captive.

"Don't kill him, John!" yelled Cochems, who wrested the pistol from Schrank's hand. "The colonel don't want you to kill him, John."

Martin, who had almost choked the man to death, desisted.

"My name isn't John," was his reply to Cochems.

WOUND NOT FATAL BUT MAY PROVE SERIOUS IS REPORT AT HOSPITAL

ROOSEVELT WAS ON WAY TO TALK AT AUDITORIUM

John Shrank Jumps Out of
Crowd and Fires Shot at Close Range

COCHEMS OVERPOWERS HIM

Leaps Upon Would-be Assassin and Turns Him
Over to the Police

(By Special Wire.)
MILWAUKEE, Wis.,
Oct. 15.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, former president
of the United States and third party candidate for re-election, was shot through
the right breast by John Shrank of New York, while entering an automobile
which was to take him from the Hotel Gilpatrick to the auditorium, where he was to make an address last night.
The shooting occurred at 7:45 p. m. At first it was thought the wound was not serious and Colonel Roosevelt insisted on delivering his address but later last night it was discovered that the bullet had lodged deeply

in the body of the ex-president and physicians were rushed from Chicago.

Assailant Captured

Schrank was thrown to the walk by E. E. Martin, the colonel's private secretary,
who were in the auto with
him, and turned over to the police. He was taken to central police station where he
made an awful confession,
admitting that he had been
following the ex-president
for several weeks, waiting
for a chance to kill him.

Throughout his address the
colonel spoke with difficulty, although showing no signs of pain, yet weakening perceptibly toward the end, because of loss of blood, declaring that he meant to see the thing
through.

Immediately after his address the colonel was taken to Emergency hospital, where his wound was examined but physicians decided not to remove the bullet until he reached Chicago. After he had been removed to his train, however, the wound
began to bleed afresh and the Chicago physicians were summoned. It is feared that he may be compelled to discontinue all campaign work.

Shows Wound to Crowd

Fully 15,000 people, who packed
the auditorium, cheered Colonel Roosevelt as he bared his breast on the stage, showed them the bloodstains and shouted, "It takes more than that to kill a bull moose."

The ex-president read his entire
address from a manuscript punctured
with holes through which the bullet had passed and but for which he might have been killed.

Time and again friends of te colonel tried to pull him back into his seat and told him that he had spoken long enough.

"I'm all right," he would answer.
"I am feeling better every minute. I am going to make you listen to this speech whether you want to or not."

Because of his wound Colonel Roosevelt did not deliver the entire address he had intended and he prepared his remarks with an extempore address. His excerpt from La Follette's Magazine was read by Thomas J. Mahon, Governor McGovern's candidate for secretary of the republican state central committee.

Papers Saved Life

"I shall have to ask you to be
as quiet as possible," said Colonel Roosevelt at the beginning of his address. "I've just been shot, but it takes more than that to kill a bull
moose. Fortunately I had my manuscript in my pocket. The bullet passed through it and then went into my body and it's there yet. My manuscript probably prevented it's going through my heart."

"But I am not thinking about being shot, I have altogether too many things to talk about. My concern is for many other things, not for my own life. I am ahead of the game
anyway. No man has had a happier life. I have been able to do many things I have wished to do, and I am tensely interested in doing other things, but I am very much disinterested in whether I am shot or
not. I have always thought a private had some right to feel some pangs about his personal safety, but never a colonel when he is occupied
as he ought to be with an absorbing desire to do his duty. I am in this cause with my whole heart because
I believe in the progressive movement. I will feel keenly any blow to that movement. I am not thinking

of my own success or my own life.
I did not know who the man was
who shot me tonight. He was seized
at once by one of my stenographers,
Mr. Martin. He shot to kill me; I am going to show you." (Here Colonel Roosevelt pulled open his coat
and vest to show the blood spots),
then for a moment Colonel Roosevelt
seemed to grow confused and he repeated part of his address.

Hurried to Hospital

Immediately following his speech,
Roosevelt gave in to the entreaties
of his friends and the physicians,
who were summoned, and was hurried through the crowd that thronged the exit to an automobile. He was at once taken to the Emergency hospital, where he was examined with an X-ray, but the surgeons did not attempt to probe for the bullet which was found lodged in the tissues of
his chest just above the diaphragm.

Just before going on the operating
table Roosevelt dictated the following message to his wife: "I have been shot in the breast. The bullet is still in me but there is no danger."
He gave orders that if the telegraph office at Oyster Bay was closed,
the message should be taken to Sagamore Hill by a taxicab.

Shortly after the wound had been dressed and while he was lying on
a cot in the Emergency hospital,
Roosevelt dictated another telegram
to his wife at Oyster Bay. The message was as follows:

Sends Message to Wife

"Am in excellent shape. Made an hour and half speech. The wound is a trivial one. I think they will find that it merely glanced on a rib
and went somewhere into a cavity of the body. It certainly did not touch
a lung and isn't a particle more serious than one of the injuries any of the boys are continually having. Am
at the Emergency hospital at the moment but anticipate going right
on with my engagements. My voice seems to be in good shape. Best love
to Ethel."

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

The boys he referred to in his message to his wife are his sons.

"The colonel is in good shape,"
said Chief of Police J. A. Janssen,
who was present during the X-ray examination. "I do not think the colonel's wound is itself serious although if infections set in it may prove so. The fact that the doctors

did not probe for the bullet makes
it not likely that infections will set
in. His pulse is normal and he is resting easily."

"The bullet lodged in the tissues
of his chest about two inches above
the diaphragm. The wound is three inches deep, lodging the bullet near
the lungs. From the nature of the wound it appears that the bullet took a slight upward course. Colonel Roosevelt suffered little loss of blood."

Shrank was put on the grill at the police headquarters, but made no occurrence statement. At first he declined to divulge his identity, but after that was secured he talked
more freely, and admitted he had followed Roosevelt for the purpose
of killing him since September 21.
His trail after the ex-president had taken him to many cities on the colonel's itinerary. He answered all questions in a matter of fact way, although many of his answers betrayed a diseased mind.

"Do you believe men are justified in taking life?" he was asked, and answered, "No."

"What were you doing at 8 o'clock
tonight?"

"That was all right; he was seeking a third term."

"Don't you belong to the anarchists?"

"I want you to understand I don't belong to any political party. I am not affiliated with no socialists or anarchists. Neither am I a republican or a democrat. I am a free and independent American citizen."

"You seem to be the only one
who objects to a third term."

"Yes, it looks that way, and I'm sorry you're right."

"Have you any police record?"

"Never, but I guess I have one
now."

"What is your religion?"

"I'm a Roman Catholic."

"What church do you belong to
in New York?"

"I haven't attended regular for ten years. The last one I was to be Fifty-fifth street and Fifth avenue."

"Do you ever go to confession?"

"No, sir, you can be a good Catholic without going to church."

"Do you believe in God?"

"Yes."

Shows Bloodstains

Nine thousand people who gathered at the auditorium last night to hear Roosevelt's address saw him
read that address from a manuscript
punctured with holes through which the bullet meant to take his life had passed. They saw him pull aside his coat and vest to show the blood that had flowed from his wound. The audience was vastly sympathetic. Cheer
after cheer swept the hall when Henry Cochems, who introduced Colonel Roosevelt, announced he would speak despite the fact he had been shot, and the building fairly rocked when the colonel showed the blood stains on his clothing and said:

"It takes more than that to kill a bull moose."

Schrank's Statement

Schrank made a complete confession to Chief Janssen. His statement is as follows:

"I formerly ran a saloon at 10
East Tenth street, between Avenues
B and C, New York city. I was born in Erding, Bavaria, two hours out of Munich, the capital. I am 36 years old and came to this country when 9 years old, with my parents. I have been engaged in the saloon business
as proprietor and as an employee nearly all my life, until I decided that it was my duty to kill Colonel Roosevelt. I have been personally acquainted with Roosevelt since the former president was police commissioner of New York in 1895. I was first attracted to him as political personage during the convention in Chicago. I began to think seriously of him as a menace to his country
when he cried, 'Thief' at the convention. I look upon his plan to start a third party as a danger to the country. My knowledge of history, gained through much reading, convinced me that Roosevelt was engaged in a dangerous undertaking. I was convinced that if he was defeated at the fall election he would again cry
'thief' and though his action would plunge the country into a bloody civil war."

"I deemed it my duty, after much consideration of the situation, to put him out of the way. I was living at my home address at the time, but soon afterward I had a dream in which former President McKinley appeared to me. I was told by Mc-Kinley in this dream that it was not Czolgosz who murdered him, but Roosevelt. McKinley, in the dream, told me that his blood was on Roosevelt's hands, and that Roosevelt had killed him so that he might become president."

"I was more deeply impressed by what I read in the newspapers than others and after having this dream was more convinced than ever that I should free the country from the menace of Roosevelt's ambition."

A Strange Halucination

The only papers found upon Schrank's person were a copy of Roosevelt's southern itinerary and three proclamations addressed to the American people. One proclamation set forth that the writer had seen a vision of William McKinley and told him that Roosevelt was his assassin. Another proclamation declared that it is the duty of every citizen to prevent any man holding the presidency for a third term, and declaring that he was willing to die
for his country."

May Have Accomplished
That the police believe that Schrank had an accomplice is suggested by the fact that he will not be arraigned in court at once. He will be held for several days until
the police receive word from cities
he has visited. The police have sent telegrams to the various cities which Schrank has visited, the names of the cities being taken from the list
found in his clothes."

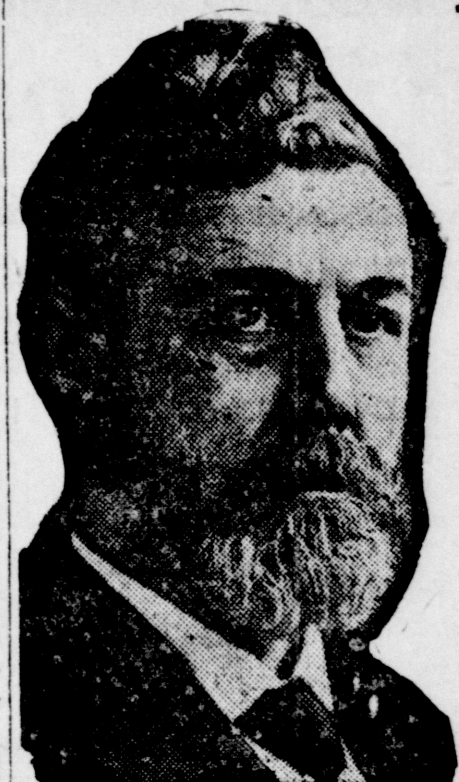

Racing back and forth in cell No.
1 at police headquarters early this morning Schrank kept saying that,
now that he had failed in his mission to end the life of the man who was seeking a third term, someone else

The Doctor's Answers On Health and Beauty Questions

The questions answered below are will apply to any case of similar nature.

may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College
Bldg., College-Ellwood Sts., Dayton,

name and address must be given but only initials of fictitious name will

"Mason" writes: "For years I have been taking medicine to cure constipation, liver trouble and the usual diseases that come from that source.
Headaches, sallow skin, kidney trouble, dark spots before my eyes, dizziness and twinges of rheumatism are getting worse."

Answer: Take three grain sulphur tablets (not sulphur). They are packed in sealed tubes with directions and are convenient, effective and highly curative for such ailments as arise from chronic constipation. If you are dyspeptic, also take tablets trioptine.

"MRS. A. D."—Incontinence of urine can be cured by using the following: Tincture cubens 1 dram; tincture thus aromatic 2 drams and comp. fluid balmwort 1 oz. Give from 10 to 15 drops in water one hour before meals.

"OMA W." writes: "I have suffered with catarrh of the head for many years. This has become so bad that it has affected my blood, also my stomach and bowels to a very great extent. I shall appreciate an immediate answer as I suffer greatly."

Answer: I would advise you to purchase a 2 oz. package of Vilane powder; take one-half teaspoonful of the powder and add to this a pint of warm water, sniff the water from the palm of the hand through the nostrils several times a day. Make a catarrh balm by mixing one teaspoonful of powder with 1 oz. of vaseline, or lard will do, and apply as far up
the nostrils as possible. For the stomach, bowels and blood I would recommend the following tonic: Syrup sarsaparilla comp., 4 ozs. comp. fluid balmwort, 1 oz., and 1 oz. of fluid
ext. buchu. Mix by shaking well in a bottle and take one teaspoonful after each meal and at bed time.

"Gloria" writes: "I would like you to prescribe a good hair and scalp treatment. I am bothered with itching scalp and dandruff. My hair is faded and falling and none of the remedies I have tried have done any permanent good."

Answer: Go to your druggist and obtain a 4 oz. jar of plain yellow
Minylol. Apply as per directions.
This treatment differs from all and I have actually seen the astonishing transformations which result from its use. The dandruff and itching are cured with two or three applications, while it makes the hair glossy, wavy and full of intense natural color.

"Myrtle" writes: "Owing to my extreme thinness I am frequently embarrassed by slighting remarks of young people. Can you prescribe a safe remedy to increase my weight?"

Answer: I have so many gratifying reports from the users of three grain Hypo-Nuclane tablets, that I have become to regard these valuable little tablets as a specific and prescribe them to all who are anemic, thin, wasting, nervous and debilitated. I recommend that you begin their use at once and continue

"Sick M. G." writes: "I have been affected for some months with rheumatism and have taken much medicine in vain. Please give prescription that will cure."

Answer: The most efficient prescription I have ever given for rheumatism is: "Iodide of potassium 2
drams, sodium salicylate, 4 drams;
wine of colchicum, one-half ounce;
comp. essence cardiol, 1 oz.; comp.
fluid balmwort, 1 oz.; and syrup sarsaparilla comp., 5 ozs. Mix and take a teaspoonful at meal time and at bed time.

"Farmwife" writes: "You once recommended a home made cough syrup. I tried it and found it the best cough and cold syrup that I ever heard of. It was so prompt in relieving the severest coughs and colds
and a pint bottle made at home lasted so long that I have forgotten the ingredients. Kindly publish again."

Answer: The splendid laxative, home made cough syrup is made by mixing a 2 1/2 oz. bottle of concentrated essence mentho-laxene with a home made sugar syrup. Directions on the bottle tell how to make and
use. It is a fine, cheap remedy.

greatly with indigestion. Things I like to eat nearly always cause a heavy ill-at-ease feeling in my stomach, and my breath is bad, while I am nervous, irritable and frequently cannot sleep."

Answer: A very excellent treatment which is widely prescribed for its gradual curative action, as well as the instant relief it affords, is tablets trioptine, packed in sealed cartons. Take a pink tablet after breakfast, white tablet after dinner and blue tablet after supper. Continue and the curative agencies will soon restore a natural digestion.

"Mrs. M. C." writes: "I am recovering from a long illness, but am very weak, nervous, sleepless and have little appetite. Can you give me a good tonic restorative treatment?"

Answer: Have the following prescription filled and take a teaspoonful before meals: Syrup of hypophosphites comp. 5 ozs., tincture cadmene comp. 1 oz., (not cadamon).
Mix and shake well before using.
This is a fine nerve tonic and system tonic for old and young.

"M. D. C." writes: "I have always been afraid to try to reduce my weight, but if you will publish a safe, harmless but effective medicine, I will begin at once as I am getting too stout for comfort."

Answer: Obtain separately to avoid substitutes, 1 oz., of glycol
arbolene and 5 ozs. of aromatic elixir. Mix, shake well and for three days take a teaspoonful after each meal; thereafter take two teaspoon-fuls. Continue a sufficient time to properly reduce the weight.

Your Brain Is a Battery

Its thoughts are the sparks
that set Success in motion.

The simplest form of battery requires three factors to make the electric spark—(zinc, copper and an acid.)

The human brain also requires three vital elements to put forth thought — water, albumen and Phosphate of Potash.

In the Brain as in the Battery, let a single element become weakened from yesterday's use and lessened activity follows. Therefore, in order to keep a good working brain or add to its power, one absolutely must use food which contains albumen and Phosphate of Potash.

Why not do a bit of thinking now?

Water and albumen exists plentifully in every-day food, but Phosphate of Potash is often lacking.

That missing element exists freely in the outer coating of wheat and barley, but the miller of white bread flour throws it out because it makes his flour brown instead of white.

Grape-Nuts FOOD

Made of choice wheat and malted barley, retains the rich brain-building Phosphate of Potash required by Nature for supporting bright brains and active minds.

Pure! Wholesome! Appetizing! This food is partly pre-digested and quickly absorbed. A morning dish with cream provides force for accomplishment that many a man has come to know and appreciate.

Common Sense goes a long way toward making Success.

To eat right often means to be right.

BATH TUB TRUST CASE UP

Enamel-ware Manufacturers' Fight on Maryland Decision Among Big Matters

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15. — With the official call of the old crier that the supreme court was in session, the highest tribunal in the United States yesterday took up its work after spending the summer months in vacation. This session will be one of the most important in the history of the court, there being many difficult questions involving millions of dollars to settle.

All the officials of the court have been on duty for over a score of years. The justices nodded pleasantly to distinguished members of the bar who were present for the opening, including the attorney general and members of his staff who came to argue important cases which the government is prosecuting.

Bath Tub Trust Case

Following the opening of the court it is always the custom of the justices to adjourn immediately to pay their respects to the president, but as President Taft was out of the city yesterday, this courtesy was deferred until a later date. The court then took up a number of applications for admissions to practice before it and heard motions for the advancement of cases. Following this brief session, adjournment was taken until today when arguments will be heard in a number of cases specially assigned for a hearing at that time. The most important one will be the so-called "bath tub trust" case in which the enamelware manufacturers are fighting the judgment of the federal courts in Maryland that they have been guilty of violating the Sherman law in maintaining an unlawful conspiracy in restraint of trade. The right of the owner of a patent to attach such conditions as he pleases in regard to the use of his patented article, when he sells or licenses it, is involved, and the court's decision is expected to throw new light on the relations between patents and the big manufacturing combines, and the extent to which the latter may go in controlling trade by the power of their patent grants. Lawyers for the trust claim that its right to control its patents should not be curtailed by application of the anti-trust law.

The court will also take up a famous murder case. Porter Charlton, a young man of 23 who was arrested and locked up in a New Jersey prison to answer to the charge of murdering his wife at Lake Como, Italy, two years ago, denies the right of the United States to extradite him to Italy for trial in the Italian courts. His counsel will contend that under the treaty relations between this country and Italy there is no war in the law for returning him to Italy. The case is on appeal to the highest court from the federal court of New Jersey which refused to issue a writ of habeas corpus grant-

Clergyman's Son Had Tuberculosis; Now Well

People who have Consumption are often filled with bright hopes of recovery, only to realize that improvement is but temporary. Consumption is dreaded by everyone. Those who had it and used Eckman's Alternative can testify to its beneficial effects. No one need doubt it—there is plenty of evidence from live witnesses. Investigate the following:—

Amenia, N. Y.
 "Gentlemen: Prior to Feb., 1908, I was located in Rochester, N. Y., suffering with La Grippe, which developed into Tuberculosis. My physician gave me one month to live. I was having terrible night sweats and mid-day chills and losing flesh rapidly, having gone from 155 to 135 pounds. I coughed and raised continually and became so weak that walking a few feet exhausted me. On my return home, my regular physician gave me little encouragement. My father, who is a clergyman, heard of Eckman's Alternative and induced me to take it. The night sweats and chills disappeared, my cough became easier and gradually diminished and in a few days I developed an appetite, the first in months. I am now in perfect health, back to 155 lbs. I feel certain that I owe my life to Eckman's Alternative."

(Signed) E. H. COWLES.
 "Gentlemen: I cannot find words to express my appreciation of what your remedy has done for my son. It changed despair into hope within two weeks after he began taking it, and without any doubt in my mind, it saved his life. I wish to add my endorsement to every word of his testimonial."

(Signed) REV. J. J. COWLES.

IS YOUR CHILD'S TONGUE COATED?

If cross, feverish, bilious, stomach sour, give "Syrup of Figs" to clean its little clogged-up bowels.

Mother! Don't scold your cross, peevish child! Look at the tongue! See if it is white, yellow and coated! If your child is restless, drooping, isn't sleeping well, is restless, doesn't eat heartily or is cross, irritable, out of sorts with everybody, stomach sour, feverish, breath bad; has stomach ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, or is full of cold, it means the little one's stomach, liver and 30 feet of bowels are filled with poisons and foul, constipated waste matter and need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

Give a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs, and in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, undigested food and sour bile will gently move on and out of its little waste clogged bowels without nausea, griping or weakness, and you will surely have a well, happy and smiling child again shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not dragging your children, being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics it cannot be harmful, besides they dearly love its delicious taste.

Mothers should always keep Syrup of Figs handy. It is the only stomach, liver and bowel cleanser and regulator needed—a little given today will save a sick child tomorrow.

Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious, genuine old reliable. Refuse anything else offered.—Advertisement.

ing him his liberty. Charlton will soon know whether he will be set free here or be forced to return to Italy and stand trial for murder.

To Decide State Fight

Cases to be argued tomorrow include the controversy between the states of Wyoming and Colorado over the diversion of the waters of the Laramie river; the contest over Judge Archbold's decision in the New Orleans-Alabama rate cases, and the Patten indictment on a charge of attempting to corner the cotton market, to which James A. Patten, the Chicago speculator demurred in the federal courts of New York on the ground that private ownership of large quantities of cotton did not constitute a violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

Scheduled for early argument are nearly a half dozen cases to determine the scope of the Hepburn rate law in its application to the question of liability of railroads to shippers for articles lost in transit. In a suit originating in the loss of household goods shipped in Oklahoma, the question of whether this law limits the liability of the railroads for such articles lost in transit, will be argued; in another case the question of whether the Nebraska state constitution or the Hepburn law control the contract limiting such liability, is involved. The loss of a horse shipped from Iowa to Nebraska precipitated this issue. There is also in dispute the question whether the statute allows the express companies to limit the liability incurred from the loss of shipments. This issue had its origin in the shipment of a ring from Ohio to Alabama. The ring was lost.

Define Board's Powers

The powers of the Interstate Commerce commission are to be further defined in early decisions on cases shortly to be argued. The commission claims jurisdiction over the Chicago Stock Yards railroads. The railroads deny this right. Another question involving the commission, to be heard next week, is whether the commission may compel interstate railroads to grant connections with interurban electric railways. Certain of the latter railways in the state of Ohio are demanding this privilege.

A new construction of the pure food law is looked forward to in the determination of the status of frozen eggs seized on the ground that they were deleterious to health and therefore under the ban of the law. The title of this case is "Four Hundred and forty-three cans of frozen egg product vs. the United States."

The court will hear arguments on the question of what person is authorized under the New York state employers' liability law to collect damages in recovery for injuries sustained.

The validity of a Denver ordinance authorizing the construction of municipal waterworks in that city is also to be tested.

The court will hand down no opinions until a week from today, when it may make known its determination in a number of important cases that have been under advisement all summer.

The most important of these is the so-called "Reading case," in which the government seeks the dissolution under the Sherman anti-trust law, of the reputed anthracite coal monopoly, charging that railroads in the state of Pennsylvania are exercising complete control over from 90 to 95 per cent of the total output of anthracite coal.

How far the states may go in determining the rates that railroads may charge for the transportation of freight and passengers will be largely defined if the court makes public next week its decision in the Minnesota, Tennessee, Oregon and Nebraska rate cases. The court will have to decide whether the states may make laws governing rates, which are declared by the railroads to be confiscatory in their effect and hence unconstitutional. The court's

CEREMONY MARKS REVIEW OF FLEET

Big Guns Echo Salutes and Admirals Pay Official Calls Upon Secretary

TAFT YACHT IS BEFOGGED

President's Vessel Is Anchored Off Ambrose Channel Until Time for Inspection

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—The roar of saluting guns, echoing and re-echoing from the nature-made cliffs of New Jersey and the man-made mountains and canyons of Manhattan, gave notice to all within earshot that the greatest naval review in the history of the United States was on.

The first salute—nineteen guns from the Leviathan Connecticut, answered promptly by the gunboat Dolphin, as she dropped her mud hook and broke out the flag of Secretary of the Navy Meyer, came promptly at nine o'clock and marked the inauguration of a day of ceremony such as is seldom witnessed in America.

Osterhaus Visits Meyer
 With the boom of the last gun the admiral's launch was in the water at the gangway of the Connecticut and Rear Admiral Hugo Osterhaus with his complete staff, jumped into their places and the launch sped over to the Dolphin, on whose bridge surrounded by the officers of the gunboat and those especially detailed to assist him, was the secretary of the navy.

The call was of the most formal character. The drums were ruffed as the uniformed officers ascended the enclosed gangway, there was quick handshakes and then Admiral Osterhaus took position at the left of the secretary, while the squadron commanders began to appear in the launches which had brought them from their vessels.

Meanwhile down in the smother of fog that masked the entrance to the harbor, just a few rods from the Ambrose channel lightship, the president was resting on board the yacht Mayflower. Tossing slowly at the end of the anchor chain, the president's craft remained, always in touch with the big Connecticut by wireless, waiting the hour set to sail up the river and take position at the head of the fleet.

Review Starts
 At 9:10, Secretary Meyer and Admiral Osterhaus entered the Connecticut's launch and visited the gun-fighting ships. When the inspection ended, the secretary returned to the Dolphin and a few minutes later a flag from the bridge wig-wagged a signal and the dolphin started slowly up along the line of anchored vessels for the review of the secretary of the navy. Immediately astern of the Dolphin came the gunboat Nashville, with reporters, photographers and invited guests on board. Then came the river steamer Hendrick Hudson, with Mayor Gaynor and the New York City committee.

The inspection ended, the vessels repaired to the places assigned to them, and at 12:30 p. m. the Mayflower, with President Taft on board, sailed up the river to her anchorage off Thirty-first street. On board, in addition to the president, were Mrs. Taft, Major Rhoades, Mrs. Laughlin, Mr. and Mrs. Larz Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. John Hays Hammond, Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Taft, Miss Louise Taft, Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Taft, General B. F. Tracy, Mr. and Mrs. George D. Sheldon, Mrs. William Fuller and James D. Lyon.

vessel in the fleet fired the presidential salute of 21 guns. While the guns were booming the secretary of the navy and his complete staff went on board the Mayflower and at the same time the president's flag was hauled down from the yacht. Then the Mayflower got under way and steamed up the river to where the Connecticut was anchored. As the president's yacht anchored, the presidential flag was carried out flat by the breeze, the fleet again saluted.

The commander-in-chief, staff division commanders and their staffs, then formally paid their visit to the Mayflower, and at 1:55 the president returned the call of Admiral Osterhaus. The president and Secretary Meyer returned to the Mayflower immediately after the formal call, after which the president in his yacht inspected the entire fleet, at the anchorage.

In accordance with Section 1, of Article XII of the constitution of the state of Wisconsin, and Chapter 665 of the Laws of 1911, the following Joint Resolutions adopted by the legislature of the state of Wisconsin at the regular sessions of 1909 and 1911 are made a part of the foregoing notice and are to be voted upon at said election, to-wit:

(No. 26, A.)
JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 24.
 To amend section 10, article VII, of the constitution, relating to the salary of judges.

Whereas, at the biennial session of the legislature for the year 1909, an amendment to the constitution of this state was proposed and agreed to by a majority of the members elected to each of the two houses, which proposed amendment was in the following language:

Resolved by the assembly, the senate concurring, that section 10, article VII, of the constitution of Wisconsin be amended to read: Section 10. Each of the judges of the supreme and circuit courts shall receive a salary, payable at such time as the legislature shall fix, of not less than one thousand five hundred dollars annually; they shall receive no fees of office, or other compensation than their salary; they shall hold no office of public trust, except a judicial office, during the term for which they are respectively elected, and shall not be eligible for either of them for a second term, except a judicial office, given and taken, legislature or the people, shall be void. No person shall be eligible to the office of judge who shall not, at the time of his election, be a citizen of the United States, and have attained the age of twenty-five years, and be a qualified elector within the jurisdiction for which he may be chosen.

(No. 26, S.)
JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 42.
 To amend section 3 of article XI of the constitution, relating to municipal corporations and their indebtedness.

Whereas, at the biennial session of the legislature for the year 1909, an amendment to the constitution of this state was proposed and agreed to by a majority of the members elected to each of the two houses, which proposed amendment is as follows:

Resolved by the Senate, the Assembly concurring, That section 3 of article XI of the constitution be amended to read:

Section 3. It shall be the duty of the legislature, and they are hereby empowered to provide for the organization of cities and incorporated villages, and to restrict their power of taxation, assessment, borrowing money, contracting debts, and loaning their credit, so as to prevent abuses in assessments and taxation, and in contracting debts by such municipal corporations. No county, city, town, village, school district, or other municipal corporation shall be allowed to become indebted in any manner or for any purpose to any amount, including existing indebtedness, in the aggregate exceeding five per centum of the value of the taxable property therein, to be ascertained by the last assessment for state and county taxes previous to the incurring of such indebtedness. Any county, city, shall, before or at the time of doing so, provide for the collection of a direct annual tax sufficient to pay the interest as it falls due, and also to pay and discharge the principal thereof within twenty years from the time of contracting the same; except that when such indebtedness is incurred in the acquisition of lands by cities, or by counties having a population of 150,000 or over, for public, municipal purposes, or for the permanent improvement thereof, the city or county incurring the same shall, before or at the time of doing so, provide for the collection of a direct annual tax sufficient to pay the interest on such debt as it falls due, and also to pay and discharge the principal thereof within a period not exceeding fifty years from the time of contracting the same; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate, the Assembly concurring, That the foregoing proposed amendment to the constitution of the State of Wisconsin be, and the same is hereby agreed to by this legislature.

(No. 25, S.)
JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 48.
 To amend article XI of the constitution by adding thereto a new section to be known as section 3a, relating to the acquisition of lands by the state or any of its cities for certain public purposes.

Whereas, at the biennial session of the legislature for the year 1909, an amendment to the constitution was proposed and agreed to by a majority of the members elected to each of the two houses, which proposed amendment is as follows:

Resolved by the Senate, the Assembly concurring, that article XI of the constitution be amended by adding a new section thereto, to be known as section 3a to read:

Section 3a. The State or any of its cities may acquire by gift, purchase, or condemnation lands for establishing, laying out, widening, enlarging, extending, and maintaining memorial grounds, streets, squares, parkways, boulevards, parks, playgrounds, sites for public buildings, and reservations in and about and along and leading to any or all of the same; and after the establishment layout, and completion of such improvements, may convey any such real estate thus acquired and not necessary for such improvements, with reservations concerning the future use and occupation of such real estate, so as to protect such public works and improvements, and their environs, and to preserve the view, appearance, light, air, and usefulness of such public works; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate, the Assembly concurring, That the foregoing proposed amendment to the constitution of the State of Wisconsin be, and the same is hereby agreed to by this legislature.

(No. 103, S.)
CHAPTER 227.
 An act to amend section 12 of the statutes, extending the right of suffrage to women.

The People of the State of Wisconsin, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1. Section 12 of the statutes is amended to read: Section 12. Every person male or female of the age of twenty-one years or upwards, belonging to either of the following classes, who shall have resided in the state for one year next preceding any election, and in the election district where he or she offers to vote ten days, shall be deemed a qualified elector at such elections:

1. Citizens of the United States.

2. Persons of foreign birth who, prior to the first day of December, A. D. 1908, shall have declared their intention to become citizens conformably to the laws of the United States on the subject of naturalization; provided that the rights hereby granted to such persons shall cease on the first day of December, A. D. 1912.

3. Persons of Indian blood who have once been declared by law of congress to be citizens of the United States, any subsequent law of congress to the contrary notwithstanding.

4. Civilized persons of Indian descent not members of any tribe.

5. Any civilized person, being a descendant of the Chippewas of Lake Superior or any other Indian tribe, residing within this state, and not upon any Indian reservation, who shall make and subscribe to an oath before the clerk of the circuit court or his deputy of the county where such person resides, that he or she is not a member of any Indian tribe, and has no claim upon the United States for aid and assistance made by congress for the benefit of Indians, and that he or she thereby relinquishes all tribal relations, and all right to claim or receive such aid, shall be entitled, on such oath being filed and recorded, to vote at all elections held in this state, if he or she is otherwise qualified. The oath so taken, on being corroborated as to the residence and tribal relations of such person by the affidavit of a qualified elector, shall be filed in the office of the clerk before whom it was taken and recorded for that purpose, upon such person paying to said clerk the sum of one dollar.

6. No person under guardianship, non compos mentis or insane shall be qualified to vote at any election, nor shall any person convicted of treason or felony be qualified to vote at any election unless restored to civil rights.

Section 2. The question whether the foregoing provisions of this act shall take effect and be in force, shall be submitted to a vote of the people of this state, in the manner provided by law for the submission of an amendment to the constitution, at the next general election to be held in November, 1912. If approved by a majority of all the votes cast on that subject at such election, it shall take effect and be in force from and after such approval by the people; otherwise it shall not take effect or be in force. Upon the ballot shall be printed, "Shall Chapter . . . (insert on the ballot the number of chapter) of the laws of 1911, entitled 'An act extending the right of suffrage to women' be adopted?"

Section 3. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage and publication.

Use a Brush.
A paint brush is an excellent thing to remove dust from cracks and carved furniture. It reaches crevices where a dust rag never could find the dust. Try this when next you clean the baseboards, window sashes, etc.
You will never be without a brush.

PREPARE FOR OPERATION
CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—Col. Roosevelt was taken into the operating room of Mercy hospital at 7:30 a.
m. today and preparations were made at once for an operation to remove the bullet, which was lodged under the tenth rib, and resting against the wall of his chest. The operation was to be performed by Dr. John B. Murphy, assisted by Dr. A. J. Ochsner.

Nice Quiet Place.
"Did you find a nice quiet place to spend the season?" "Yes," replied Mr.
Growcher. "Everybody else in the family went away and I stayed home."
—Washington Star.

Correct!
It is incorrect to speak of the careless pedestrian in the present tense.
The careless pedestrian is dead and buried.—St. Louis Republic.

The Hard Part.
"Huh!" says the friend. "You get your money easy enough!" "Oh, I know I get it easily," replies the other.
"All I have to do is stand in line for my pay envelope. It was the earning it I was kicking about."
—Judge.

CANCEL ALL DATES
CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—Medill Mc-Cormick was one of the first persons admitted to the hospital to see the colonel today. The two talked politics for a few minutes and McCormick informed Colonel Roosevelt that he had cancelled all of the progressive nominee's speaking dates for the remainder of the campaign.
A meeting was arranged for this afternoon between McCormick and O. K. Davis of the New York progressive headquarters, with the colonel.

Home Politics.
"What is this initiative and referendum?" "It's this way. If I want to go anywhere, or do anything, I ake initiative by mentioning it to my wife. Then she decides whether I an or not. That's the referendum."
—Courier-Journal.

Toning Down Somewhat.
"You used to be strong for the uplift." "Yes," replied Senator Sorghum, "but a reformer is liable to fly so high that the public can't see him. I am now engaged in volplaning a little."
—Judge.

Long-Lived.
"Oh, yes, I come of a very longlived family. My father cut a third set of teeth when he was past eighty."
"That's nothing. My grandfather died of infantile paralysis when he was ninety-seven."
—Judge.

To Use Graphite Supply.
A company has been formed to exploit the graphite deposits of Bavaria, which, with those of Ceylon, are said to be the only ones in the world yielding graphite suitable for refractory

SERIES IS NOW ANYONE'S PRIZE

Age and Experience Is Pit-

SOX FIELD BUT GIANTS HIT

Boston's Work on Defense Saves Them from New York's Heavy
Slugging

(By Grantland Rice)

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 15.—Dawn broke on the restless, shattered slumber of two nerve-racked clans who were to rise again and face their seventh fight for the championship of the world.

The Red Sox, fighting desperately, had rushed to a safe, clean lead, only to have this lead cut down to the margin of one game—and to be placed where, if her star slaban failed today the edge would belong to the rival clan who had age and experience ready to meet youth and brillianty, inexperienced against such a smashing test.

There is glory for all in a fight like this—and the only pity is that one must lose where the other must win. Both have fought with too much heart and courage to miss the laurel which only one can wear.

As the series now stands, after yesterday's battle, no one but a partisan, reeking with bias, prejudice and unfairness, can say that either team has shown the edge, man for man and clan for clan.

The Red Sox have excelled in fielding; the Giants have excelled in pitching and batting. The great work of their slaban with Marquard heading the list had made Stahl's slashing batsmen depend more upon the breaks in the Giant defense than ability to hit in the needed runs. The Red Sox have scored runs to the number of 18 to date—and earned nine.

The Giants have also scored 18 runs, an even count in scoring, but so relentless and almost flawless.

New York has made fifty hits to Boston's 43—and has stolen eight bases to Boston's six. But New York has made eleven errors to Boston's five and where New York's eleven errors sent through nine unearned runs, Boston's five sent through but three tallies that should not have scored.

CUBS WIN THIRD STRAIGHT VICTORY

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—The Chicago Nationals buried the White Sox under an 8 to 1 score on Monday, winning the third straight game of the series to decide the baseball championship of Chicago. One more victory for the Cubs will end the series.

Cicotte attempted to stop the Cubs' winning streak and lasted two innings. He was relieved by Lange after five runs had been scored off him. The Cubs batted in a run off Lange in the third and they were held in check until the ninth, when Saier pounded out his second triple, scoring two more runs.

The American leaguers' lone tally was made in the sixth, when Bodie drove the ball into deep center field for three bases and came home on Johnson's drive to left. Cheney pitched in rare form and held the Americans to eight scattered hits.

SELL M. BROWN TO LOUISVILLE CLUB

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—Pitcher Brown, the three fingered twirler, who in the past has been one of the strongest assets of the Chicago National league baseball team, has been sold to the Louisville team of the American association. It was announced on Sunday. C. W. Murphy, president of the Chicago Nationals, asked for waivers on Brown some time ago. Brown's arm is as good as ever, it is said, and he has been sold by Murphy because Brown twisted his knee in a game early this season and the lameness persisted.

WATCH BADGERS IN GAME WITH PURPLE

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 15.—If Keckie Moll, newly appointed head coach of Purdue, was surprised at the showing made by the Badgers in their game with Northwestern, he did not show it. The former Wisconsin star witnessed the contest from a seat along the sidelines with the W. men. He watched every play closely but would not make any predictions as to the outcome of the game with his men next Saturday. It was rumored also that Pat Page of the Chicago coaching staff was in the audience, getting a line on the Badgers' work. The game with Chicago will be held two weeks from Saturday, than usual this year.

However, Messrs. Moll and Page did not betray any rabid enthusiasm for their teams after beholding Wisconsin's representatives play tag with the Northwestern men. Coach Juneau was more than pleased with the showing made by the men on Saturday. During the week it is probable that the big chief will give the men several new plays from his stock of foxy maneuvers. Regular secret practice will be held every afternoon at Camp Randall, and several evenings will be dedicated to indoor work at the gym annex. Ole Moffett, who played in his first varsity game at full on Saturday, made a great showing, routing his way through the purple line repeatedly on ferocious line bucks. It is more than likely that Coach Juneau will make use of the big substitute this week.

This is a dull world at times, but one can surely get a suffragette angry when other amusement is lacking.

CARDINALS MAKE IT THREE OUT OF FOUR

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 15.—The Nationals won the fifth game of the interleague series with the Americans to decide the championship of St. Louis here Monday afternoon, score 10 to 4. Powell, who started for the Americans, was hit hard in the first inning, while his support in the outfield was ragged and the Nationals scored five runs. Mitchell, who relieved him, also was hit hard, being touched for four runs. Burk started pitching for the Nationals and was found for a run in the first inning. Geyer took his place in the second after one was out and the bases were filled and retired the side in order.

Monday's victory makes it three won for the Nationals, one for the Americans and one game was a tie. The score: R H E
Americans.....100020001—4 10 4
Nationals.....50310100x—10 12 0
Batteries: Powell, Mitchell, Napier and Stephens; Burke, Geyer and Wingo.

MATTY AND WOOD TO BATTLE TODAY

BOSTON, Oct. 15.—A day of typical football weather greeted the Red Sox and the Giants at 8 o'clock this morning. The sky was clear as crystal, and a tinge of real fall temperature gradually gave way to a perfect Indian summer warmth as the sun thawed out the early morning nip in the air. Fenway park diamond and field never was in better shape for a game. Mathewson and Wood were the early morning pitching selections.

TITLE SERIES IS LOSS FOR MILLERS

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 15.—Some sort of a hen seems to be hatching doorknobs and brickbats in that posthumous baseball series now progressing at Denver between the champions of the Western league and the tattered remnants of the title holding Millers.

The trip has been a serious mistake for the club owners, as was feared in advance. It was arranged for the Cantillons to give the players a little spare change for the winter league. When Delehanty went home to nurse an injury and Clymer ran out it would have been wise to call off the series, but guarantees were up and President Cantillon evidently thought he had to go through with his contracts.

It was a series in which the Millers had nothing to gain but gate receipts and everything to lose in the way of reputation. Their performance in Denver so far has been a knock to the city and to the league. It has injured baseball in Minneapolis, unless the team is completely overhauled by next season.

BARRY WINS

LONDON, Oct. 15.—Ernest Barry of England, the world's champion sculler, defeated Edward Hanlon Durnam of Toronto in a race on Monday for the sculling championship of the world over the Putney-to-Mortlake course on the Thames. Barry won by two boat lengths in 22 minutes, 31 seconds.

STOP TRAIN TO FIGHT GRASS FIRE

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Oct. 15.—The novelty of a passenger train being stopped so the passengers and crew could fight a prairie fire was witnessed in Bon Homme county on Saturday. The wind was blowing a gale when sparks from a freight locomotive set fire to the grass beside the track. The passenger train passed a short time later and the engineer, fireman, conductor, brakemen and passengers hastened from the train and after strenuous efforts extinguished the fire.

OFFICER CHASES MAN IN STREET

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 15.—Harold J. Scheuffer, a Grand Rapids, Mich., deputy sheriff, and Warren Adams, wanted for embezzlement, participated in a lively chase from the Western Union office on Sycamore street to Huron street and Broadway on Monday.

Adams slipped from the door of the office while the officer was writing a telegram. The deputy followed and was forced to tear off and drop his overcoat in order to follow Adams. At Huron street the officer made a flying tackle and the two rolled over into the ditch.

BOY BANDITS HOLD OFFICERS AT BAY

SHAWANO, Wis., Oct. 15.—After robbing a hardware store of enough guns and revolvers to start a small arsenal and eluding the officers for a day and a night, Calvin Drier, aged 14, and his brother Amos, aged 12, when found in the woods near here on Monday, fired upon the officers who attempted to arrest them. The younger of the two boys gave himself up, but the older one escaped after holding the officers at bay for some time.

GIRL SLASHED IN LOVERS' QUARREL

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 15.—In a dispute which is said to have started because of a love affair, Emma

Lewis, 26 years old, colored, was stabbed about the face and neck on Sunday night, and William Davenport, arrested a short time later, charged with the stabbing.

According to the police, the couple were in the Keystone cafe, and had been having an argument. Davenport is accused by the police of having slashed the girl with a razor. She ran screaming from the place and he followed her.

COLONEL'S WOUND NOT EXPECTED TO BE FATAL IS DOCTOR'S REPORT

T. R. IS THROUGH WITH CAMPAIGN FOR THIS SEASON

Physicians Will Not Let Big Bull Moose Take the Stump Again

IN CHICAGO FOR OPERATION

Was Taken to Mercy Hospital in Windy City After Speech in Milwaukee

JOKES WITH THE SURGEONS

"Speech Would Have Stopped More Than Bullet," Declares the Colonel

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt will do no more campaigning this year.

Positive announcement that the injury to the progressive presidential nominee was serious enough to keep him off the road during the remainder of the campaign was made today at Mercy Hospital, where he was to be operated on today and a bullet fired by a fanatic in Milwaukee last night removed.

As soon as he is able to leave this city, Colonel Roosevelt will be taken to Oyster Bay. He will remain at home there until he is completely mended and will take no active part in the campaign.

The fact that his injury was such that it would force him into retirement for some time was pointed out to the colonel by the surgeons at the hospital. They were emphatic in telling him that to assure his complete recovery he would have to remain quiet for several weeks, and the colonel reluctantly agreed, insisting at the same time that he felt "perfectly fit" and could make a public speech today.

The announcement that Colonel Roosevelt would do no more campaigning was followed by a revised announcement that if he recovered sufficiently, he might address a mass meeting at Madison Square Garden in New York about October 26.

The colonel's breakfast this morning consisted of liberal portions of eggs, bacon, tea and toast. He ate heartily and said he was experiencing no discomfort except a slight soreness where the bullet was lodged.

John Schrank, East Tenth street, New York, who followed the colonel all over the south and finally fired the shot that nearly killed him, is in the hands of the police at Milwaukee.

The authorities at Milwaukee spirited their prisoner to the county jail to avoid the possibility of a lynching. Roosevelt insisted on speaking before an audience at the Auditorium in Milwaukee after the bullet had lodged in his body.

The colonel had hardly begun to speak last night when an elderly lady in the crowd arose in her seat and said: "Col. Roosevelt, please go back and let the doctors dress your wound."

With a snap of his teeth, the colonel replied: "Dear Madam, it is very nice of you, but I am not hurt. If you saw me on horseback, you would think I had a pretty strong seat now."

Philip J. Roosevelt, cousin of the colonel, also interrupted him: "Stop!" begged the young man. "I will not stop," fired back the colonel as he plunged into his attack on Wilson, La Follette, and the platforms of the two old parties.

The bitter arraignment of his antagonists continued for an hour and a half, but towards the end, as the speaker grew weaker from loss of blood, his tone changed, and he interpolated a new phrase into his parting sentence—an appeal to his hearers to join with him "in kindness, charity and generosity and more charity" to bring nearer the day when social and industrial shall be achieved in this great land of ours.

Then having finished his speech the colonel submitted to the entreaties of his friends and was taken from the hall.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—In order to be with her husband, while he is compelled to remain in the Chicago hospital, and to be at his side when he comes home to Oyster Bay, Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, with her son, Theodore Jr., and her daughter, left for Chicago over the New York Central railway this afternoon.

She was accompanied by her family physician, Dr. Lambert, who will assume charge of the colonel's case as soon as he reaches him.

Mrs. Roosevelt said that while she was satisfied the colonel was in no danger, she believed that he would be much more comfortable in mind and body to have her with him.

Mrs. Roosevelt, her daughter Ethel, and Mrs. J. West Roosevelt went to progressive headquarters just before noon and in the private office of George W. Perkins listened to the latest bulletins from Chicago. "While shocked by the occurrence," said Mrs. Roosevelt, "I am hopeful and the latest word that my husband is in no danger has allayed some of my fears. My son Theodore will go to Chicago on the limited this afternoon and if possible will bring the colonel home at once. My own plans will depend on what Dr. Lambert learns by telephone from Dr. Murphy. We want the colonel with us at Oyster Bay."

ABOARD THE MAYFLOWER, via Wireless, Ellis Island, N. Y., Oct. 15.—President Taft today sent the following telegram to Colonel and Mrs. Roosevelt:

"Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, Chicago: I am greatly shocked to hear of the outrageous and deplorable assault made upon you. And I earnestly hope and pray that your recovery may be speedy and without suffering."

"William H. Taft."

"Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Oyster Bay, N. Y.: 'I extend to you my heartfelt sympathy in your present distress. I earnestly hope and pray that you and your family and the colonel may be promptly relieved of suspense by news that all danger is past."

"William H. Taft."

President Taft also issued the following statement:

"I cannot withhold an expression of horror at the act of the maniac who attempted to assassinate Col. Roosevelt. This assault, following the shooting of Mayor Gaynor two years ago and the assassination of three out of the last nine of the presidents elected by our people, are events which must cause solemn reflection by all Americans on conditions which make it possible that such dastardly deeds may occur in a country affording its citizens such complete advantages of civil liberty."

"I speak for the American people in expressing the profound hope that Colonel Roosevelt may speedily recover from the effects of this dastardly act."

SCHRANK KNOWN AS A HARMLESS CRANKINGOTHAM

Friends in Bowery Hotel Where He Lived Thought Him a Little Crazy

CONSIDERED T. R. A MENACE

Was Not Thought Man Had Any Real Animosity Toward Third Termers

MOOSERS ARE CONFOUNDED

News of Disaster to Leader Throws Headquarters Into Consternation

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Habitués of the Bowery recalled today John Schrank, who tried to murder Colonel Roosevelt last night, as a harmless, inoffensive crank. A German, with a somewhat noticeable accent, yellow hair, and a reddish brown beard, he lived at the White Hotel, just off the Bowery, on Canal street, for a long time. Only one man penetrated the air of exclusiveness with which he surrounded himself. That was Jack Walker, bartender in the hotel, who said today that he and Schrank often discussed general affairs over a glass of beer.

Had Few Friends.

According to Walker, Schrank apparently had few friends and absolutely no intimates. He was always quiet in manner and in his conversation never discussed himself. While he had been heard to say that he considered him (Roosevelt) a menace to the country there never was anything in his conversation that led those in contact with him to believe that he held real animosity toward the progressive presidential candidate.

Everybody at the hotel believed that he was slightly crazy, although no one there today could give any particular reason for that belief other than a general feeling based on the manner in which Schrank held aloof from his associates.

Gus Jost, proprietor of the hotel, said that Schrank always paid his bills promptly and that when he left the hotel about the middle of September he did not say where he was going or what his forwarding address was.

Confounds Moosers

The news of the shooting of the colonel caused consternation among his followers last night. Today, however, there was a general air of hopefulness about headquarters in the Manhattan hotel and the party leaders were inconstant touch with the Mercy Hospital in Chicago where the colonel was under treatment.

George W. Perkins, who was alone in headquarters when the word came, prevented Mrs. Roosevelt receiving a serious shock. The first word that the financier had was from the telegraph operator who dashed madly into the room in which he was seated, gasping out that Roosevelt had been shot and killed.

"Get back on the wire and confirm that," snapped Perkins, as he followed the frantic operator into the little room where the leased telephone was.

WEATHER

For La Crosse and vicinity: Fair tonight and Wednesday; slightly warmer tonight.

For Wisconsin: Fair tonight with probably frost; Wednesday fair with rising temperature.

For Minnesota: Fair tonight and Wednesday; warmer tonight.

Weather Conditions.

Fair weather has continued over the greater part of the country and it is clear at most stations this morning except in the south Atlantic and gulf states, where it is cloudy and raining. A moderate depression over Alberta has caused higher temperature in the extreme northwest; elsewhere the temperature changes have been small. The pressure is above normal in all sections of the country except in the extreme northeast, where a storm is moving off the north Atlantic coast.

SAW VISION OF M'KINLEY SAYS JOHN SCHRANK

Would-be Assassin of Col. Roosevelt Declares Dream Caused Shot

HE IS A NATIVE OF BAVARIA

Came to United States at Age of Nine and Lived Always in New York

SORRY HE DID NOT KILL

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 15.—John Schrank, would-be assassin of Colonel Roosevelt here, today had nothing to add to his earlier statement made late last night in which he said his attempt to kill Roosevelt was because President McKinley had appeared in a dream pointing out Roosevelt, who appeared in mon's garb, as his slayer. Following his statement Schrank was taken back to his cell, where he slept uninterrupted until 7 o'clock.

Schrank's statement was complete. Cross examined by Chief of Police Janssen and other officials at central station he told of having followed the colonel since September 12 and his determination to assassinate the former president because of the McKinley dream and his belief that Roosevelt was a menace to the country.

Thought Moose Dangerous

"I began to think of Roosevelt as a menace when he cried 'Thief' at the Chicago convention," confessed Schrank. "I looked upon his plan to start a third party as a danger to the country. My knowledge of history, gained through much reading, convinced me that Roosevelt was engaged in a dangerous undertaking. I was convinced that if defeated at the fall election he would again cry, 'thief,' and his action would plunge the country into a bloody civil war."

Schrank, according to his statement, was born in Erding, Bavaria, two hours out of Munich, the capital of Bavaria. He came to the United States when nine years old, with his parents.

He worked about saloons in New York, he stated, until he became the proprietor of a place at 10 East ents street. He sold this place when the determination came to him to slay the ex-president.

Schrank is 36 years of age. He is 5 feet, 7½ inches in height, and weighs 170 pounds. His appearance as he waited for the colonel to

Would-be Assassin of the Third-termers Makes No Attempt to Deny Guilt

TRIAL DATE IN DECEMBER

Bonds of $5,000 Set by Judge Neelen in the Municipal Court

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 15.—John Schrank, the fanatic who attempted the life of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt here last night, was arraigned in district court at 10:30 a. m. today, pleaded guilty and was bound over on $5,000 bail to the next term of the municipal court which convenes December 10.

The would-be assassin of Colonel Roosevelt was extremely nervous when brought into the court room surrounded by a heavy detail of deputies. His fingers twitched and he rubbed his hands together constantly as he glanced from side to side at the crowd of curious spectators.

Judge Neelen read the warrant. "How do you plead, guilty or not guilty?" asked the court.

"Guilty," answered Schrank, in a low voice.

"You are charged with a serious crime," interrupted District Attorney Zabel. "You have a right to waive examination and be bound over for trial later or to have an immediate hearing. Which do you choose?"

The prisoner hesitated a moment and then stated he desired to waive examination and have his trial set at a later date.

Judge Neelen immediately ruled that the man should face the December term of the municipal court, and set his bond at $5,000.

Schrank was taken back to the county jail where he lapsed into a state of quiet and contrary to his early mood, refused to talk to anyone.

FENWAY PARK, BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 15.—The tumult and the shouting is still on. The captains and the camps may have another day to wait. It all depends upon what happens between this interim and dusk. But in the meanwhile Boston's phalanx of the fans, rolling in through the gates, has come again to another game with undying confidence in Joe Wood.

"Wood works and it ends tonight," was the war cry of the human tide for knowing, as each did, the fickleness of baseball, there was hardly one in the crowd who believed that Wood, pitching at home, pressed to the last crowning test—could be beaten.

Hinges on Wood

"You might as well as have tried to impress upon Boston that Gibraltar could be pushed over by human hands or that Mount McKinley could be toppled by a drifting summer breeze."

Wood, the paragon of all who pitched through the 1912 hurricane season, stood in the Giant pathway—stood with the home crowd at his back—an ideal day to work and a team to face that he had already conquered twice away from home.

Boston felt that way—and then some—but the Giants felt differently. There was a stronger show of confidence in the club before the game time, than it had felt all through the series.

From the general feeling displayed by both sets of nerve-racked athletes and the crowd the combined frenzy and mania of the entire series seems to be crowded into one brief afternoon.

The fans remembered what happened when Smoke Ball Joe Wood faced Walter Johnson and had been forced to pitch runless ball to win. They remembered his American league record—the greatest of modern years—with 34 victories and five defeats. They remembered again what he had handed New York in Manhattan, running the total of his season's to thirty-four winnings and only five defeats, an average of seven games out of 8.

Wood was the only Red Sox pitcher to get ready.

The sun was in Devore's eyes which did not bother him as he is the regular Giant sun fielder. The unofficial estimate of the attendance was 36,000.

HIS WIFE UNWORRIED

MRS. ROOSEVELT READY AT 8:30
THIS MORNING TO RUSH
AT ONCE TO CHI-CAGO

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt was still asleep at the residence of J. West Roosevelt at 8:00 o'clock today. Oliver Roosevelt, who met callers, said:

"Mrs. Roosevelt was entirely satisfied with the reassuring message she received from the colonel and she had no intention whatever of going to Chicago when she retired last night."

At 8:15 a. m., Mrs. Roosevelt was awakened and given a bulletin saying the colonel was being operated on in Chicago. This caused her to demand immediate further details, and to announce that she might go to Chicago at once. Mrs. J. West Roosevelt assisted her to dress rapidly and it was planned to go direct to progressive headquarters, where she expected to determine her immediate plans.

Mrs. Roosevelt sent for Dr. Franklin Lambert, and had him explain to her the nature of her husband's wound. He reassured her all he could and gave her a sedative to settle her nerves, which were badly unstrung. Asked whether Mrs. Roosevelt was in condition to make the trip to Chicago to her husband's side, the physician said: "Any woman is in condition to make any trip on which she makes her mind. Of course, Mrs. Roosevelt will not decide whether she will go to Chicago until after she learns more details of the operation."

Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., and Mrs. Roosevelt were with the wife of the colonel all morning.

No Profit in Alligators.

The difficulty about raising alligators to supply the demand for the animals and skins is that they do not attain full growth for about 100 years. The skin of the six or seven-year-old animal is available, however, for many practical purposes. There is one on a farm at Palm Beach which measures 18 feet in length and is said to be about 900 years old. There are several of these farms in operation at the present time, but the industry will not be really profitable until the wild alligators become scarcer.

CRONON WRITES OF OLD ABE REUNION

Veteran of Eagle Regiment
Tells of Recent Reunion Held at Eau Claire

(Edward Cronon, Co. "J," 5th Wis.)

The meeting of the survivors of the Eagle Regiment at Eau Claire on October 3rd and 4th in commemoration of the Battle of Corinth, Miss., was a notable gathering of those who took part on that hotly contested battlefield. There were those present who had not seen each other since the date of the battle, fifty years ago. Comrade Alfred Thorston, who was wounded at Corinth and sent to the hospital and discharged from there and was mourned for as dead, showed up at the reunion, having seen a notice of the meeting in a St. Paul paper at his home in South Dakota. He was very much alive indeed. Then there was Myron Briggs, color bearer, who came from Florida to meet the boys. John F. Hill, who was shot clear through the body, taken prisoner and reported as dead, was present. There was Billy Heyitt, who was wounded in four places, captured and lost a leg. There was Ed. Cronon who lost an arm. Tom Hill and Dave McLain who carried "Old Abe." Ephram Wilcox, Capt. Tom Butler, Lieut. Burnett Demorest, John Devlin, Russ Brownell, Lieut. Frank McGuire, Isaac Hewitt, A. R. Barnes and others whose names I cannot recall and have not seen in fifty years. What magnetism is it that calls these old comrades to meet once more and renew comradeship after so long a lapse of time? What is it that calls Comrade Briggs from Florida, Comrade Thorston from South Dakota, Comrades Cole and Barnes from Iowa and others from distant parts of our country? It is the tie which was welded in the fire of battle, which tried men's souls; it is a patriotic pride which still burns in their breasts fifty years after; it is a lesson to the rising generation to follow and emulate. To the citizens of Eau Claire, it can be said, too much praise cannot be given; their hospitality has never been equaled at any reunion which I have attended. The city of Eau Claire feels a just pride in her Company C and the Eagle Regiment. Those of us who were there will long remember our visit to their city. May we meet again.

On Pennsylvania Farm.

Here is one of the stories, says the American Greeting, from the old man's row in front of the barber shop: One man said back in Pennsylvania they farmed the land where the hills were so steep that when they planted potatoes one man had to hold them in a furrow while another man covered them up. When they dug them in the fall they were simply allowed to roll to the bottom of the hill before any attempt was made to pick them up.

Quite Another Thing.

"What makes you so sleepy today, old man?" "I was up at 4 this morning." "Come off! You never got up at 4 in your life." "I didn't say I got up; I said I was up."—Boston Evening Transcript.

Keeps Your Stove
"Always Ready for Company"

A bright, clean, glossy stove is the joy and pride of every housekeeper. But it is hard to keep a stove nice and shiny—unless Black Silk Stove Polish is used. Here is the reason: Black Silk Stove Polish sticks right to the iron. It doesn't rub off or dust off. Its shine lasts four times longer than the shine of any other polish. You only need to polish once-fourth as often, yet your stove will be cleaner, brighter and better looking than it has been since you first bought it. Use

BLACK SILK STOVE POLISH

on your parlor stove, kitchen stove or gas stove. Get a can from your hardware or stove dealer. If you do not find it better than any other stove polish you have ever used before, your dealer is authorized to refund your money. But we feel sure you will agree with the thousands of other up-to-date women who are now using Black Silk Stove Polish and who say it is the "best stove polish ever made."

LIQUID OR PASTE
ONE QUALITY

Be sure to get the genuine. Black Silk Stove Polish costs you no more than the ordinary kind. Keep your registers, radiators, fenders and stove pipes bright and free from rusting by using BLACK SILK AIR-DRYING ENAMEL. Brush free with each can of enamel only.

Use BLACK SILK STOVE POLISH for silverware, nickel, tinware or brass. It works quickly, easily, and leaves a brilliant surface. It has no equal for use on automobiles.

PLAGUE IS HARD ON CARPENTERS

Seventeen Per Cent of the Deaths of Workers and
Their Wives Due to Tuberculosis

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 15.—Seventeen per cent of the deaths of carpenters and their wives are caused by tuberculosis, the most prevalent disease causing death among that profession according to the report of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, which was submitted to the convention at Washington this fall. According to Frank Duffy, general secretary of the organization, this disease has made great inroads on the carpenters' organization in spite of efforts of the officials at the head of the union to warn union men against it. The prevalence of tuberculosis is attributed to dusty shops, by Duffy. However, it was pointed out to him that the life of a carpenter is in the main an outdoor life.

Are Too Careless. "But the workman may grow careless," replied Duffy. "Working sometimes to the point of fatigue, subjected to all kinds of weather, the outdoor carpenter may have a tendency to pay too little attention to his health. Pneumonia may develop and tuberculosis in time follow. Pneumonia some years ago had a much higher death rate among carpenters than now, although the rate at present is still considerable."

Seven years ago, Duffy wrote an article in the Carpenters' Journal, entitled "Captains of Death." Denominating consumption as the captain of death, he called pneumonia "the king." The tendency of carpenters to contract slight colds and to neglect them was called to the attention of the unionists. The carpenters' union pays a death benefit on the death of either the carpenter or his wife. The figures of the report which are based on the number of claims paid, include both members of the family. From March 1, 1911, to March 1, 1912, the union paid 385 claims for death of tuberculosis. The number of deaths during that time approximated 2,200, hence more than 17 per cent of the deaths were from this one disease. The previous year report showed 15.29 per cent.

There has also been a remarkable increase in the number of deaths from heart disease, according to Duffy. Deaths from that cause totaled 325 or nearly 15 per cent of all the deaths in 1911-12. During the year previous it had been 11.54 per cent.

Cancer Deaths Many. Pneumonia runs about 7 or 8 per cent a year, and cancer as a cause of death has been running high as compared with the average of the disease. Duffy in the report points out that the percentage of deaths from tuberculosis and heart disease is almost as high as that due to accidents. The number of deaths from accidents in the year was 393 or only 14 more than deaths from tuberculosis.

"The deaths from accidents include many not suffered by carpenters in their line of work, as many deaths result from accidents in the home or elsewhere such as being the ordinary person not engaged in carpentry," declared Duffy. "Taking into consideration the work as a dangerous profession, the deaths due to accidents of the trade will fall far short of the deaths due to tuberculosis."

British Cows Which Eat Fish.

Dried codfish, unsalted, is eaten by the inhabitants of the Faroe islands (between Shetland and Iceland) or their cows, says a consular report. The fish, which is of the cod type, is considered good for cows, as it enables them, it is stated, to yield an ample supply of rich milk. The dried fish is not cooked before being eaten; it is merely laid on stones and then pounded with stones or hammers.

Philanthropic Penology. "What is that open-air structure you have inclosed with mosquito netting?" "That," replied Farmer Corntassel, "is our village jail." "But you want iron bars for a jail?" "Not here. Anybody we put in there will be so thankful to get away from the mosquitoes that he wouldn't think of leaving."

TO THE PUBLIC

We are about to publish in this paper a series of articles introducing Father
John's Medicine to this city.

We shall tell you its interesting history, how it was prescribed for the Rev.
Father John O'Brien of Lowell, Mass., from whom it got its name, 50 years ago.

You will understand why it is the leading preparation whenever it is advertised, because of its merit, as proven by a great number of impressive endorsements by clergymen, doctors, hospitals and institutions
all over the country.

Father John's Medicine has had fifty years' success as a body builder, for colds, throat and lung troubles, asthma, bronchitis, and consumption. It does not contain alcohol nor dangerous drugs in any form.

The history of Father John's Medicine is guaranteed to be true. We offer to give $25.00 to any charity if it can be shown otherwise.

If you have any difficulty in getting Father John's Medicine from your druggist, write the Carleton and Hovey Company, Lowell, Mass., enclosing one dollar for a large sized bottle, express prepaid.

GREAT WESTERN WRECK HURTS 20

BELOIT, Wis., Oct. 15.—With his leg broken above the knee and nearly dead from exposure, George Dahlin, 54 years old, living near Sherland, was found by two hunters Sunday morning lying at the bottom of a culvert on the railroad tracks near Rockton. Dahlin had fallen from the culvert Saturday night and had lain there helpless all night.

Under the caption "What Good Roads Mean to a Community," the Southern Agriculturist says:

"First, they mean a decreased expense in hauling produce to market and in getting goods home from town. A farmer in Sullivan, Tenn., in 1908 had to haul barbed wire from Kingsport to Bristol, a distance of twenty-five miles. He found that with a two-horse team the largest load he could draw was 500 pounds, and that three days were necessary to make the trip. To haul one ton, therefore, took twelve days, which, reckoned at $3 a day for man and team, was an expense of $36. A bond issue was finally made and the strip of road over which he had hauled the wire was improved so that the same team can haul a ton to the load and make the round trip in two days at a cost of $6. In Madison county, Tennessee, before the roads were improved a bale of cotton was a load for a team. Now the same team can haul ten bales to the load in less time. Figure it out.

"Second, good roads improve farm values. A farmer in Lee county, Virginia, owned a tract of 100 acres which he offered for $1,800. In 1908 the road past his farm was improved, and though he fought the improvement he has since refused $3,000 for this place. On this same road a tract increased from $6,000 to $9,000 in value after the improvement of the highway.

"Third, road improvement means better access to schools and better schools. It means the facilitation of the rural mail service, which is now seriously hampered in many places by the condition of the roads. It also means a better and more attractive country and a consequent lessening of the cityward drift of rural population. Let us have more good roads. They are worth while."

Good roads mean so much to a community that it hardly seems reasonable that any community in this enlightened era would endure bad roads and make no serious effort for their betterment. It is true, however, that there are many such communities, not lacking in prosperity, or education or in general progressiveness, which appear to have gone to sleep on the road question. There are rural localities which have good farms, good schoolhouses, good churches and a fair share of the conveniences of life and yet have roads which are next to impassable for several months in the year.

At this season there are more good roads than at any other time of the year. If a road is ever good at all it is good in the fall, before the rains and the freezes set in. The true test of the highway comes in the winter and in the spring and it is then that the good roads are painfully scarce. In some places the mistake is made of repairing dirt roads in the fall with the result of merely making a bad matter worse when the winter season begins. In many places the road question is handled with such ignorance or indifference that the progress of communities is delayed and the value of property is affected.

Every community should be alive to the benefits of improved highways. No neighborhood should passively tolerate bad roads.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

THE TERRIBLE TOLL OF THE GRIM REAPER

That we, as a nation, are still furiously burning the candle at both ends, was the indictment presented to the National Conservation congress at Indianapolis in an address delivered by E. E. Rittenhouse, conservation commissioner of the Equitable Life Assurance society.

Mr. Rittenhouse declared that, while we have reduced the mortality rate 25 per cent during the last 30 years, this has been done by increasing the proportion of children who survive infancy, while degenerative diseases of middle life and old age have been steadily increasing.

With all the blessings which modern life has introduced so far as comfort is concerned, the birth rate is steadily declining and the span of life is steadily shortening.

Other facts in the indictment are these:

Of the 20,000,000 school children in this country, not less than 75 per cent need attention for physical defects which are detrimental to health.

Insanity and idiocy are increasing. Suicides are increasing and now reach the enormous total of about 15,000 annually.

Over 9,000 murders are committed every year, and only 116 murderers, on an average, are executed for these crimes.

The death rate from the degenerative diseases of the heart, blood vessels and kidneys, including apoplexy, has increased over 100 per cent since 1880, and claims over 350,000 lives annually.

Cancer claims 75,000 lives annually, and the death rate has increased 52 per cent in the last 10 years.

Over 150,000 Americans are destroyed annually by tuberculosis. We know now how to prevent it, but our taxpayers object to the expense and leave the battle almost wholly to charity.

This gruesome indictment closes with the assertion that we are not only reducing the fertility of the race and also shortening the span of life, but we are permitting at least 650,000 lives to be destroyed annually which we could save by the application of simple and well known precautions.

The war, as stated by Mr. Rittenhouse, is a struggle between the dollars and the death rate. And the miserly spirit shown toward the conservation of human life is proved by the fact that in 1910, 154 cities could spare but two per cent of their total public appropriations for the public health service. Some cities spent as little as the following: Quincy, Ill., 2 cents; Lansing, Mich., 3 cents; Scranton, Pa., 7 cents; Bridgeport, Conn., 9 cents.

Mr. Rittenhouse also scored the people of the country for refusing to back up the bill for the establishment of a national health bureau, because "we have permitted a small but active body of people who are more concerned in treating disease than in preventing it to block the consummation of this thoroughly sensible and business-like consolidation of the various bureaus under one responsible head."

The only remedy is, as he suggests, a comprehensive life conservation campaign.

Our esteemed contemporary seems to have thought better of its sinister intention made apparent earlier in the campaign to make a "goat" out of County Clerk Rawlinson over the campaign statement affair.

"Uncle Sam's staff sergeants in the Philippines have waxed fat," says a news item. Now the government will have a new inducement for this people to join the army.

It takes all kinds of people to make a world, but there are not many like the Chicago man with $5,000,000 who has decided to be a missionary.

Nearly all of the dinner pails are full, but the great question of the day is to discover just how much it costs to fill each of them.

Probably the only reason that rain water is inexpensive is because it is always coming down.

There is one kind of suit that never seems to go out of style; that is the suit for divorce.

The Bulgarians may be all at sea, but it is reported that the Turks are all in aeroplanes.

Quips and Cranks and Wanton Wiles

Blue Monday
Of course everything has gone crooked.
As crooked as things can well go.
Of course deepest gloom is your portion.

And storm clouds are gathering low.
You're filled with deep, dark disappointments.
In all of the world there's no friend;

Your troubles will surely overwhelm you.
They never will come to an end.
Your grocery bill is a corker;
Your note is past due at the bank;

They're going to foreclose on the homestead.
Unless you put up with a yank;
Your automobile has grown balky.
The kitchen roof's sprung a great leak,

And there are nine thousand more troubles
Of which you would just love to speak.
When things seem as bad as they can be

Just lay all your cares on the shelf.
There are some folks worse off than you are;
You should be ashamed of yourself.

The Typo's Way
A popular novelist was correcting proofs at a desk in the Century club. "Typographical errors are the bane of all writers," he said. "I have never had very bad ones myself—nothing like the one I once saw in the famous line:

"There were roses strewn in my path like mud."

"This the typesetter turned to:
"There were roses strewn in my path like mud."

"The other day Mr. Roosevelt was advocating 'the purity of the ballot,' he'd sacrifice himself to bring about 'the purity of the ballot.' But in my paper the typesetter made it read 'the purity of the ballot.'"

"I did once suffer myself; not in a book, in a speech. I was addressing a Scottish literary society, and I began with the words 'Brithers Scots.'"

"But the typesetter made me begin:

"'Brithers Scots.'"

The Best Cured Man
"There was a man in our town," said the one who told the story.

"Well, he was about the tallest and thinnest man I ever saw. He looked to be about seven feet high, and I believe he was pretty near it. One day an odd character met him in the street and stopped him.

"Excuse me, sir," he began, "but have you ever had the dropsy?"

"No," said the tall man, with dignity. "I've never had the dropsy. Why do you ask?"

"Well," said the odd character, looking him over, beginning at his feet and craning his neck as his glance traveled upward to take in the entire altitude. "I was just thinking—if you'd ever had the dropsy—and again his glance traveled all the way back to the feet—if you'd ever had the dropsy," he repeated, "I was just thinking you was about the best cured man I ever seen."

ESCANABA WOMAN HUNTER

ESCANABA, Mich., Oct. 15.—The first hunting license issued in Delta county this season was taken out by Mrs. A. G. Grose of Escanaba. Mrs. Grose is one of the best known sportswomen in the state and each year makes a trip to the northern camp of her husband where she remains during the entire hunting season.

Experience Gained While In The Drug Business

I have been troubled more or less in the last five years with kidney trouble and from the experience I gained while in the drug business and from different cases where I have sold Swamp-Root with perfect satisfaction to those who purchased it, and as I never had a single complaint regarding the medicine while I was in business, I was in a position to know that it was a great preparation and it did not fail me when I used it myself. It has certainly afforded me great relief at all times and I would not be without it. I always recommend Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root to my friends as I believe it to be a medicine of great curative value in the diseases for which you recommend it.

Sincerely,

D. A. KOONCE,

Columbia, Ala.

Personally appeared before me this 13th of September, 1909, D. A. Koonce, who subscribed the above statement and made oath that the same is true in substance and in fact.

C. T. HARRIS, Notary Public.

SPOTLIGHTS

To Open Music Study Club Series

It is within reason to say that Maud Powell has reached a position in her profession that few of her sex have ever attained, and very few of the sterner sex, for she is an artist in the highest sense of the word. Her violin playing is so well known to American concert goers that encomiums are unnecessary; suffice it to say that her managerial agent puts the case in a nutshell when he announces she has "the head of an artist, the arm of a man and the heart of a woman." She combines skill with feeling, superb technique with great strength of tone and interpretation, and her programs are always unique.

There is no doubt that the concert given by Maud Powell on Friday evening, October 18, at the La Crosse theater will prove the greatest treat to all music lovers. This concert opens the series of concerts to be given this season by the Music Study club. Seats go on sale for this concert Thursday, October 17th.

COMPANY ELECTS OFFICERS

The Parker-Hirt Machine company which was incorporated in this city, elected the following officers: Joseph F. Hirt, president; Andrew Hirt, vice president; Louis Anderson, secretary; and Tom Clemens, treasurer. The firm will do all kinds of machine repairing and will manufacture automobile accessories. It is located on Front and Main streets.

ACCUSED OF AUTO THEFT

Christ Steinegar and Benjamin Petrick, aged 20 years, were arrested late Saturday night for the theft of an automobile owned by J. Albrecht. The automobile was found standing on Jackson street at 12:30 and the lads were arrested a few moments later. They will probably be held for prosecution.

FELIX DIAZ REVOLTS

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 15.—The evening papers on Saturday declared that Felix Diaz has openly revolted and gone to Oaxaca to take command of the principal rebel army. It is stated that Diaz is now the choice of all rebels of whatever faction to succeed President Madero when he is overthrown.

TO PAY $2,500 TAX

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 15.—The estate of Henry Strang of Chicago will pay inheritance tax. Strang died in Chicago a year ago at the age of 90, leaving an estate of over $5,000,000. His Wisconsin property consisted of a home at Lake Geneva and $200,000 in personal property.

HERMIT HANGS SELF

CALUMET, Mich., Oct. 15.—Jos. Gillett, a 72 year old hermit, was found dead in his home near here on Monday. The man committed suicide by hanging. He was one of the first residents of Calumet. No motive for the deed is known.

HE COMES UP SMILING

Copyright Bobbs-Merrill Co.

The general stopped in the doorway and stared. His car? And such a wave of thanksgiving rushed over him that it was not his car that was missing that he felt he owed Alphonse a debt of gratitude and forgave him immediately.

"My car," said he, and chuckled with relief.

"Where's mine?" demanded Bartlett, growing red and angry.

"Where's Alphonse?" suggested the Watermelon significantly.

Henrietta laughed with positive gratitude to her erstwhile serving-man. "Why," she cried, "he left us ours."

"Alphonse was very fond of me," said the general with some little pride, as he patted his car tenderly.

"Yes," agreed Bartlett. "I can see that. He demonstrated it fully. I am glad he didn't love you or he might have killed Billy and me."

The landlord, followed by the stately maid-servant and the shifty-eyed stable-boy, trailed into the barn.

"Man gone off with your car?" asked the landlord. "I looked up last night about twelve. He must have left before then."

"The general's man did," said Bartlett, who felt that the general was in some way to blame.

"He has taken all our money," added Henrietta.

"A thief, eh?" said the landlord. "Can't we follow the car by the tracks?" asked Henrietta. She went to the door and peered eagerly at the many wheel tracks in the dust of the drive.

The general waved the suggestion scornfully aside. "You can't tell whether the tracks are coming or going," said he.

"All detectives do," said Billy, following Henrietta to the door.

"Im sorry," whispered the Watermelon in Billy's ear.

Billy laughed. "We have more cars at home," said she. "It doesn't bother me at all. That's the trouble of being rich, you can't be robbed and feel badly about it."

"Batchelor, you say that you were up until after eleven," said the general, feeling that the occasion called for intelligence. "Did you see Alphonse go out?"

"No," said the Watermelon.

"The landlord says, however, that he must have gone before twelve," went on the general. "Then don't you see how Alphonse could not have stolen the money? Those thefts were not committed until after twelve."

"I don't see how you work that out," said Henrietta, puzzling over it with knitted brows.

"Don't you see, Henrietta, that if Alphonse stole our money after twelve, he could not have gone out in the car before eleven, so if he went out in the car before twelve, he did not steal the money. He either stole the money or the car."

"Maybe he didn't take the money," said Henrietta, feeling vaguely and disappointedly that she was not a person with detective-like instincts.

"You see," said the general, "if Alphonse took the car, he did not take the money; if he took the money, he did not take the car."

"He certainly did take the money," snapped the farmer.

"And my car," added Bartlett angrily.

"He could not have taken both," declared the general.

"You were robbed last night, weren't you?" demanded the farmer. "Well, then."

"And my car is gone, isn't it?" demanded Bartlett.

"Yes, yes," acknowledged the general, feeling that every word he said only made the other two angrier, but still clinging to his deductions as to his life's principles.

"Yes, of course; but Alphonse could not have done both. He went off with the car before eleven, so he could not have robbed us after twelve."

"Sir," interrupted the farmer with a quick dignity that was impressive. "do you accuse any of us of stealing?"

"No, no," protested the general, now hopelessly rattled. "But if Alphonse stole the money—"

"Alphonse swiped both," said the Watermelon, and that settled it as far as the general was concerned, for the general had boundless faith in the young man's deductive ability.

"I went in about eleven. He took the car out, ran it down the road a bit and then came back and snatched our things."

"Certainly," said Bartlett, who could not help feeling irritated with the general for the fault of his man.

Billy laughed. "All this bother about nothing," said she. "Dad, what's one car, more or less?"

"A car is a car, Billy," said Bartlett coldly, refusing to be comforted for the ruin of his plan to keep Batchelor away from the city over Sunday.

"Yes," agreed Henrietta sympathetically, "any one hates to lose a car."

"But when you have seven," objected Billy.

"We have n't got them here, have we?" asked Bartlett.

"No, but we have one, and that's enough for five," declared Billy, finding the usual difficulty in persuading people to count their blessings. "We didn't need two, anyway."

"Yes, we did," said the Watermelon, thinking of the tonneau

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE SAVES WORRY, SAVES MONEY, SAVES THE HAIR

If you want to free your head of dandruff and stop falling hair, you must sooner or later resort to Newbro's Herpicide.

By using Herpicide first you save yourself worry, which is desirable, you save money, which is a consideration, and you save your hair, which is the most important of all.

Why not profit by the experience of Mrs. S. A. Lee, of 110 South 4th St., Richmond, Va., who writes:

"Four years' residence in India ruined my hair until it was but two inches long and very thin. I tried everything in Europe and America without benefit until I was induced to use Herpicide. My hair is now long, soft and silky and natural color, while before it was quite gray. My friends never tire of admiring my hair."

Mrs. Lee's story is a typical history of hair troubles. After everything else fails Newbro's Herpicide brings relief. It would be just as effective if used first.

Newbro's Herpicide kills the dandruff germ and prevents falling hair. It stops itching of the scalp almost instantly. No matter what the claims of others, Herpicide is the only genuine original dandruff germ destroyer.

Newbro's Herpicide in 50c and $1.00 sizes is sold by all dealers who guarantee it to do all that is claimed. If you are not satisfied your money will be refunded.

Applications at good barber shops. Send 10c for sample bottle to The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich. Hoeschler Bros., special agents.

TURKS FEAR BULGARIANS MOST OF ALL

Bulgarian Generals at War Manuevers; arrow points to Ferdinand, King of Bulgaria

By the Turks the Bulgarian army is feared most of all. It is the largest and the best trained to be found among the Balkan states. King Ferdinand, skilled in military matters, is at its head. In the present war, the Bulgarian forces will probably play a larger part than the army of any of the other states now fighting Turkey.

with only Billy and him, the general in front completely absorbed with the car.

"Why?" asked Billy.

"Why," stammered the Watermelon, who no longer cared to flirt with Billy and who had spoken without thinking, "why, so the general and your father could each run a car," he explained weakly.

"Oh, yes," chirped Billy. "What will they do now?"

The Watermelon turned and glanced out of the wide doors, down the tree-shaded road, and thought pityingly of the unfortunate Alphonse gone off at the wrong time, with the whole country-side on the watch for a lone youth in a big red touring car. That the car was of a different make from the one they were hunting for would not impress the sheriff's so forcibly as the fact that the youth also carried a time-piece as big as a clock, along with a cigarette case, cuff links and a stick pin, all marked plainly and beyond question, with the damning initials, W. E. B.

The Watermelon laughed softly, and glancing at Billy laughed again. With Bartlett going directly back to the city, he would not have to confess to make things right. He could leave them at the telegraph office and drift away on some pretext or another, leaving Billy gaily, head up, as became a successful financier, not sink away like a whipped dog, with only the scorn and loathing in her eyes to remember, to obliterate all the other memories of that one nearly perfect week.

African Dwarf Elephants. An English official in Uganda claims to have seen a herd of dwarf elephants, the existence of which has often been affirmed by natives. When recently seen the company consisted of from 30 to 40 individual elephants meandering in solitary fashion over a plain. The observer was most astounded at the weak defenses offered by their bodies. None of them had a tusk of more than ten kilograms in weight. A dead member of the flock was afterward found, the tusk of which weighed but eight kilograms.

See Sting Cause of Death. While the Abbe Genoux, priest of the parish of Plagnes, France, was out walking at Anney, a bee flew into his mouth and stung him in the back of the throat. The sting brought about acute inflammation and such a swelling of the throat that the priest died of suffocation within 20 minutes, after great suffering.

SCHLABACH TALKS ON INCOME TAX

Defends Progressive Law at North Side Republican Meeting Last Night

SAYS IT IS EQUITABLE

Avers that Cost of Running the State Has Increased Very Little

Declaring that the income tax was correct in theory, that it would work out all right and that by means of this law nobody would be able to dodge his taxes, Otto Schlabach, republican candidate for district attorney, delivered a strong endorsement of progressive principles at a republican meeting at Fjeldstad Hall last evening.

Mr. Schlabach showed how the law had been passed in order that nobody would be able to get out of paying his just taxes. He also explained that by means of the income tax a sufficient amount of money could be raised to conduct the state's affairs without any additional money being needed. The income tax is just in that it equalizes the taxes instead of making the man of moderate means bear the entire burden, he said.

Judge J. C. Karel's arguments against the income tax law were taken up in order and Mr. Schlabach refuted each one of the opposition's statements.

Defends Commission. Mr. Schlabach also spoke on the subject of the various state commissions and he defended them by saying that they were more than pay for themselves. The members of these commissions receive very low salaries in proportion to the money which they collect. Many blame the state for high taxes but Mr. Schlabach asserted that the state received only 40 cents out of every $21 which was collected last year. In answer to the assertion that the cost of running the state had increased a great deal, Mr. Schlabach showed that it cost but comparatively little more to conduct the state government than it did ten years ago.

Dr. A. R. Kemper also spoke at this meeting and he said that although he did not intend to get into politics very deeply he thought the voters should show their appreciation of the work of Thomas Morris and J. E. McConnell, who had helped make the income tax a law, by voting for them. He declared that Messrs. Morris and McConnell had voted for the income tax law in spite of the fact that it increased their own taxes and for this reason he thought credit was due them. Dr. Kemper also spoke about the commissions and he defended them as he asserted that they were protection for the public as the corporations could not raise their rates without the consent of the commissions.

Another meeting will be held in Fjeldstad Hall Friday evening.

MACCABEES TO DANCE. The New Century Club No. 101 of the Maccabees will give their twentieth anniversary ball at the north side Woodmen hall on Friday evening, October 18. The music will be furnished by the Kreutz orchestra and dancing will continue from eight until one o'clock.

Not Her Hero. "I suppose you are proud of your wife's literary success," said the intimate friend. "Yes," replied Mr. Stubbs. "Only I wish she wouldn't insist on making the hero of every novel a tall, athletic young man, with wavy hair and piercing blue eyes. Anybody can see that I am short, fat, bald, and compelled to wear specs."—The Pathfinder.

Wisdom of Childhood. The following composition on men is credited to a little girl: "Men are what women marry. They drink and smoke and swear, but don't go to church. Perhaps if they wore bonnets they would. They are more logical than women and also more zoological. Both men and women sprung from monkeys, but the women sprung further than the men."

Clever Idea of Thieves. An up-to-date method of robbing hotels is exposed in the German papers. Two young men of excellent appearance are moving about Germany, staying at the best hotels in the leading holiday resorts. After dinner one of them amuses the hotel guests with songs, pianoforte solos and anecdotes, thus keeping the majority of them in the drawing room, while his companion ransacks the private rooms for money and valuables.

"Don't you give me any of your hip!" said the young lady to the young man, as their train passed through the tunnel.

SAM SCHEPPS CALLED IN CASE

Whitman to Question Witness as Independent Source of Testimony

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—The real fight to save Police Lieutenant Charles Becker from electric chair began today with the calling of Sam Schepps to the stand. Whitman relied on Schepps to prove his case, insisting that he was not one of the murder conspirators, but that he was the "independent source" which the law demands for confirmation of the story of conspirators. To offset this McIntyre, for the defense, had the police circulars sent out calling for the arrest of Schapps in which he was referred to as "wanted for murder," and was planning to get them before the jury if possible.

The entire Becker case hinges on Schepps. Should Justice Goff hold that he was not a member of the murder conspiracy then his evidence would make the stories told by Rose, Wabber and Vallon material, and the jury could believe them.

It was also stated that Mrs. Rosenthal would tell her story to the jury. She assumed the district attorney that a mistake had been made when it was declared that she had agreed to retract much of her original statement.

TAFT REVIEWS ATLANTIC FLEET

Warships Steam Past President on Yacht Mayflower and Fire Salutes

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—For the first time in years all traffic on the North river was halted for hours today. The reason was the final review of the Atlantic fleet, which steamed out to sea past the converted yacht Mayflower with President Taft on board. The review was one of the most wonderful spectacles ever presented in American waters, and was witnessed by the hands who crowded the river docks and the great fleet of passenger craft that was anchored near the Mayflower in the upper bay.

The Mayflower today took position off Bedloe's Island shortly before 10 o'clock. Promptly at that hour all river craft were expected to the tip before the Mayflower's anchorage and Port Washington by Commander Bullard, U. S. N., in charge of the regulation of traffic.

The weather was beautiful and the great fighting machines presented a most impressive sight, as steaming in single column formation, they passed down the bay, each saluting with 21 guns the flag of the president flying from the Mayflower, in the very shadow of the statue of Liberty.

No Suffragette Views. A visitor at a seaside boarding house went into the local postoffice and, seeking to draw the postmaster into conversation, asked him what his views were as to suffragettes. "Hain't got no views of that kind," replied the postmaster, "but we've got some fine postcard views of the new viaduct, the Baptist church, and the new library. Want to look at 'em?"—London Tit-Bits.

A New Face. Mrs. Platt and her little son Tommy frequently went to St. John's church and the little boy had become familiar with the minister's face. One Sunday morning another minister was filling the pulpit. Tommy seemed rather ruffled. Finally he leaned over to his mother and in a very audible whisper said: "Mother, what's become of St. John?"

THE BULLET MARKED SPEECH

Colonel Roosevelt's speech, prepared for delivery in Milwaukee, and which he began to speak but was unable to complete, was as follows:

"I ask you men and women of Wisconsin to read the progressive platform and especially to read its planks on social and industrial justice, on the right of the people to rule on business and corporate life, preached by such leaders of thought here in Wisconsin as President Van Buren and Dr. McCarthy, both of whom I consulted and by whose advice I profited in making my 'confession of faith.'"

"You in Wisconsin have occupied an advanced position in all these matters and at every point, when you have been asked to enact a child labor law or a workman's compensation law, or a law to prevent occupational diseases, or anything of that kind, the argument has been made against you that as the other states had no such laws it meant a detriment to Wisconsin's industries for you to pass them."

"The objection has a real basis of justification. For instance, the other day in Colorado when I stopped at Pueblo where the Colorado Fuel and Iron company has a plant. This plant has recently been condemned by the best authorities in this country, because of the excessive hours of labor, because there is no day of rest for the laborer during the week, because there is inadequate protection for their lives, limbs and health."

Fear Loss of Companies.

"I asked the Colorado people why they did not pass laws to put a stop to these abuses and they answered that if they did it would probably result in the plant's being moved into one of the neighboring states where there were no such laws."

"While in North Carolina the other day several of the mill owners told me they would be glad to see the women and children workers protected by legislation such as we advocated, provided it were done nationally, but if it were done within the state only it would mean that the industries of certain neighboring states would be encouraged at their expense inasmuch as the competition was in the common market over the whole country."

"Here in Milwaukee your hosiery plants are seriously threatened by the competition of hosiery plants in other parts of the country where they have less advanced labor legislation than we have here."

Urges Them to Stand Firm.

"Your business leagues here in Milwaukee, here in Wisconsin, will tell you that instance after instance has come to their knowledge of industries declining to enter the state because to comply with the conditions you have laid down for securing decent treatment for laborers would mean that they would be put at a disadvantage in the common competitive market."

"Now, friends, I know you will never retreat an inch from the position you have taken in behalf of human rights. In New York state I have been advocating for years that we put ourselves abreast of the standards you have taken, because I will never consent to sacrificing human rights, to sacrificing the manhood, and womanhood, and childhood of the land for the sake of any commercial advantage."

"But it is the duty of wise statesmanship to secure both the human rights and the commercial advantage when it can be done, and it can be done by making these laws national and uniform instead of local and conflicting. The welfare of the womanhood and childhood of America is an American asset. All of us throughout this country are bound to shape things so that the next generation of American citizens will be equal to the high and responsible duties of American citizenship."

Regrets Loss of La Follette.

"Under these circumstances it has been a matter of genuine regret to me that Senator La Follette, who has done so much for the progressive cause, has felt that because of his antagonism to me he was obliged to range himself against the progressive movement in this campaign, thereby giving to his old time enemies, the reactionaries, a much needed support which they have acknowledged by the first praise they have given him in twenty years."

"It has been asserted that I did not take sides with the La Follette people in their campaign in Wisconsin in 1904. This is an error. On October 16th of that year I made my position clear in a letter to Mr. Cortelyou, chairman of the national republican committee, which read as follows:

"I think Babcock and his people should be told that, especially in view of the decision of the supreme court, there must not be any kind of favoritism shown by us toward the 'stalwarts.' Under the decision of the supreme court any weakening of the La Follette ticket is a weakening of the national ticket. I should assume that Spooner, Quarles and the rest would at once withdraw their ticket and leave but one republican ticket in the field. This certainly ought to be done. If Foraker has gone to Wisconsin under the aus-

A TEN CENT BOX OF "CASCARETS"

Insures you against Headache, Biliousness, Constipation or a Bad Stomach.

Put aside—just once—the Salts, Cathartic Pills, Castor Oils or purgative waters which merely force a passage through the bowels, but do not thoroughly cleanse, freshen and purify these drainage or alimentary organs, and have no effect whatever upon the liver and stomach.

Keep your inside organs pure and fresh with Cascarets, which thoroughly cleanse the stomach, remove the undigested, sour and fermenting food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the intestines and bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will make you feel great by morning. They work while you sleep—never gripe, sicken and cost only 10 cents a box from your druggist. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never have Headache, Biliousness, coated tongue, indigestion, Sour Stomach or Constipated bowels. Cascarets belong in every household. Children just love to take them.—Advertisement.

pieces of the "stalwart" committee he should be recalled at once. If Babcock will not be reasonable then can't you take everything concerning Wisconsin out of his hands?"

"Again and again I have borne testimony in speech and in writings in the Outlook to what Senator La Follette has accomplished in the way of progressive leadership and I have never said one unkind word about him. Until I became a candidate last winter Mr. La Follette never spoke of me publicly except in terms of cordial approval of what I have done and was doing in the presidency."

"For example, on April 10, 1907, the Associated Press reported him as saying in Helena, Mont.:

"The railroads will force him to become a candidate if I am correctly informed as to the action of Harriman and his associates. Abusing the president will result in Roosevelt renouncing his declarations not to run again. The president is entitled to another term and the people are entitled to Roosevelt. We must have Roosevelt again."

La Follette's View on Record.

"In La Follette's Magazine of March 9, 1909, Mr. La Follette summed up the record of my administration as follows:

"Roosevelt steps from the stage gracefully. He has ruled his party to a large extent again its will. He has played a large part in the world's work for seven years. The activities of his remarkably forceful personality have been so manifold that it will be long before his true rating will be fixed in the opinion of the race. He is said to think that the three great things done by him are the undertaking of the construction of the Panama canal and its rapid and successful carrying forward, the making of peace between Russia and Japan, and the sending around the world of the fleet."

Same View Must Hold Now.

"These are the views that Senator La Follette held of my administration and they must control as against anything that is now said of that administration. Mr. La Follette has an entire right to express an adverse opinion of anything I have done since the date he wrote this article, but not of what I did prior to the date of the article."

Don't think you're smart, don't act smart, and you'll soon win the reputation of being smart.

CARELESS ABOUT HIS OWN FATE

Roosevelt's Assailant Refuses to Be Worried by What Will Happen to Him

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 15.—John Schrank, the man who attempted assassination of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt last night, showed no emotion shortly before 10 a. m. today when a warrant charging him with "assault with intent to kill and murder one Theodore Roosevelt," was read to him in his cell at the county jail. The man will be arraigned in court some time during the day according to District Attorney Zabel.

Schrank admitted to newspaper men today that he does not care what becomes of himself and reiterated his statement that he was sorry his bullet did not put an end to the third party leader.

"I am not worried about what they are going to do with me," said the prisoner. "That is a most trivial matter in my mind. I am only sorry that my intentions were not realized and that I failed to kill Roosevelt. I am able to stand the consequences of my act. No man has a right to a third term."

Schrank talked freely to newspapermen and jail attaches today. Asked if he had ever had a sweetheart, he immediately stated that he had and her name was Elsie Zeigler, but he added "she went down on the General Slocum and I have never felt right since."

Schrank told jail officials early today that he was hungry. A plate of sausage and bread and a cup of coffee was set before him. He took a bite of the food and left it untouched, saying that his appetite had failed him.

LADIES' AID PLANS AN ANNUAL BAZAAR

The Ladies' Aid society of the Caledonia Street M. E. church held their monthly meeting in the church parlors last Friday evening, when Mesdames Betsinger, Erickson, Egan, J. Davis and George Larkin served. Mrs. Newsum, wife of a former pastor, was present at the meeting and gave an interesting talk. Plans were laid for the annual bazaar and each division is now busy working for this occasion. Meeting days and the places where they are to meet were announced for each division.

MRS. THIELE ENTERTAINS

Mrs. Julius Thiele, 1020 Caledonia street, entertained Monday evening at a six o'clock dinner in honor of the Misses Frieda Loomis and Bertha Dollenbach who left Wednesday evening for Akron, Ohio. Covers were laid for five.

HIGH LIVING AND POOR NOURISHMENT

When your food does not nourish you, the blood is thin or impure. Unless the blood is pure, assimilation, the final step of digestion, is imperfectly done and the body poorly nourished. Every day instances of lack of nourishment because of thin or impure blood are seen in children, who eat almost continually yet do not grow; in convalescents from the grip, fever, or some other serious disease, who remain pale, weak and debilitated; in persons who are run down through overwork or worry and are unable to get back their strength.

Before the body can be properly nourished, the blood must first be cleansed, built up and made fit to work. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People will do this more quickly and effectively than any other medicine. They contain the very elements which the thin blood lacks. Not only do they strengthen the stomach but they build up the blood so that it gets full nourishment from the food.

Mrs. Jennie Temple, of No. 106 North Main street, Fond du Lac, Wis., says: "I was a great sufferer from stomach trouble, caused by overwork, for about two years. My appetite was very poor and I could not eat much of anything. No matter what I ate, my stomach became sour and gas would form on it, causing shortness of breath and affecting my heart. I had to diet and eat only the lightest food. For months I did not know what a good night's rest meant. I had frequent dizzy spells and would faint at the least excitement. My head ached almost continually and my heart action was slow and irregular. I was weak and thin and in every way was extremely wretched."

"I had begun to despair of getting well until I gave Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial. Before I had taken the pills a month I felt much better, both mentally and physically. My nerves became stronger, my heart action was more steady and the distressing symptoms were lessened. My appetite increased and I soon became well and strong. Since using the pills I have regained my weight. I can truthfully say that I think Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the very best medicine any person suffering as I did, can take."

Send today for the free booklet, "What to Eat and How to Eat." Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50c. per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

PICKS DANGEROUS BED

The light from an approaching engine resulted in the discovery of Mr. Charles Young, 415 North Twelfth street, lying across the Burlington tracks at Second and Jay streets in a stupor at 8:30 last night. Before the engine reached him, he was dragged from the track by a pedestrian who turned him over to the police. Young paid a fine of $1 and costs in police court this morning.

Why Salves Can't Cure Eczema

Since the old fashioned theory of curing eczema through the blood has been given up by scientists, many different salves have been tried for skin diseases. But it has been found that these salves only clog the pores and cannot penetrate to the inner skin below the epidermis where the eczema germs are lodged.

This—the quality of penetrating—probably explains the tremendous success of the well known liquid eczema remedy, oil of wintergreen, thymol, glycerine, etc., as compounded in D. D. D. Prescription.

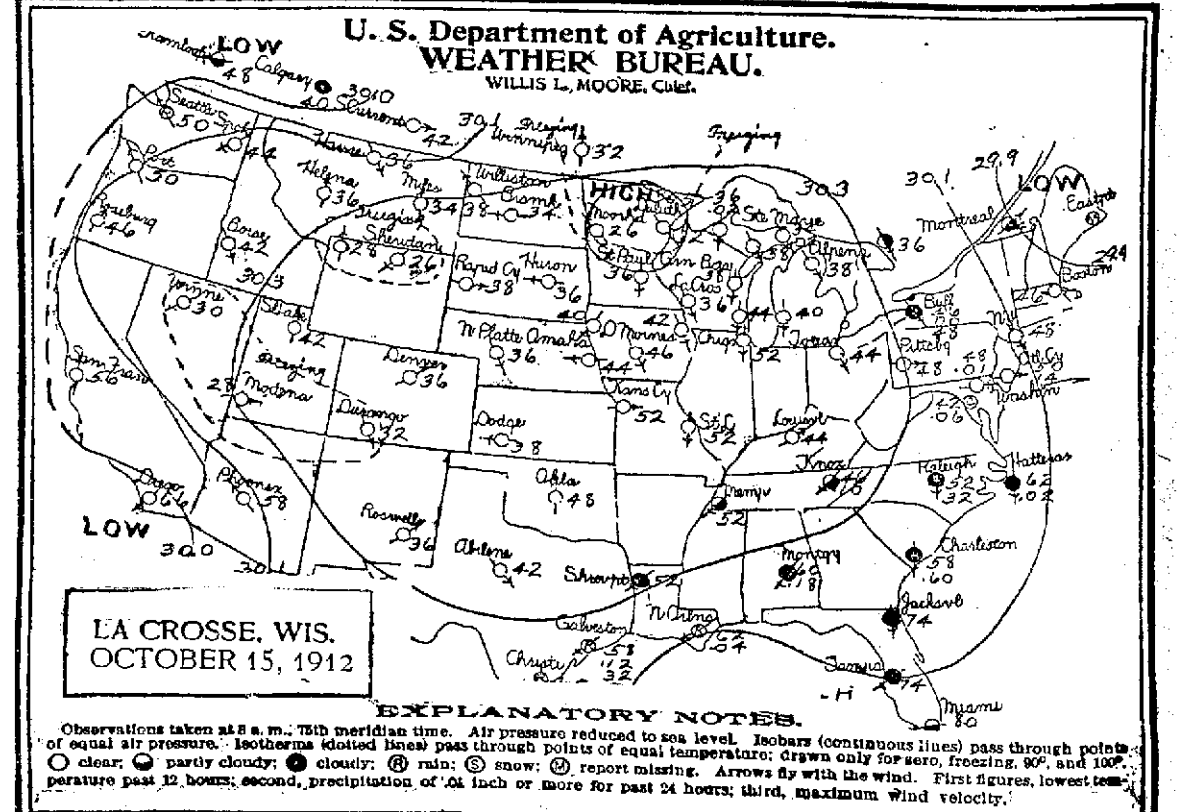

We have sold other remedies for skin troubles but none that we can recommend as highly as this for we know that D. D. D. stops the itch at once. We can give you a good size bottle for 50 cents that will be enough to prove it.

Of course all other druggists have D. D. D. Prescription—go to them if you can't come to us—but don't accept some big profit substitute.

But if you come to our store, we are so certain of what D. D. D. will do for you that we offer you a full size bottle on this guarantee:—If you do not find that it takes away the itch AT ONCE, it costs you not a cent. Columbian Drug store, Hoenschler Bros.

JAIL BREAKER HEADS THE BILL

Brindamour, the Handcuff King, Closes Majestic Program the First Half of Week

Brindamour, the original handcuff king and jail breaker, who claims to hold the record for breaking out of more prisons than any other man, is the closing feature of the bill at the Majestic this week. He escapes from all varieties of leg irons and handcuffs in record time, and thoroughly mystifies the audience. Unlike many fetter breakers, Brindamour does not use the cabinet in making his escapes.

Bradley Martin and Edyth Fabbri have a clever dancing and singing number, with the dancing the high light. Eccentric and fancy dancing of the highest order, including a bit of excellent toe-dancing by Miss Fabbri, make up the program of the act. It is one of the best exhibitions staged here for some time.

Vernon and company—the company consisting of a number of dummies—present a ventriloquist act of merit. The number of changes Mr. Vernon manages to secure with one voice, is wonderful. There is a lot of comedy in the act, as well.

DISAGREE ON TERMS

TURKEY AND ITALY ARE UNABLE TO REACH ANY COMMON GROUND FOR PEACE PACT

ROME, Oct. 15.—A difficulty has arisen which threatens to prevent the re-establishment of peace between Italy and Turkey, despite the fact that an agreement has been signed by the representatives of the respective governments, according to information from high sources yesterday afternoon. The hitch is due, according to Premier Giolitti, to Turkey's insistence upon an immediate fulfillment of Italy's engagements, while the sultan wants to delay withdrawal of his troops from Tripoli and his proclamation announcing the Arabs of the territory to Italy as well.

GUARD TAFT CLOSER

SECRET SERVICE MEN INCREASE CARE OF PRESIDENT TO PREVENT ATTEMPT UPON LIFE

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—President Taft was on board the Mayflower reviewing the fleet in the harbor today consequently there was no necessity of increasing the regular guard of secret service men who protect him. It was certain, however, that if he follows his original plan and attends the theater tonight, the guard will be augmented by local police and plain clothesmen so that there can be no repetition of the Milwaukee shooting.

How to Make Better Cough Syrup than You Can Buy

A Family Supply, Saving $2 and Fully Guaranteed.

A full pint of cough syrup—as much as you could buy for $2.50—can easily be made at home. You will find nothing that takes hold of an obstinate cough more quickly, usually ending it inside of 24 hours. Excellent, too, for croup, whooping cough, sore lungs, asthma, hoarseness and other throat troubles.

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with ½ pint of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents worth) in a pint bottle, then add the Sugar Syrup. It keeps perfectly. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

This is just laxative enough to help cure a cough. Also stimulates the appetite, which is usually upset by a cough. The taste is pleasant.

The effect of pine and sugar syrup on the inflamed membranes is well known. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in ginseng and all the natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this formula.

The Pinex and Sugar Syrup recipe is now used by thousands of housewives throughout the United States and Canada. The plan has been imitated, but the old successful formula has never been equaled.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

WILLING TO TAKE OATH

As to the Truthfulness of Statements in Beneath Letter, Says Mrs. Cook

Denison, Texas.—"You may print any statement from this letter you please," writes Mrs. Jess Cook of 207½ Main street, this city, "and I am willing to swear to its truthfulness."

On the third day of April I had an operation performed, for womanly trouble, thinking that would make me well.

In a few weeks after the operation, I got down again, and I was advised to have another operation. I would not listen to this.

Having heard so much about Cardui, the woman's tonic, I decided I would try it.

I have taken only seven bottles, and believe I am a well woman. Have no pains at all, and the other trouble has disappeared. Have gained both in health and strength.

My weight now is 145 pounds. Before taking Cardui it was 105 pounds.

I really know that I am well, but keep a bottle of Cardui in the house all the time, for use in case I need it.

Several of my lady friends are already taking Cardui on my advice, and I wish all other suffering women would try it.

Cardui will surely do as much for you as it did for the writer of the above letter, if you will only give it a trial.

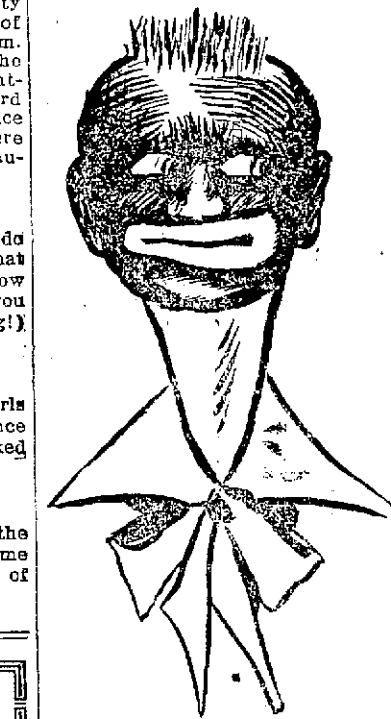

If you are sick, it may be just the medicine you need.

SOCIETY

ENTERTAINS THE D. A. R.

The La Crosse Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution was entertained handsomely by Mrs. C. S. Van Auker yesterday afternoon. This was the first meeting of the season and was an unusually large and interesting one. After the business meeting a program of music both vocal and instrumental was rendered. Miss Helen Burke gave two solos for which she received many compliments. Miss Miriam Harrison delighted the audience with several selections. Miss Helen Dorset read Miles Standish, which was illustrated with microscope slides. This was a very entertaining part of the program. Refreshments were served. Mrs. F. A. Cotton sat at the head of the table and poured the coffee, Mrs. Alfred Harrison at the opposite end served the salad, and Mrs. Van Auker, Miss Miriam Harrison and Miss Wheeler assisted in serving.

Mrs. Van Auker served a dinner to the serving ladies, augmented by the presence of Mrs. Atherton of Sparta and President Cotton of the Normal school. This was a delightful entertainment which all appreciated.

Mrs. George Burton, regent, and Mrs. B. C. Smith, secretary of the chapter, left today to attend the state convention which will be held at Plymouth, Wis.

The Twentieth Century club was entertained this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Alfred Langenbach. Mrs. Langenbach and Mrs. Wm. Doerflinger were the hostesses.

HELEN RUSCHE SURPRISED

Miss Helen Rusche of 1902 Kane street was surprised Saturday afternoon by a number of her little friends. The afternoon was spent with games and music after which a dainty supper was served. MAN REFUSES TO SUPPORT FAMILY WHEN WIFE SPOILS PANTS TO CLOTHE SON

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 15.—And now comes the man who refuses to contribute to the support of his wife because she cut up a pair of his trousers and made two pairs for a son of the family.

John Kowalski, Austin street, appeared at the county poor office Saturday and informed Abandonment Officer George Elmer that he would no longer contribute to the support of his family. He is on probation on an abandonment charge.

He had, he said, a fine pair of trousers, which he had been wearing only on state occasions. Somehow, he said, his wife discovered the trousers and promptly cut them up and made two pairs of trousers for their youngest son.

Kowalski was warned that if he failed to contribute to the support of his family he would be haled before the court.

NEW DISCOVERY QUICKLY CURES KIDNEY AND BLADDER TROUBLES

Chronic Sufferers Find Relief After Few Doses are Taken

If you are bothered with backache—or rheumatism, have disagreeable, annoying bladder or urinary disorders to contend with—or suffer with any other of the many miseries that come from weak kidneys, here is a guaranteed remedy you can depend upon, no matter what else may have failed to cure you.

It is a positive fact that the new discovery, Croxone, permanently overcomes such diseases. It is the most wonderful remedy ever made for ridding the system of uric acid. Pills, tablets and other remedies at the best merely stimulate the kidneys, giving temporary relief. Croxone removes the cause and cures the troubles.

It soaks right in and cleans out the stopped up kidneys and makes them filter and sift out all the poisonous waste matter from the blood. It neutralizes and dissolves the uric acid that lodges in the joints and muscles, causing rheumatism; soothes and heals the delicate linings of the bladder; and puts the kidneys and urinary organs in clean, strong, healthy condition.

More than a few doses of Croxone are seldom required to relieve even the obstinate long standing cases, while it cures the most severe form of kidney, bladder trouble, and rheumatism in a surprisingly short time.

You will find Croxone entirely different from all other remedies. There is nothing else on earth like it. It is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results. An original package costs but a trifle at any first class drug store. All druggists are authorized to personally return the purchase price if Croxone fails to give the desired results the very first time you use it.

ROOSEVELT MEN GAIN CONFIDENCE

Profess to Believe Attempted Assassination Means Victory for Bull Moose

The chief topic of discussion among those interested in politics today is the attempted assassination of Theodore Roosevelt in Milwaukee last night. The interest centers on the question of what effect the New York madman's act will have on the tangled situation in Wisconsin. While there are many opinions on the probable effect on the other candidates for the presidency, one and all seem to agree that Roosevelt's support, not only in the nation but in the state, will be augmented in no small measure.

While the bull moose men were worried over their leader's physical condition they were nevertheless confident over what they profess to believe the act that gives them the victory in a hard fought campaign. The question of whether Roosevelt would receive his added support from the ranks of the "raft men" or the Wilson supporters was discussed at some length in various quarters today and some of the disinterested onlookers (if there be such) held that Wilson would be the loser.

Nevertheless politicians of all althas are anticipating a speech of unusual interest when State Senator George L. Record of New Jersey will appear at the bull moose rally at Linker hall tonight. Mr. Record said to be one of the original Roosevelt progressives and stands very close to the throne. Whether he will divulge the future course of the noosers at the rally tonight of course will not be revealed until he appears on the platform. But the few faithful who have been keeping the Roosevelt fires burning in this rather unwholesome neck of the woods are predicting things today that they never talked out of camp before.

Being delayed on account of the crowd on the field.

Game Called

The game started at 2:08 p. m. There was a delay to fix left field bleacher fence, broken down by the overflowing crowd.

First Inning

NEW YORK—Devore singled to Wagner in front of second. Doyle singled to center. Devore and Doyle worked a double steal, Devore reaching third and Doyle second. Snodgrass doubled to right, scoring Devore and Doyle. Murray sacrificed Stahl unassisted. Snodgrass taking third. Merkle singled to left, scoring Snodgrass, and Merkle took second on Lewis' throw to the plate. Herzog grounded to Wood, who threw to Wagner and Wagner threw to Gardner, who tagged out Merkle between third and second. Herzog taking second on the play. Meyers singled to left, scoring Herzog. Fletcher singled to right, sending Meyers to third and on Hoopers throw to third, Fletcher took second. Tesreau singled, beating out a hard bouncer which Wood knocked down and deflected toward third, Meyers scoring and Fletcher taking third. Devore up. Fletcher scored while Tesreau was being retired. Cady to Yerkes, to Stahl, to Wagner. Six runs, seven hits, no errors.

Second Inning

NEW YORK—Hall replaced Wood for Boston. Devore walked. Devore stole second. Doyle walked. Devore was caught off second. Hall to Wagner. Snodgrass singled to right, Hooper's quick throw holding Doyle at second. Doyle scored and Snodgrass went from first to third on Hall's wild throw to Wagner to catch Doyle off second. Murray fled to Wagner. Merkle up. Merkle out. Wagner to Stahl. One run, one hit, one error.

Hall was very wild and besides walking two of the five Giants to first, gave the other three, three balls. Cady gave him two wild pitches.

BOSTON—Gardner hit a home run into the crowd in center field. Stahl fouled out to Meyers. Wagner out. Fletcher to Merkle. Tesreau getting an assist for deflecting the ball to Fletcher. Cady fanned. One run, one hit, no errors.

Larry Gardner came through with the first home run of the series in the last half of the second. His drive was a line fly between Devore and Snodgrass which landed in front of a low fence which shut off the overflow crowd in center. Tesreau's speed was undiminished.

Third Inning

NEW YORK—Herzog singled to center. Meyers singled to left. Fletcher forced Herzog at third. Hall to Gardner. Tesreau out. Hall to Stahl. Meyers went to third and Fletcher to second on the play. Devore fled out to Hooper. No runs, two hits, no errors.

Hooper's catch of Devore's fly which made the third out, was one of the prettiest fielding efforts of the world's series and cut off two runs. Hooper got the ball on the run almost against the right field fence.

BOSTON—Hall singled, grounding to Merkle back of first base. Merkle threw wild to Tesreau, who covered first. Hall taking second. Hooper singled to center, sending Hall to third. Yerkes struck out. Speaker fled to Devore, whose throw to Meyers doubled Hall at the plate. No runs, two hits, one error.

A brilliant catch for Devore which retired Speaker in the last half of the third, saved Tesreau when he was wobbling badly. The big fellow was unsteady. Hall missed a chance to score after Devore's catch by waiting too long at third before he started.

Fourth Inning

NEW YORK—Doyle out. Stahl unassisted. Snodgrass fled to Wagner. Murray out. Yerkes to Stahl. Hall getting an assist for deflecting the ball to Yerkes. No runs, no hits, no errors.

This was the first session in which the Giants did not get on base. Hall was staidier and had the three Giant heavy hitters biting on slow ones.

BOSTON—Lewis fled to Devore. Gardner was hit by a pitched ball. Stahl singled to left, Gardner going to second. Wagner forced Stahl. Doyle to Fletcher. Gardner taking third on the play. Cady out. Tesreau to Merkle. No runs, one hit, no errors.

A lucky record by Doyle of a grass outter grounder off Wagner's bat cut short Red Sox rally. The ball hit Doyle's wrist and bounded from second base. The Giant captain dashed after it and by a snap throw to second to Fletcher, forced Stahl at second.

Fifth Inning

NEW YORK—Merkle out. Cady to Stahl. Herzog struck out. Meyers singled to left. Fletcher forced Meyers, Wagner to Yerkes. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Chief Meyers made his third slashing single in three times up, in the first half of the fifth. Hall distinguished himself by registering the first strikeout of a Giant when he fanned Herzog. The third strike was called on the Giant third baseman.

BOSTON—Hall doubled to center. Hooper walked. Yerkes forced Hooper. Doyle to Fletcher. Hall going to third. Speaker walked, filling the bases. Lewis fouled to Merkle. Gardner out. Tesreau to Merkle. No runs, one hit, no errors.

The Red Sox had Tesreau going in the last half of the fifth and had the bases full with only one out, but Lewis and Gardner failed miserably as pinch hitters. A lucky break for each team featured this half of the session. Hall's two base hit was a high fly which fell behind Doyle and Snodgrass and which either should have caught easily. The lucky break for the Giants was on a hot grounder by Yerkes which hit Doyle and bounded into Fletcher's hands, forcing out Hooper at second.

Sixth Inning

NEW YORK—Tesreau out. Yerkes to Stahl. Devore walked. Doyle made a home run in right, scoring Devore ahead of him. Snodgrass fled to Lewis. Murray out. Hall to Stahl. Two runs, one hit, no errors.

Doyle's home run in the first half of the sixth, the second of the game, and the series was a line drive into the right field center. Like Gardner's home run, the ball landed in the playing field, but bounded over the low fence, which kept back the overflow crowd.

BOSTON—Stahl fled to Devore. Wagner singled to center. Wagner took second on a wild pitch and when the ball rolled to the stand he was given third on the ground rule. Cady out. Tesreau to Merkle. Hall walked. Hooper struck out. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Tesreau was good and had in the last half of the sixth. He had his great speed but was off on control. He showed his metal by fanning Hooper with two Red Sox on.

Seventh Inning

NEW YORK—Merkle singled to center. Herzog fled to Lewis. Meyers grounded to Wagner whose throw to Yerkes was too late to get Merkle at second, and Merkle was safe at second and Meyers at first. Fletcher fled to Speaker. Tesreau singled to right, scoring Merkle, but Hooper's throw to Wagner held Meyers at second. Devore fled to Lewis. One run, two hits, no errors.

Hundreds of Boston fans began to leave the park when the Giants got to Hall again in the first half of the seventh. There was no enthusiasm in those who remained.

BOSTON—Wilson replaced Meyers behind the bat for the Giants. Yerkes grounded out. Fletcher to Merkle. Speaker singled to center. Lewis doubled to left. Murray's third holding Speaker at third. Gardner out. Fletcher to Merkle. Speaker scoring on the play and Lewis taking third. Stahl was safe on Doyle's fumble. Lewis scoring. Wagner fanned. Two runs, two hits, one error.

Tesreau did not go as well in the last half of the seventh, working with Wilson, who replaced Meyers, so the Giants' star catcher could rest for the crucial game tomorrow. Speaker and Lewis started the Red Sox run getting with a pair of solid smashes.

Eighth Inning

NEW YORK—Doyle singled to right. Snodgrass out. Stahl unassisted. Doyle taking second. Murray fled out to Speaker, whose throw to Snodgrass, scoring Cady from third. Doyle forced Hall. Fletcher to Doyle. Tesreau also getting an assist. Yerkes took second on a wild pitch. Speaker out. Doyle to Merkle. One run, one hit, one error.

Ninth Inning

NEW YORK—Herzog walked. Wilson singled to center, sending Herzog to third and Herzog scored on Speaker's wide throw to third. The ball rolling to the stand. Wilson took second on the play. Fletcher lined out to Speaker, who ran in to second and made a double play unassisted by tagging the bag and doubling up Wilson. Tesreau walked. Devore out. Yerkes to Stahl. One run, one hit, one error.

BOSTON, Lewis walked. Gardner struck out. Stahl forced Lewis. Herzog to Doyle. Wagner out. Tesreau to Merkle. No runs, no hits, no errors.

AWAY WITH CATARRH A FILTHY DISEASE

A Safe Old-fashioned Remedy Quickly Relieves All Distressing Symptoms

If you are subject to frequent colds, or if you have any of the distressing symptoms of catarrh, such as stuffed up feeling in the head, profuse discharge from the nose, sores in the nose, phlegm in the throat causing hawking and spitting, dull pain in the head or ringing in the ears, just anoint the nostrils or rub the throat or chest with a little Ely's Cream Balm, and see how quickly you will get relief.

In a few minutes you will feel your head clearing, and after using the Balm for a day or so the nasty discharge will be checked, the pain, soreness and fever gone, and you will no longer be offensive to yourself and your friends by constantly hawking, spitting and blowing.

Shake off the grip of catarrh before it impairs your sense of taste, smell and hearing and poisons your whole system. In a short time you can be completely cured of this distressing disease by using Ely's Cream Balm. This healing, antiseptic Balm does not fool you by short, deceptive relief, but completely overcomes the disease. It clears the nose, head and throat of all the rank poison, soothes, heals and strengthens the raw, sore membranes, making you proof against colds and catarrh.

One application will convince you, and a 50 cent bottle will generally cure the worst case of catarrh. It is guaranteed. Get it from your druggist today. O. T. Erhart.—Advertisement.

SAW VISION OF M'KINLEY SAYS JOHN SCHRANK

emerge from the Gilpatrick hotel, where the attempted assassination was made, was such as not to create suspicion. He wore a light grey suit, light overcoat and was neatly dressed.

Sorry He Failed

Schrank sat in his cell unprotected today, talked freely and joked with his guards who stood near. He repeated that he was sorry his bullet did not kill Roosevelt, because it was the burden of his convictions that had been successful he would have performed a signal achievement for the country.

Schrank stated he had known Roosevelt since the latter was police commissioner in New York in 1895, but his first attention was drawn to Roosevelt when the latter cried "Chief" at the Chicago convention. He related following the colonel to Charleston, S. C., on his southern trip. He went from New York to Charleston by boat. Falling to get at Roosevelt there he followed him to Atlanta, Ga., where he again failed. Schrank told of leaving a bag at the Mosley hotel, Charleston, which contained a deed to property on Eighty-first street, New York, worth $25,000, and his naturalization papers. The bag yet remains there.

He then went to Chattanooga, Tenn., to Evansville, Ind., Indianapolis, and then to Chicago. His every attempt to kill Roosevelt in Chicago was frustrated, he confessed. He then determined to try again in Milwaukee.

Schrank, according to his statement, came here Sunday morning and awaited the arrival of Roosevelt. He registered at the Argyle hotel, under the name of Walter Ross, and did not divulge his real identity until he was arrested and taken to the police station.

Schrank will be held by the local authorities until determination is made regarding his preliminary hearing and trial. The penalty for Schrank's crime, if Colonel Roosevelt recovers, will be from one to fifteen years in the penitentiary.

JUDGE T. H. HENRY SPEAKS AT SALEM

Judge Thomas H. Henry, of Newark, New Jersey, and Joseph Boschert, of La Crosse, were the speakers at the second democratic rally of this campaign at West Salem last night. Roberts' hall, where the meeting was held, was filled to capacity, the larger part of the audience being farmers living in the vicinity of West Salem. Judge Henry discussed national questions, dwelling chiefly on Woodrow Wilson's accomplishments in the state of New Jersey. He declared that the democratic candidate for the presidency is one of the greatest statesmen of this age.

Mr. Boschert confined his address to a dissertation on the differences of the republican and democratic parties in this state. He attacked the McGovern administration as being extravagant and unstable in the matter of legislation. He particularly scored the income tax law, which he termed inequitable and unfair to the small home holder.

See shortly before six o'clock last night. It had been planned for him to take dinner on his special car, but he yielded to the entreaties of a local committee and went to the Gilpatrick Hotel. After dinner he was escorted to an automobile which was to take him to the Auditorium.

Harry Cochems, Philip J. Roosevelt, Elbert Martin and Col. Cecil Lyon, members of the colonel's own party, accompanied him from the hotel and, contrary to the usual custom, allowed him to enter the machine first.

Shot in Auto

All had followed the colonel into the automobile and Roosevelt was standing in the tenebrous for a last greeting to the crowd, when the shot rang out. The bull moose leader swayed slightly but recovering himself in a moment, he turned to Cochems and said: "Sh-sh! Not a word! They've plunked me. Don't say a word."

But Martin, the colonel's stenographer, had already thrown himself upon the would-be assassin and borne him to the ground. Col. Lyon jumped from the machine, followed by Cochems and the two, with Martin, wrested the pistol from the hand of the assailant.

By this time the crowd of several hundred people was making a rapid advance upon Schrank. Cries of "Lynch him!" and "Kill him!" were raised, but Roosevelt, with a wave of his hand, urged the crowd to be quiet. "Bring the man to me," he said. "Don't hurt him."

But Cochems, Martin and Captain A. O. Girard, a former Rough Rider, dragged their prisoner into the kitchen of the hotel and held him there until the local police took him to a cell. Roosevelt ordered the driver of the machine to continue to the Auditorium.

Against the entreaties of his friends, he insisted on speaking and was introduced by Cochems, who warned the crowd that the colonel had met with an accident, but asked them not to worry, as it was not serious.

The colonel then began his speech and continued until he swayed to and fro from weakness, occasioned by his loss of blood and the members of his party closed in on him and bore him from the place to the Emergency hospital.

In the meanwhile the assailant had been taken to police headquarters. He gave his name as John Schrank, East Tenth street, New York, and said he had worked at a hotel there, of which a relative was proprietor.

Tells Why He Shot

"Why did you shoot the colonel?" he was asked.

"I read the stories about him in the New York World and the Herald," replied Schrank, "and I thought he was wrong to seek a third term. I followed him from Montgomery and Chattanooga, and Atlanta, and all through the south, waiting for a chance."

"I followed him since September 14," he said.

September 14, 1901, is the date on which President McKinley died after being shot at Buffalo by Col. Goetz.

Schrank had $157 in his pocket, some newspaper clippings and a copy of the Roosevelt itinerary for the present trip.

He was plainly dressed in a gray suit of check, was about 36 years old and showed the effects of the strain incident to his long pursuit of the colonel.

Fearing that their prisoner would be lynched, the authorities spirited him off to the county jail, where he is now held under heavy guard.

At the Emergency hospital Roosevelt walked into the operating room

unassisted, and submitted to examination.

Dr. Joseph C. Bloodgood of Johns Hopkins University hospital, Baltimore, was visiting friends in Milwaukee, and on hearing of the shooting, he hurried to the hospital and assisted Dr. Scurry Terrell, the colonel's private physician, Dr. S. F. Sorensen of Racine, Dr. Stratton of the hospital staff and several others in their efforts to locate the bullet.

An X-ray photograph showed the missile lodged against the wall of the chest on the right side and just beneath the tenth rib. It was deemed advisable not to probe for the shot until the colonel could be brought to Chicago.

During the preliminaries to the operation which was decided upon at Mercy hospital, Colonel Roosevelt patiently submitted to two X-ray examinations. While they were in progress he laughed and joked with the surgeons, and there was a twinkle in his eyes that indicated that his physical injury was not affecting his cheerfulness.

Good Speech, Says T. R.

"Carrying that speech in that pocket certainly was a lucky thing for you," said Dr. Ochsner, one of the Chicago surgeons who was to help in the operation.

"Ho, ho," laughed the colonel. "That speech would have stopped more than a bullet. It was a great speech."

Dr. John B. Murphy, who was to wield the knife, stopped peering into the X-ray machine and looked at the colonel's face.

"Come pretty near getting you, colonel," said the surgeon.

"Not with a little bullet like that," replied Roosevelt.

"They will have to use bigger calibre lead than that if they want to get me. It would take a Mowitzer to kill a bull moose."

The colonel jokingly chided the surgeons for "taking the case so seriously." He insisted he was "feeling fine."

"I'll be out campaigning in the next twenty-four hours," he said, "if they let me have my about it. I feel great this morning, and I could deliver a speech now if you doctors would let me get up."

Shaved Himself

After the wound was dressed, Roosevelt returned to the special car and ordered some warm water. Then he entered his own compartment and shaved himself and went to bed.

The train reached Chicago in the early dawn and at 6:15 the colonel was taken to Mercy hospital in an ambulance.

The greatest danger was from blood poison, the surgeons agreed, by the bullet, which had been fired from a rusty revolver, and possibly had deposited infection as it ploughed through the colonel's clothing, his thick bundle of manuscript of the speech he was to deliver at Milwaukee late last night, his spectacle case and into his body.

Speech Saves Colonel

The manuscript of his speech, a steel spectacle case and a thick coat lessened the force of the bullet and probably saved the colonel's life. The speech and case were in the right-hand breast pocket of his small coat.

Dr. Terrell, the physician traveling with the Roosevelt party, was indisposed and had intended to remain at the hotel. He was in his room on the fourth floor when he heard the shot and was told that somebody had been killed.

When he reached the side of the colonel, he demanded to know what was the matter. "Oh, nothing," replied Roosevelt. "I want to see what's wrong," the doctor insisted, but was unable to do so until the colonel submitted to a preliminary examination behind the stage of the auditorium.

There efforts were made to induce him to go to a hospital. "I'll make my speech if I die making it," he declared. "Boys, this may be my last message but I'm going to deliver it."

Throughout his speech, Roosevelt showed unusual tolerance toward his enemies and, instead of the sharp rebukes which he usually administers, his tone was one of mild reproach.

He tried to minimize the fears of his friends and the audience, but his manner was more of a man who anticipated a fatal result of the attack, and he seemed to be making a last supreme effort to implant his message in the hearts of the hearers.

Elbert E. Martin, the colonel's stenographer, who was the first to seize Schrank after the shooting, joined the Roosevelt party August 15. He was born in Manchester, N. H., but at present his home is at Rhinelander, Wis.

A week ago Martin bowed over a man who grabbed the "Roosevelt" coat in a crowd at Houghton, Minn. It is likely that Schrank would have had small chance for his life had it not been for the appeals of Harry Cochems. After the bullet was fired, Col. Cecil Lyon, the colonel's body guard, pulled out a revolver and went after the would-be murderer.

Lands on Schrank

At the same time Martin made a spring clearing the automobile and landing upon Schrank, who stood in the roadway on the right side of the automobile.

Martin caught Schrank about the neck and bore him to the ground and Lyon then made a desperate effort to reach the man's side.

Cochems then joined his friends, and the three struggled in the street with their captive.

"Don't kill him, John!" yelled Cochems, who wrested the pistol from Schrank's hand. "The colonel don't want you to kill him, John."

Martin, who had almost choked the man to death, desisted.

"My name isn't John," was his reply to Cochems.

graph wire connects. While the operator was calling Chicago, Perkins was busy on the telephone. He sent word to the treasurer of the Casino Theater, where he knew Mrs. Roosevelt was attending a performance, that no one was to speak to Mrs. Roosevelt until such time as he (Perkins) gave the word. Then he got Oliver Roosevelt and held him at his side until O. K. Davis, from Milwaukee, sent word that the wound was not serious. Immediately Perkins sent young Oliver over to the theater to tell Mrs. Roosevelt that her husband had been shot, but that he was only slightly wounded, and that he had been able to continue his speech.

BOARD OF TRADE TO CELEBRATE TONIGHT

With the committees prepared to report a substantial gain in membership because of the campaign which has been carried on among the business men of the city the last ten days, the board of trade is planning on a real celebration tonight at the six o'clock dinner which will be held at the Y. M. C. A. building. It is expected that more than 200 members, new and old, will attend the banquet. In the event any business man of the city was not visited during the canvass, J. L. Utermoehl, secretary of the board, today announced that the banquet is open to all who desire membership in the organization and the enrollment of new members will not cease just because the campaign has come to an end. The dinner will be served by the Y. M. C. A., and is expected to be a success in every way. Several speakers will take part in the program.

WOUND NOT FATAL BUT MAY PROVE SERIOUS IS REPORT AT HOSPITAL

ROOSEVELT WAS ON WAY TO TALK AT AUDITORIUM

John Shrank Jumps Out of
Crowd and Fires Shot at Close Range

COCHEMS OVERPOWERS HIM

Leaps Upon Would-be Assassin and Turns Him
Over to the Police

(By Special Wire.)
MILWAUKEE, Wis.,
Oct. 15.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, former president
of the United States and third party candidate for re-election, was shot through
the right breast by John Shrank of New York, while entering an automobile
which was to take him from the Hotel Gilpatrick to the auditorium, where he was to make an address last night.
The shooting occurred at 7:45 p. m. At first it was thought the wound was not serious and Colonel Roosevelt insisted on delivering his address but later last night it was discovered that the bullet had lodged deeply

in the body of the ex-president and physicians were rushed from Chicago.

Assailant Captured
Schrank was thrown to the walk by E. E. Martin, the colonel's private secretary, and Henry F. Cochems, who were in the auto with him, and turned over to the police. He was taken to central police station where he
made an awful confession,
admitting that he had been
following the ex-president
for several weeks, waiting
for a chance to kill him.

Throughout his address the colonel spoke with difficulty, although showing no signs of pain, yet weakening perceptibly toward the end, because of loss of blood, declaring that he meant to see the thing
through.

Immediately after his address the
colonel was taken to Emergency hospital, where his wound was examined but physicians decided not to remove the bullet until he reached Chicago. After he had been removed to his train, however, the wound
began to bleed afresh and the Chigo physicians were summoned. It is feared that he may be compelled to discontinue all campaign work.

Shows Wound to Crowd
Fully 15,000 people, who packed
the auditorium, cheered Colonel Roosevelt as he bared his breast on the stage, showed them the blood-stained shirt and shouted, "It takes more than that to kill a bull moose."

The ex-president read his entire address from a manuscript punctured
with holes through which the bullet had passed and for which he might have been killed.

Time and again friends of the colonel tried to pull him back into his seat and told him that he had spoken on long enough.

"I'm all right," he would answer.
"I am feeling better every minute. I am going to make you listen to this speech whether you want to or not."

Because of his wound Colonel Roosevelt did not deliver the entire address he had intended and he prepared his remarks with an extem-
pore address. His excerpt from La Collette's Magazine was read by Thomas J. Mahon, Governor McGovern's candidate for secretary of the Republican state central committee.

Papers Saved Life
"I shall have to ask you to be as quiet as possible," said Colonel Roosevelt at the beginning of his address. "I've just been shot, but it takes more than that to kill a bull
moose. Fortunately I had my manuscript in my pocket. The bullet passed through it and then went into my body and it's there yet. My manuscript probably prevented it's going through my heart."

"But I am not thinking about being shot. I have altogether too many things to talk about. My concern is for many other things, not for my own life. I am ahead of the game
anyway. No man has had a happier life. I have been able to do many things I have wished to do, and I am intensely interested in doing other things, but I am very much disinterested in whether I am shot or
not. I have always thought a private had some right to feel some pangs about his personal safety, but never a colonel when he is occupied
as he ought to be with an absorbing desire to do his duty. I am in this cause with my whole heart because
I believe in the progressive movement. I will feel keenly any blow to that movement. I am not thinking

of my own success or my own life.
I did not know who the man was
who shot me tonight. He was seized
at once by one of my stenographers,
Mr. Martin. He shot to kill me; I am going to show you." (Here Colonel Roosevelt pulled open his coat
and vest to show the blood spots)
then for a moment Colonel Roosevelt
seemed to grow confused and he repeated part of his address.

Hurried to Hospital
Immediately following his speech,
Roosevelt gave in to the entreaties
of his friends and the physicians,
who were summoned, and was hurried through the crowd that thronged the exit to an automobile. He was at once taken to the Emergency hospital, where he was examined with an X-ray, but the surgeons did not attempt to probe for the bullet which was found lodged in the tissues of
his chest just above the diaphragm.

Just before going on the operating
table Roosevelt dictated the following message to his wife: "I have been shot in the breast. The bullet is still in me but there is no danger."
He gave orders that if the telegraph office at Oyster Bay was closed,
the message should be taken to Sagamore Hill by a taxicab.

Shortly after the wound had been dressed and while he was lying on
a cot in the Emergency hospital,
Roosevelt dictated another telegram
to his wife at Oyster Bay. The message was as follows:

Sends Message to Wife
"Am in excellent shape. Made an hour and half speech. The wound is a trivial one. I think they will find that it merely glanced on a rib
and went somewhere into a cavity of the body. It certainly did not touch
a lung and isn't a particle more serious than one of the injuries any of the boys are continually having. Am
at the Emergency hospital at the moment but anticipate going right
on with my engagements. My voice seems to be in good shape. Best love
to Ethel."

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."
The boys he referred to in his message to his wife are his sons.

"The colonel is in good shape,"
said Chief of Police J. A. Janssen,
who was present during the X-ray examination. "I do not think the colonel's wound is itself serious although if infections set in it may prove so. The fact that the doctors

did not probe for the bullet makes
it not likely that infections will set
in. His pulse is normal and he is resting easily."

The bullet lodged in the tissues
of his chest about two inches above
the diaphragm. The wound is three inches deep, lodging the bullet near the lungs. From the nature of the wound it appears that the bullet took a slight upward course. Colonel Roosevelt suffered little loss of blood.

Shrank was put on the grill at the police headquarters, but made no occurrence statement. At first he declined to divulge his identity, but after that was secured he talked
more freely, and admitted he had followed Roosevelt for the purpose
of killing him since September 21.
His trail after the ex-president had taken him to many cities on the colonel's itinerary. He answered all questions in a matter of fact way, although many of his answers betrayed a diseased mind.

"Do you believe men are justified in taking life?" he was asked, and answered "No."

"What were you doing at 8 o'clock
tonight?"

"That was all right; he was seeking a third term."

"Don't you belong to the anarchists?"

"I want you to understand I don't belong to any political party. I am not affiliated with no socialists or anarchists. Neither am I a republican or a democrat. I am a free and independent American citizen."

"You seem to be the only one
who objects to a third term."

"Yes, it looks that way, and I'm sorry you're right."

"Have you any police record?"

"Never, but I guess I have one
now."

"What is your religion?"

"I'm a Roman Catholic."

"What church do you belong to
in New York?"

"I haven't attended regular for ten years. The last one I was to was Fifty-fifth street and Fifth avenue."

"Do you ever go to confession?"

"No, sir, you can be a good Catholic without going to church."

"Do you believe in God?"

"Yes."

Shows Bloodstains
Nine thousand people who gathered at the auditorium last night to hear Roosevelt's address saw him
read that address from a manuscript
punctured with holes through which the bullet meant to take his life had passed. They saw him pull aside his coat and vest to show the blood that had flowed from his wound. The audience was vastly sympathetic. Cheer
after cheer swept the hall when Henry Cochems, who introduced Colonel Roosevelt, announced he would speak despite the fact he had been shot, and the building fairly rocked
when the colonel showed the blood
stains on his clothing and said:

"It takes more than that to kill
a bull moose."

Schrank's Statement
Schrank made a complete confession to Chief Janssen. His statement is as follows:

"I formerly ran a saloon at 10
East Tenth street, between Avenue
B and C, New York city. I was born in Erding, Bavaria, two hours out of Munich, the capital. I am 38 years old and came to this country when 9 years old, with my parents. I have been engaged in the saloon business
as proprietor and as an employee
nearly all my life until I decided that it was my duty to kill Colonel Roosevelt. I have been personally acquainted with Roosevelt since the former president was police commissioner of New York in 1896. I was first attracted to him as political personage during the convention
in Chicago. I began to think seriously of him as a menace to his country
when he cried, 'Thief' at the convention. I took upon his plan to start a third party as a danger to the country. My knowledge of history, gained through much reading, convinced me
that Roosevelt was engaged in a dangerous undertaking. I was convinced that if he was defeated at the fall election he would again cry
'thief' and though his action would plunge the country into a bloody
civil war."

"I deemed it my duty, after much consideration of the situation, to put him out of the way. I was living at my home address at the time, but soon afterward I had a dream in which former President McKinley
appeared to me. I was told by Mc-Kinley in this dream that it was not Czolgoz who murdered him, but Roosevelt. McKinley, in the dream,
told me that his blood was on Roosevelt's hands, and that Roosevelt had killed him so that he might become president."

"I was more deeply impressed by what I read in the newspapers than others and after having this dream
was more convinced than ever that I should free the country from the menace of Roosevelt's ambition."

A Strange Hallucination
The only papers found upon
Schrank's person were a copy of Roosevelt's southern itinerary and three proclamations addressed to the American people. One proclamation set forth that the writer had seen
a vision of William McKinley and told him that Roosevelt was his assassin. Another proclamation declared that it is the duty of every citizen to prevent any man holding the presidency for a third term, and declaring that he was willing to die
for his country."

May Have Accomplice
That the police believe that Schrank had an accomplice is suggested by the fact that he will not be arraigned in court at once. He will be held for several days until
the police receive word from cities
he has visited. The police have sent telegrams to the various cities which Schrank has visited, the names of the cities being taken from the list
found in his clothes."

Racing back and forth in cell No.
1 at police headquarters early this morning Schrank kept saying that,
now that he had failed in his mission
to end the life of the man who was seeking a third term, someone else

The Doctor's Answers On Health and Beauty Questions

By DR. LEWIS BAKER

The questions answered below are general in character; the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers will apply to any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free,
may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College
Bldg., College-Ellwood Sts., Dayton,
Ohio, enclosing self addressed, stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given but only initials of fictitious name will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

"Mason" writes: "For years I have been taking medicine to cure constipation, liver trouble and the usual
diseases that come from that source.
Headaches, sallow skin, kidney trouble, dark spots before my eyes, dizzy spells and twinges of rheumatism are getting worse."

Answer: Take three grain sulphur tablets (not sulphur). They are packed in sealed tubes with directions and are convenient, effective
and highly curative for such ailments
as arise from chronic constipation. If you are dyspeptic, also take tablets tripeptine.

"MRS. A. D."—Incontinence of urine can be cured by using the following: Tincture cubeba 1 dram; tincture rhus aromatic 2 drams and comp. fluid balmwort 1 oz. Give from 10 to 15 drops in water one hour before meals.

"OMA W." writes: "I have suffered with catarrh of the head for many years. This has become so bad that it has affected my blood, also my stomach and bowels to a very great extent. I shall appreciate an immediate answer as I suffer greatly."

Answer: I would advise you to purchase a 3 oz. package of Viline powder; take one-half teaspoonful of
the powder and add to this a pint of warm water, snuff the water from the palm of the hand through the nostrils several times a day. Make a catarrh balm by mixing one teaspoonful of powder with 1 oz. of vaseline,
or lard will do, and apply as far up
the nostrils as possible. For the stomach, bowels and blood I would recommend the following tonic: Syrup sarsaparilla comp., 4 ozs., comp. fluid
balmwort, 1 oz., and 1 oz. of fluid
ext. buchu. Mix by shaking well in a bottle and take one teaspoonful after each meal and at bed time.

"Gloria" writes: "I would like
you to prescribe a good hair and scalp treatment. I am bothered with itching scalp and dandruff. My hair is faded and falling and none of the remedies I have tried have done any permanent good."

Answer: Go to your druggist and
obtain a 4 oz. jar of plain yellow
Minylol. Apply as per directions.
This treatment differs from all and I have actually seen the astonishing transformations which result from its use. The dandruff and itching
are cured with two or three applications, while it makes the hair glossy, wavy and full of intense natural color."

"Myrtle" writes: "Owing to my extreme thinness I am frequently embarrassed by slighting remarks of young people. Can you prescribe a safe remedy to increase my weight?"

Answer: I have so many gratifying reports from the users of three grain Hypo-Nuclease tablets, that I have become to regard these valuable little tablets as a specific and prescribe them to all who are anemic, thin, wasting, nervous and debilitated. I recommend that you begin their use at once and continue regularly until your system is able

"Sick M. G." writes: "I have been affected for some months with rheumatism and have taken much medicine in vain. Please give prescription that will cure."

Answer: The most efficient prescription I have ever given for rheumatism is: "Iodide of potassium 2
drams, sodium salicylate 4 drams;
wine of col. bicum, one-half ounce;
comp. essence cardiol, 1 oz.; comp.
fluid balmwort, 1 oz., and syrup sarsaparilla comp., 5 ozs. Mix and take a teaspoonful at meal time and at
bed time."

"Farmwife" writes: "You once
recommended a home made cough syrup. I tried it and found it the best cough and cold syrup that I ever heard of. It was so prompt in relieving the severest coughs and colds
and a pint bottle made at home lasted so long that I have forgotten the ingredients. Kindly publish again."

Answer: The splendid laxative,
home made cough syrup is made by mixing a 2 1/2 oz. bottle of concentrated essence mentho-laxene with a home made sugar syrup. Directions
on the bottle tell how to make and
use. It is a fine, cheap remedy.

"Johnson" writes: "I am bothered greatly with indigestion. Things I like to eat nearly always cause a heavy ill-at-ease feeling in my stomach, and my breath is bad, while I am nervous, irritable and frequently
cannot sleep."

Answer: A very excellent treatment which is widely prescribed for its gradual curative action, as well
as the instant relief it affords, is tablets tripeptine, packed in sealed cartons. Take a pink tablet after breakfast, white tablet after dinner
and blue tablet after supper. Continue and the curative agencies will soon restore natural digestion.

"Mrs. M. C." writes: "I am recovering from a long illness, but am very weak, nervous, sleepless and have little appetite. Can you give me a good tonic restorative treatment?"

Answer: Have the following prescription filled and take a teaspoonful before meals: Syrup of hypophosphites comp. 5 ozs., tincture cadmene comp. 1 oz., (not cardamon).
Mix and shake well before using.
This is a fine nerve tonic and system tonic for old and young.

"M. D. C." writes: "I have always been afraid to try to reduce my weight, but if you will publish a safe,
harmless but effective medicine, I will begin at once as I am getting
too stout for comfort."

Answer: Obtain separately to avoid substitutes, 1 oz., of glycol
arbolene and 5 ozs. of aromatic elixir. Mix, shake well and for three days take a teaspoonful after each meal; thereafter take two teaspoon-fuls. Continue a sufficient time to properly reduce the weight.

Your Brain Is a Battery

Its thoughts are the sparks
that set Success in motion.

The simplest form of battery requires three factors to make the electric spark—(zinc, copper and an acid.)

The human brain also requires three vital elements to put forth thought — water, albumen
and Phosphate of Potash.

In the Brain as in the Battery, let a single element become weakened from yesterday's use and lessened activity follows. Therefore, in order to keep a good working brain or add to its power, one absolutely must use food which contains albumen and Phosphate of Potash.

Why not do a bit of thinking now?

Water and albumen exists plentifully in every-day food, but Phosphate of Potash is often lacking.

That missing element exists freely in the outer coating of wheat and barley, but the miller of white bread flour throws it out because it makes his flour brown instead of white.

Grape-Nuts FOOD

Made of choice wheat and malted barley, retains the rich brain-building Phosphate of Potash required by Nature for supporting bright brains and active minds.

Pure! Wholesome! Appetizing! This food is partly pre-digested and quickly absorbed. A morning dish with cream provides force for accomplishment that many a man has come to know and appreciate.

Common Sense goes a long way toward making Success.

To eat right often means to be right.

In accordance with Section 1, of Article XII of the constitution of the state of Wisconsin, and Chapter 665 of the Laws of 1911, the following joint resolutions adopted by the legislature of the state of Wisconsin at the regular sessions of 1909 and 1911 are made a part of the foregoing notice and are to be voted upon at said election, to-wit:

(No. 26, A.)

JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 24.

To amend section 10, article VII, of the constitution, relating to the salary of judges.

Whereas, at the biennial session of the legislature for the year 1909, an amendment to the constitution of this state was proposed and agreed to by a majority of the members elected to each of the two houses, which proposed amendment was in the following language:

Resolved by the assembly, the senate concurring, that section 10, article VII, of the constitution of Wisconsin be amended to read:

Section 10. Each of the judges of the supreme and circuit courts shall receive a salary, payable at such time as the legislature shall fix, of not less than one thousand five hundred dollars annually; they shall receive no fees of office, or other compensation than their salary; they shall hold no office of public trust, except a judicial office, during the term for which they are respectively elected, and shall vote for either of them for any office, except a judicial office, given by the legislature or the people, shall be void. No person shall be eligible to the office of judge who shall not, at the time of his election, be a citizen of the United States, and have attained the age of twenty-five years, and be a qualified elector within the jurisdiction for which he may be chosen.

(No. 24, S.)

JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 12.

To amend section 3 of article XI of the constitution, relating to municipal corporations and their indebtedness.

Whereas, at the biennial session of the legislature for the year 1909, an amendment to the constitution was proposed and agreed to by a majority of the members elected to each of the two houses, which proposed amendment is as follows:

"Resolved by the Senate, the Assembly concurring, That section 3 of article XI of the constitution be amended to read:

Section 3. It shall be the duty of the legislature, and they are hereby empowered to provide for the organization of cities and incorporated villages, and to restrict their power of taxation, assessment, borrowing money, contracting debts, and loaning their credit, so as to prevent abuses in assessments and taxation, and in contracting debts by such municipal corporations. No county, city, town, village, school district, or other municipal corporation shall be allowed to become indebted in any manner or for any purpose to any amount, including existing indebtedness, in the aggregate exceeding five per centum on the value of the taxable property therein, to be ascertained by the last assessment for state and county taxes previous to the incurring of such indebtedness. Any county, city, town, village, school district, or other municipal corporation, shall, before or at the time of doing so, provide for the collection of a direct annual tax sufficient to pay the interest as it falls due, and also to pay and discharge the principal thereof within twenty years from the time of contracting the same; except that when such indebtedness is incurred in the acquisition of lands by cities, or by counties having a population of 150,000 or over, for public, municipal purposes, or for the permanent improvement thereof, the city or county incurring the same shall, before or at the time of so doing, provide for the collection of a direct annual tax sufficient to pay the interest on such debt as it falls due, and also to pay and discharge the principal thereof within a period not exceeding fifty years from the time of contracting the same;" now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate, the Assembly concurring, That the foregoing proposed amendment to the constitution of the State of Wisconsin be, and the same is hereby agreed to by this legislature.

(No. 25, S.)

JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 48.

To amend article XI of the constitution by adding thereto a new section to be known as section 3a, relating to the acquisition of lands by the state or any of its cities for certain public purposes.

next preceding any election, and in the election district where he or she offers to vote ten days, shall be deemed a qualified elector at such election.

1. Citizens of the United States.

2. Persons of foreign birth who, prior to the first day of December, A. D. 1903, shall have declared their intention to become citizens conformably to the laws of the United States on the subject of naturalization; provided that the rights hereby granted to such persons shall cease on the first day of December, A. D. 1912.

3. Persons of Indian blood who have once been declared by law of congress to be citizens of the United States, any subsequent law of congress to the contrary notwithstanding.

4. Civilized persons of Indian descent not members of any tribe.

5. Any civilized person, being a dependent of the Chippewas of Lake Superior or any other Indian tribe, residing within this state, and not upon any Indian reservation, who shall make and subscribe to an oath before the clerk of the circuit court or his deputy of the county where such person resides, that he or she is not a member of any Indian tribe, and has no claim upon the United States for aid and assistance from any appropriation made by congress for the benefit of Indians, and that he or she thereby relinquishes all tribal relations, and all right to claim or receive such aid, shall be entitled, on such oath being filed and recorded, to vote at all elections held in this state, if he or she is otherwise qualified. The oath so taken, on being corroborated as to the residence and tribal relations of such person by the affidavit of a qualified elector, shall be filed in the office of the clerk before whom it was taken and recorded by him in a book to be provided for that purpose, upon such person paying to said clerk the sum of one dollar.

6. No person under guardianship, non compos mentis or insane shall be qualified to vote at any election, nor shall any person convicted of treason or felony be qualified to vote at any election unless restored to civil rights.

Section 2. The question whether the foregoing provisions of this act shall take effect and be in force, shall be submitted to a vote of the people of this state, in the manner provided by law for the submission of an amendment to the constitution, at the next general election to be held in November, 1912. If approved by a majority of all the votes cast on that subject at such election, it shall take effect and be in force from and after such approval by the people; otherwise it shall not take effect or be in force. Upon the ballot shall be printed, "Shall Chapter (insert on the ballot the number of chapter) of the laws of 1911, entitled 'An act extending the right of suffrage to women' be adopted?"

Section 3. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage and publication.

Approved June 2, 1911.

Dated this 5th day of Sept., 1912.

C. H. RAWLINSON,
County Clerk.

SUPREME COURT WILL BE BUSY

Interesting Cases Involving Millions Up for Decision by High Tribunal

BATH TUB TRUST CASE UP

Enamel-ware Manufacturers' Fight on Maryland Decision Among Big Matters

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15. — With the official call of the old erler that the supreme court was in session, the highest tribunal in the United States yesterday took up its work after the summer months in vacation. This session will be one of the most important in the history of the court, there being many difficult questions involving millions of dollars to settle.

All the officials of the court have been on duty for over a score of years. The justices nodded pleasantly to distinguished members of the bar who were present for the opening, including the attorney general and members of his staff who came to argue important cases which the government is prosecuting.

Bath Tub Trust Case

Following the opening of the court it is always the custom of the justices to adjourn immediately to pay their respects to the president, but as President Taft was out of the city yesterday, this courtesy was deferred until a later date. The court then took up a number of applications for admissions to practice before it and heard motions for the advancement of cases. Following this brief session, adjournment was taken until today when arguments will be heard in a number of cases specially assigned for a hearing at that time. The most important one will be the so-called "bath tub trust" case in which the enamelware manufacturers are fighting the judgment of the federal courts in Maryland that they have been guilty of violating the Sherman law in maintaining an unlawful conspiracy in restraint of trade. The right of the owner of a patent to attach such conditions as he pleases in regard to the use of his patented article, when he sells or licenses it, is involved, and the court's decision is expected to throw new light on the relations between patents and the big manufacturing combines, and the extent to which the latter may go in controlling trade by the power of their patent grants. Lawyers for the trust claim that its right to control its patents should not be curtailed by application of the anti-trust law.

The court will also take up a famous murder case. Porter Charlton, a young man of 23 who was arrested and locked up in a New Jersey prison to answer to the charge of murdering his wife at Lake Como, Italy, two years ago, denies the right of the United States to extradite him to Italy for trial in the Italian courts. His counsel will contend that under the treaty relations between this country and Italy there is no war in the law for returning him to Italy. The case is on appeal to the highest court from the federal court of New Jersey which refused to issue a writ of habeas corpus granting him his liberty. Charlton will soon know whether he will be set free here or be forced to return to Italy and stand trial for murder.

To Decide State Right

Cases to be argued tomorrow include the controversy between the states of Wyoming and Colorado over the diversion of the waters of the Laramie river; the contest over Judge Archbold's decision in the New Orleans-Alabama state cases, and the Patten indictment on a charge of attempting to corner the cotton market, to which James A. Patten, the Chicago speculator, demurred in the federal courts of New York on the ground that private ownership of large quantities of cotton did not constitute a violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

Scheduled for early argument are nearly a half dozen cases to determine the scope of the Hepburn rate law in its application to the question of liability of railroads to shippers for articles lost in transit. In a suit originating in the loss of household goods shipped in Oklahoma, the question of whether this law limits the liability of the railroads for such articles lost in transit, will be argued; in another case the question of whether the Nebraska state constitution or the Hepburn law control the contract limiting such liability, is involved. The loss of a horse shipped from Iowa to Nebraska precipitated this issue. There is also in dispute the question whether the statute allows the express companies to limit the liability incurred from the loss of shipments. This issue had its origin in the shipment of a ring from Ohio to Alabama. The ring was lost.

Define Board's Powers

The powers of the Interstate Commerce commission are to be further defined in early decisions on cases shortly to be argued. The commission claims jurisdiction over the Chicago Stock Yards railways. The railways deny this right. Another question involving the commission, to be heard next week, is whether the commission may compel interstate railroads to grant connections with interurban electric railways. Certain of the latter railways in the state of Ohio are demanding this privilege.

A new construction of the pure food law is looked forward to in the determination of the status of frozen eggs seized on the ground that they were deleterious to health and therefore under the ban of the law. The title of this case is "Four Hundred and forty-three cans of frozen egg product vs. the United States."

The court will hear arguments on the question of what person is authorized under the New York state employers' liability law to collect damages in recovery for injuries sustained.

The validity of a Denver ordinance authorizing the construction of municipal waterworks in that city is also to be tested.

The court will hand down no opinions until a week from today, when it may make known its determination in a number of important cases that have been under advisement all summer.

The most important of these is the so-called "Reading case," in which the government seeks the dissolution under the Sherman anti-trust law, of the reputed anthracite coal monopoly, charging that railroads in the state of Pennsylvania are extorting complete control over from 90 to 95 per cent of the total output of anthracite coal.

How far the states may go in determining the rates that railroads may charge for the transportation of freight and passengers will be largely defined if the court makes public next week its decision in the Minnesota, Tennessee, Oregon and Nebraska rate cases. The court will have to decide whether the states may make laws governing rates, which are declared by the railroads to be confiscatory in their effect and hence unconstitutional. The court's

IS YOUR CHILD'S TONGUE COATED?

If cross, feverish, bilious, stomach sour, give "Syrup of Figs" to clean its little clogged-up bowels.

Mother! Don't scold your cross, peevish child! Look at the tongue! See if it is white, yellow and coated! If your child is listless, drooping, isn't sleeping well, is restless, doesn't eat heartily or is cross, irritable, out of sorts with everybody, stomach sour, feverish, breath bad, has stomach ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, or is full of cold, it means the little one's stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste matter and need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

Give a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs, and in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, undigested food and sour bile will gently move on and out of its little waste clogged bowels without nausea, griping or weakness, and you will surely have a well, happy and smiling child again shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not drugging your children, being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics it cannot be harmful, besides they dearly love its delicious taste.

Mothers should always keep Syrup of Figs handy. It is the only stomach, liver and bowel cleanser and regularizer needed. A little given today will save a sick child tomorrow.

Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

ing him his liberty. Charlton will soon know whether he will be set free here or be forced to return to Italy and stand trial for murder.

To Decide State Right

Cases to be argued tomorrow include the controversy between the states of Wyoming and Colorado over the diversion of the waters of the Laramie river; the contest over Judge Archbold's decision in the New Orleans-Alabama state cases, and the Patten indictment on a charge of attempting to corner the cotton market, to which James A. Patten, the Chicago speculator, demurred in the federal courts of New York on the ground that private ownership of large quantities of cotton did not constitute a violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

Scheduled for early argument are nearly a half dozen cases to determine the scope of the Hepburn rate law in its application to the question of liability of railroads to shippers for articles lost in transit. In a suit originating in the loss of household goods shipped in Oklahoma, the question of whether this law limits the liability of the railroads for such articles lost in transit, will be argued; in another case the question of whether the Nebraska state constitution or the Hepburn law control the contract limiting such liability, is involved. The loss of a horse shipped from Iowa to Nebraska precipitated this issue. There is also in dispute the question whether the statute allows the express companies to limit the liability incurred from the loss of shipments. This issue had its origin in the shipment of a ring from Ohio to Alabama. The ring was lost.

Define Board's Powers

The powers of the Interstate Commerce commission are to be further defined in early decisions on cases shortly to be argued. The commission claims jurisdiction over the Chicago Stock Yards railways. The railways deny this right. Another question involving the commission, to be heard next week, is whether the commission may compel interstate railroads to grant connections with interurban electric railways. Certain of the latter railways in the state of Ohio are demanding this privilege.

A new construction of the pure food law is looked forward to in the determination of the status of frozen eggs seized on the ground that they were deleterious to health and therefore under the ban of the law. The title of this case is "Four Hundred and forty-three cans of frozen egg product vs. the United States."

The court will hear arguments on the question of what person is authorized under the New York state employers' liability law to collect damages in recovery for injuries sustained.

The validity of a Denver ordinance authorizing the construction of municipal waterworks in that city is also to be tested.

The court will hand down no opinions until a week from today, when it may make known its determination in a number of important cases that have been under advisement all summer.

The most important of these is the so-called "Reading case," in which the government seeks the dissolution under the Sherman anti-trust law, of the reputed anthracite coal monopoly, charging that railroads in the state of Pennsylvania are extorting complete control over from 90 to 95 per cent of the total output of anthracite coal.

How far the states may go in determining the rates that railroads may charge for the transportation of freight and passengers will be largely defined if the court makes public next week its decision in the Minnesota, Tennessee, Oregon and Nebraska rate cases. The court will have to decide whether the states may make laws governing rates, which are declared by the railroads to be confiscatory in their effect and hence unconstitutional. The court's

Big Guns Echo Salutes and Admirals Pay Official Calls Upon Secretary

TAFT YACHT IS BEFOGGED

President's Vessel Is Anchored Off Ambrose Channel Until Time for Inspection

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—The roar of saluting guns, echoing and reflecting from the nature-made cliffs of New Jersey and the man-made mountains and canyons of Manhattan, gave notice to all within earshot that the greatest naval review in the history of the United States was on.

The first salute—nineteen guns from the leviathan Connecticut, answered promptly by the gunboat Dolphin, as she dropped her mud hook and broke out the flag of Secretary of the Navy Meyer, came promptly at nine o'clock and marked the inauguration of a day of ceremony such as is seldom witnessed in America.

Osterhaus Visits Meyer

With the boom of the last gun the admiral's launch was in the water at the gangway of the Connecticut and Rear Admiral Hugo Osterhaus with his complete staff, jumped into their places and the launch sped over to the Dolphin, on whose bridge surrounded by the officers of the gunboat and those especially detailed to assist him, was the secretary of the navy.

The call was of the most formal character. The drums were ruffed as the uniformed officers ascended the enclosed gangway, there was quick handshakes and then Admiral Osterhaus took position at the left of the secretary, while the squadron commanders began to appear in the launches which had brought them from their vessels.

Meanwhile down in the smother of fog that masked the entrance to the harbor, just a few rods from the Ambrose channel lightship, the president's yacht, the Mayflower, was resting on board the yacht Mayflower. Tossing slowly at the end of the anchor chain, the president's craft remained, always in touch with the big Connecticut by wireless, waiting the hour set to sail up the river and take position at the head of the fleet.

Review Starts

At 9:10, Secretary Meyer and Admiral Osterhaus entered the Connecticut's launch and visited the Wyoming, latest of America's big gun fighting ships. When the inspection ended, the secretary returned to the Dolphin and a few minutes later a flag from the bridge wig-wagged a signal and the dolphin started slowly up along the line of anchored vessels for the review of the secretary of the navy. Immediately astern of the Dolphin came the gunboat Nashville, with reporters, photographers and invited guests on board. Then came the river steamer Hendrick Hudson, with Mayor Gaynor and the New York City committee.

The inspection ended, the vessels repaired to the places assigned to them, and at 12:30 p. m. the Mayflower, with President Taft on board, sailed up the river to her anchorage off Thirty-first street. On board, in addition to the president, were Mrs. Taft, Major Rhodes, Mrs. Laughlin, Mr. and Mrs. Larz Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. John Hays Hammond, Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Taft, Miss Louise Taft, Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Taft, General B. F. Tracy, Mr. and Mrs. George D. Sheldon, Mrs. William Fuller and James D. Lyon.

Salute President

As the Mayflower anchored, every decision in a large measure will determine whether a decade of legislation in western and southern states aiming at reduction in railroad rates, is to stand or fall.

vessel in the fleet fired the presidential salute of 21 guns. While the guns were booming the secretary of the navy and his complete staff went on board the Mayflower and at the same time the president's flag was hauled down from the yacht. Then the Mayflower got under way and steamed up the river to where the Connecticut was anchored. As the president's yacht anchored the presidential flag was again broken out, and as it was carried out flat by the breeze, the fleet again saluted.

The commander-in-chief staff division commanders and their staffs, then formally paid their visit to the Mayflower, and at 1:55 the president returned the call of Admiral Osterhaus. The president and Secretary Meyer returned to the Mayflower immediately after the formal call, after which the president in his yacht inspected the entire fleet, at the anchorage.

PREPARE FOR OPERATION

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—Col. Roosevelt was taken into the operating room of Mercy hospital at 7:30 a. m. today and preparations were made at once for an operation to remove the bullet, which was lodged under the tenth rib, and resting against the wall of his chest. The operation was to be performed by Dr. John B. Murphy, assisted by Dr. A. J. Ochsner.

Nice Quiet Place. "Did you find a nice quiet place to spend the season?" "Yes," replied Mr. Crowther. "Everybody else in the family went away and I stayed home."

Correct! It is incorrect to speak of the careless pedestrian in the present tense. The careless pedestrian is dead and buried.—St. Louis Republic.

The Hard Part. "You get your money easy enough!" "Oh, I know I get it easily," replies the other. "All I have to do is stand in line for my pay envelope. It was the earning it I was kicking about."

CANCEL ALL DATES

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—Medill McCormick was one of the first persons admitted to the hospital to see the colonel today. The two talked politics for a few minutes and McCormick informed Colonel Roosevelt that he had cancelled all of the progressive nominee's speaking dates for the remainder of the campaign.

A meeting was arranged for this afternoon between McCormick and O. K. Davis of the New York progressive headquarters, with the colonel.

Home Politics. "What is this initiative and referendum?" "It's this way. If I want to go anywhere, or do anything, I ask initiative by mentioning it to my wife. Then she decides whether I am or not. That's the referendum."

Toning Down Somewhat. "You used to be strong for the up-lift." "Yes," replied Senator Sorghum, "but a reformer is liable to be so high that the public can't see him. I am now engaged in volplaning a little."

Long-Lived. "Oh, yes, I come of a very long-lived family. My father out a third set of teeth when he was past eighty."

"That's nothing. My grandfather died of infantile paralysis when he was ninety-seven."

To Use Graphite Supply. A company has been formed to exploit the graphite deposits of Bavaria, which, with those of Ceylon, are said to be the only ones in the world yielding graphite suitable for refractory crucibles.

SOX FIELD BUT GIANTS HIT

Boston's Work on Defense
Saves Them from New York's Heavy
Slugging

(By Grantland Rice)
BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 15.—Dawn broke on the restless, shattered slumber of two nerve-racked clans who were to rise again and face their seventh fight for the championship of the world.

The Red Sox, fighting desperately, had rushed to a safe, clean lead, only to have this lead cut down to the margin of one game—and to be placed where, if her star slabman failed today the edge would belong to the rival clan who had age and experience ready to meet youth and brilliance, inexperienced against such a smashing test.

There is glory for all in a fight like this—and the only pity is that one must lose where the other must win. Both have fought with too much heart and courage to miss the laurel which only one can wear.

As the series now stands, after yesterday's battle, no one but a partisan, reeking with bias, prejudice and unfairness, can say that either team has shown the edge, man for man and clan for clan.

The Red Sox have excelled in fielding; the Giants have excelled in pitching and batting. The great work of their slabsmen with Marquard heading the list had made Stahl's slashing batsmen depend more upon the breaks in the Giant defense than ability to hit in the needed runs. The Red Sox have scored runs to the number of 18 to date—and earned nine.

The Giants have also scored 18 runs, an even count in scoring, but so relentless and almost flawless.

New York has made five hits to Boston's 43—and has stolen eight bases to Boston's six. But New York has made eleven errors to Boston's five and where New York's eleven errors sent through nine unearned runs, Boston's five sent through but three tallies that should not have scored.

WATCH BADGERS IN GAME WITH PURPLE

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 15.—If Keckie Moll, newly appointed head coach of Purdue, was surprised at the showing made by the Badgers in their game with Northwestern, he did not show it. The former Wisconsin star witnessed the contest from a seat along the sidelines with the W. men. He watched every play closely but would not make any predictions as to the outcome of the game with his men next Saturday. It was rumored also that Pat Page of the Chicago coaching staff was in the audience, getting a line on the Badgers' work. The game with Chicago will be held two weeks from Saturday, being scheduled for an earlier date than usual this year.

However, Messrs. Moll and Page did not betray any rabid enthusiasm for their teams after beholding Wisconsin's representatives play tag with the Northwestern men. Coach Juneau was more than pleased with the showing made by the men on Saturday. During the week it is probable that the big chief will give the men several new plays from his stock of foxy maneuvers. Regular secret practice will be held every afternoon at Camp Randall, and several evenings will be dedicated to indoor work at the gym annex. Ole Moffett, who played in his first varsity game at full on Saturday, made a great showing, rooting his way through the purple line repeatedly on ferocious line bucks. It is more than likely that Coach Juneau will make use of the big substitute this week.

This is a dull world at times, but one can surely get a suffragette angry when other amusement is lacking.

CARDINALS MAKE IT THREE OUT OF FOUR

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 15.—The Nationals won the fifth game of the interleague series with the Americans to decide the championship of St. Louis here Monday afternoon, score 10 to 4. Powell, who started for the Americans, was hit hard in the first inning, while his support in the outfield was ragged and the Nationals scored five runs. Mitchell, who relieved him, also was hit hard, being touched for four runs. But started pitching for the Nationals and was found for a run in the first inning. Geyer took his place in the second after one was out and the bases were filled and retired the side in order.

Monday's victory makes it three won for the Nationals, one for the Americans and one game was a tie. The score. R H E
Americans . 100020001—4 10 4
Nationals . 50310100x—10 12 0

MATTY AND WOOD TO BATTLE TODAY

BOSTON, Oct. 15.—A day of typical football weather greeted the Red Sox and the Giants at 8 o'clock this morning. The sky was clear as crystal, and a tinge of real fall temperature gradually gave way to a perfect Indian summer warmth as the sun thawed out the early morning nip in the air. Fenway park diamond and field never was in better shape for a game. Mathewson and Wood were the early morning pitching selections.

TITLE SERIES IS LOSS FOR MILLERS

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 15.—Some sort of a hen seems to be hatching doorknobs and bricks in that posthumous baseball series now progressing at Denver between the champions of the Western league and the tattered remnants of the title holding Millers.

The trip has been a serious mistake for the club owners, as was feared in advance. It was arranged by a little spare change for the winter league. When Delehanty went home to nurse an injury and Clymer ran out, it would have been wise to call off the series, but guarantees were up and President Cantillon evidently thought he had to go through with his contracts.

It was a series in which the Millers had nothing to gain but gate receipts and everything to lose in the way of reputation. Their performance in Denver so far has been a knock to the city and to the league. It has injured baseball in Minneapolis, unless the team is completely overhauled by next season.

BARRY WINS

LONDON, Oct. 15.—Ernest Barry of England, the world's champion sculler, defeated Edward Hanlon of Toronto in a race on Monday for the sculling championship of the world over the Putney-to-Mortlake course on the Thames. Barry won by two boat lengths in 22 minutes, 21 seconds.

Many a man who knows his place is unable to keep it. You can't always measure a good time by what it cost.

CUBS WIN THIRD STRAIGHT VICTORY

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—The Chicago Nationals buried the White Sox under an 8 to 1 score on Monday, winning the third straight game of the series to decide the baseball championship of Chicago. One more victory for the Cubs will end the series.

Cicotte attempted to stop the Cubs' winning streak and lasted two innings. He was relieved by Lange after five runs had been scored off him. The Cubs batted in a run off Lange in the third and they were held in check until the ninth, when Saler pounded out his second triple, scoring two more runs.

The American leaguers' lone tally was made in the sixth, when Bodie drove the ball into deep center field for three bases and came home on Johnson's drive to left. Cheney pitched in rare form and held the Americans to eight scattered hits.

SELL M. BROWN TO LOUISVILLE CLUB

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—Pitcher Brown, the three fingered twirler, who in the past has been one of the strongest assets of the Chicago National league baseball team, has been sold to the Louisville team of the American association, it was announced on Sunday. C. W. Murphy, president of the Chicago Nationals, asked for waivers on Brown some time ago. Brown's arm is as good as ever, it is said, and he has been sold by Murphy because Brown twisted his knee in a game early this season and the lameness persisted.

CHILD OF FARMER BURNED TO DEATH

TIOGA, N. D., Oct. 15.—One child was burned to death and another seriously injured when the farm home of B. Kitagawa, probably North Dakota's only Japanese farmer, was destroyed by fire. The mother made a heroic effort to save her child, but was not able to get the baby out before he was fatally burned. Mr. Kitagawa was in the fields when the fire broke out.

STOP TRAIN TO FIGHT GRASS FIRE

SIoux FALLS, S. D., Oct. 15.—The novelty of a passenger train being stopped so the passengers and crew could fight a prairie fire was witnessed in Bon Homme county on Saturday. The wind was blowing a gale when sparks from a freight locomotive set fire to the grass beside the track. The passenger train passed a short time later and the engineer, fireman, conductor, brakemen and passengers hastened from the train and after strenuous efforts extinguished the fire.

OFFICER CHASES MAN IN STREET

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 15.—Harold J. Scheffler, a Grand Rapids, Mich., deputy sheriff, and Warren Adams, wanted for embezzlement, participated in a lively chase from the Western Union office on Sycamore street to Huron street and Broadway on Monday.

Adams slipped from the door of the office while the officer was writing a telegram. The deputy followed and was forced to tear off and drop his overcoat in order to follow Adams. At Huron street the officer made a flying tackle and the two rolled over into the ditch.

BOY BANDITS HOLD OFFICERS AT BAY

SHAWANO, Wis., Oct. 15.—After robbing a hardware store of enough guns and revolvers to start a small arsenal and eluding the officers for a day and a night, Calvin Drier, aged 14, and his brother Amos, aged 13, when found in the woods near here on Monday, fired upon the officers who attempted to arrest them. The younger of the two boys gave himself up, but the older one escaped after holding the officers at bay for some time.

GIRL SLASHED IN LOVERS' QUARREL

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 15.—In a dispute which is said to have started because of a love affair, Emma

Lewis, 26 years old, colored, was stabbed about the face and neck Sunday night, and William Davenport, arrested a short time later, charged with the stabbing.

According to the police, the couple were in the Keystone cafe, and had been having an argument. Davenport is accused by the police of having slashed the girl with a razor. She ran screaming from the place and he followed her.
